Hilker Rink Wins Top Prize

This year the Sedgewick Club decided to limit the entries to 48 rinks, to save confusion and the danger of the spiel running over into a second week. The 48 rinks were registered early, and many others had to be rejected. Next year the club will be in its new 4-sheet artificial ice palace and the entry list will be increased.

"WHEN IS A JOKE A JOKE?"

A jokester recently painted the word "BEER" in 16-foot letters on a Municipal Water Tank near Toronto. The authorities were bombarded with complaints from residents who turned on their taps and got — WATER! To point out the misleading word cost the township $160.

FIRE DESTROYS NESS GARAGE

Touched off by an over-flowing gas tank, fire completely destroyed the Ness Bros' Garage on the corner of main street Lougheed, on Friday, March 8th. In a matter of minutes the fire had spread and engulfed the entire structure and firefighters were hard pushed to save surrounding buildings from the raging flames.

The fire might well be termed as a three-alarm fire, as fire engines from Lougheed, Hardisty and Sedgewick were rushed to the scene.

Mr. Ness was filling the underground gas tank from his tank truck just before the fire broke out. The overflow pipe was open, causing a short in electrical equipment nearby which resulted in a quick spread of flames.

Besides the building, the entire stock and equipment, as well as the contents of living quarters were lost. Insurance was carried.

At this time it is not known what plans are being made for rebuilding. In the meantime the Ness Bros. are continuing to carry on business in the former F. N. Potter building.

Cockshutt Plant Sold at Killam

Cockshutt Farm Equipment of Canada Ltd., Killam, has been sold to a private group, it was announced this week by A. O. B ird, local manager.

M. Baird has been the manager of the firm since it opened in Killam, and stated that his future plans at present are undecided.

In future the firm will be known as Cromron a Equipment Ltd., with Mr. Keith Rainey, formerly of Leduc as general manager.

The new firm will continue to act as agents for Cockshutt Equipment, but will also add several allied lines, as well as cars and trucks.

Mr. Rainey told this reporter that the firm will add lines and equipment, plus service equipment to the final overall total of a half million dollars.

Candidates Nominated

Alfred Arnston N. D. P. Candidate

An enthusiastic group of farmers, businessmen and wage earners gathered at Viking from all parts of the Battle River-Camrose area on March 4th to choose Alfred Arnston as the New Democratic Party candidate in the April 8th election. Others named were James Jackson of Irma and Art Bussey of Forestburg.

Constituency officers elected were Sigurd Lafferal of Viking, president; Gerald Oberg of Forestburg, vice-president and Ed Thompson of Viking, Sec.-Treas.

The guest speaker, Ted Chudyk of Vegreville, being a farmer, dealt with farm problems as well as with the matter of the extent to which our politicians of recent years have allowed our natural resources to be bought up by foreign interests. He also pointed to the futility of our efforts to control foreign

T e candidate, Alfred Arnston, of Hay Lakes, is a farmer's son presently engaged in the merchandising business in his home town. He is a family man, educated in his home town and at the U. of A.

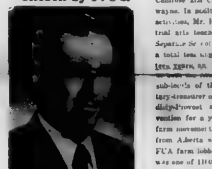
Chosen by P. C's.



C. S. "Cliff" Smallwood

Cliff Smallwood, M. P., received the unopposed nomination as Progressive Conservative candidate at a meeting in Viking recently.

Social Credit Picks "Art" Rosenau

At a well attended nominating convention held at Viking on March 9th, the Battle River-Camrose Federal S. C. Association chose Mr. Art Rosenau of Forestburg as candidate to contest the April 8th election.

Mrs. Rosenau is vice-principal of the Forestburg High School, aged 45, married and has two children. He has been in Forestburg four years. A prior to that was Superintendent of School in British East Africa (Kenya Colony) for five years. Mr. Rosenau came to Forestburg from Youngstown, Alberta.

Liberals Pick Purka

Well known farmer in the Round Hill district, Stanley J. Purka, was chosen to carry the Liberal banner in the April 8th election. He won the nomination on the first ballot, among three candidates, at a nominating meeting held in Camrose. Other contenders were Ed Noga of Camrose and Chas. Rossi of Meeyawne. In addition to his farming activities, Mr. Purka is also industrial arts teacher at St. Patrick's Separate School in Camrose. He has a total teaching experience of fifteen years, and has been president of the Camrose sub-local of the ATA and secretary-treasurer of the Camrose-Hardisty-Forestburg Area teachers' convention for a year. Active in the farm movement, he was one of ten from Alberta who joined the 1957 FUA farm lobby in Ottawa, and he was one of 1100 Alberta farmers in the 1959 "March on Ottawa". He is a former sub-director of the FUA in the Camrose area. He graduated from the Vermilion School of Agriculture in 1952, followed by graduation from Camrose Normal School in 1953.

NEW B of M AT DAYSLAND

Scores of customers and friends of the Bank of Montreal visited the new bank building in Daysland last Saturday to view one of the most modern structures of its kind in rural western Canada. Manager Verne Harney spent the afternoon showing the visitors the premises and explaining the various departments. He was ably assisted by his staff.

Occupying 2200 square feet of office space, the new bank features three teller's wickets and two coupon booths for deposit box holders.

FREEDOM FROM HUNGER!

The world, and Canada in particular is faced with special weeks of all kinds, dedicated to various causes, mostly well intended ,but sometimes rather worthless. Another of these "weeks" is to be celebrated March 17th to 23rd in some 100 countries. It is the "Freedom From Hunger" week, and it is one, which, if carried to a favorable conclusion and then stretched out to 365 days, could do untold good, and contribute much toward world peace. Freedom from Hunger Week is under the patronage of His Excellency Major-General Georges P. Vanier, D.S.O., M.C., C. D., Governor-General of Canada.

Hunger and malnutrition are spectres which even today haunt approximately one-half of the world's three billion people. This fact, coupled with a forecast population of 6 billion by the turn of the century, heavily underlines the need for adequate food food production in the "hungry" areas, principally in the developing countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. It was against this grim background that the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations launched its Freedom from Hunger campaign in 1960. Its purpose is to stimulate world-wide efforts to solve the problems of the underdeveloped areas. Hungry people cannot work effectively and cannot think beyond immediate needs (and food is the dominating one), any solution to the food problem would give the incentive and energy required to develop other segments of the economy. Basically hunger is a concomitmant of poverty and a solution to the latter requires a balanced development of underdeveloped economies, Agriculture is the key, because 60 to 80 percent of the people of underdeveloped countries are trying to eke a living from land.

Since 1960 over 100 countries have responded to this challenge and have organized national Freedom From Hunger campaigns. These countries have endorsed over $20 million in long-range projects in history's first worldwide co-operative drive to provide the basic freedom — freedom from hunger. Canada's contributions in this effort have been many. She has supported efforts to increase food production and expand economies; the building of Canada Dam in India; training students in agriculture, forestry and fisheries. Canadian people, through churches, voluntary organizations and private agencies, are supporting many self-help projects in Asia, Latin America, Africa and the West Indies.

"GET-OUT-THE-VOTE" PROGRAM!

According to news reporters who are travelling across the nation feeling the pulse of the electorate, there prevails a fairly widespread feeling of disgust and confusion in the minds of Canadian voters; disgust at the performance of politicians and confusion over the issues at stake. There is justification for both attitudes. Many politicians have been anything but honest in their disclosures, while others have compounded the felony by what they have not said. The public has a right to be bewildered, and that appears to be a state pleasing to the politicians. However, if Canada is to have stability in government — something sorely needed today — the men of women of the nation must vote. They must weigh the issues as clearly as possible, and vote, if for nothing else, for stability. If we end up after April 8th with another minority government then Canda is indeed in trouble.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce has announced a nation-wide, non-partisan program to encourage Canadians to carefully study the issues of the coming election, to make sure they are registered, and to cast an informed ballot on April 8th. The Chamber is enlisting the support of its 850 member Boards and some 2600 members in the program. They are working to encourage citizens to go to the polls and vote. They are bringing into play, literature, speakers, posters and stickers to assist the effort. "As citizens of a free country, we have many privileges, and we also have corresponding duties and responsibilities," is the attitude taken by the Chamber. One of these important responsibilities is to vote intelligently on April 8th.

At the local level, the F. U. A. is assisting the average voter to assess the issues, to evaluate the candidates and learn of the party platforms, through their program of joint political meetings. Here you can listen; here you may get information; here you can ask questions. Turn out to these meetings. They could end your confusion.

Not without regret, and with a few nervous misgivings, I smile a big change a couple of years ago, Frenzied, scratched, and slightly addled, I rush myself aside, and we had a serious talk. Just the two of us.

"Smiler, old boy," I said to me, "how much longer do you intend to keep up this nonsense? Is this what you fought for, eh? Is this what you realy want out of life, to be a seller of four dollar ads, chronicler of endless meetings about nothings, a pacifier of old ladies of both sexes who have a beef, a logger of papers to the postoffice, a member of 40 organizations, a payer of mortgages, a fighter of lost causes, and a lousy husband and father?"

"I d'no," said me in my straightforward, Canadian way. "Watcha gotten mind?"

Well, what do you do when you talk to a moron? You humor him, that's what you do. So I explained carefully and clearly about ulcers, and pensions, and security, and family togetherness, and the fact that I was 40 and ready for pasture. Me listended spennunbthed. This was all new.

As a result, soon after I dug-pudded my way out of the turbulent stream of life as a weekly editor into the quiet backwater of life as a school teacher. I figured I would lie back and float there for awhile, resting up before I sank quietly out of sight among the bullfrogs and the pollywogs and the tadpolity and the mud of the schmaltz pond.

But I must have fallen asleep in that pond and been washed out to sea, with a force-eight gale blowing, breakers everywhere, my collapsible life-belt doing just that, and my emergency rocket flares in my vest pocks.

It's just not that simple. You can't just turn your back on Life, that aging but still lively mistress you've kept in style for years, had so much fun with, done so many crazy things with, and expect her to let you walk quietly into the arms of Miss Other Woman—dear old dim, dull Peste.

She won't do it. She'll hurt abuse at you in public. She'll throw gravel at your window on moonlit nights. She'll urge you to you manag lately toward respectibility. She" put black squirrels in your stills and black lowgirls in your bed. She'll just plain raise hell until you take her back.

I've tried. I've looked the other way when she flaunted herself. I've held her at arms' length until I ran out of arms. I've put my head in the sand when she approached (and received a kick in the rump for my pains). But she's given me the works. I determined I would never act on another committee, join another organization, donate any of my free time to anything, or do anything for anybody, unless it were life or death.

What happened? Life cackled with glee, and I find myself on numerous committees, a member of several organizations, lurching out of bed to teach Sunday School, collecting for the Red Cross, putting out the school year book, and giving help to backward students, after hours.

I determined I would be a better husband. Life sneered. Every time I tried to oust a bad habit, she was right there, tantalizing. So I still lug home the best of suds, light one fag from the end of another, stay up till 4 a.m. reading, occasionally try to tell my wife she's wrong, and avoid any discussion of repairs, renovations or renewals.

I decided to be a better father. Life chortled. When I took up fishing, the kids were embarrassed. When I come home ready for a fatherly chat everybody disappears. When I ask them if they'd like to go for a nice family drive, they look at each other significantly and roll their eyes. Only this morning, Kim said, "Dad, you don't seem happy any more. You're getting bitch storage bitchy."

I swore I'd never have anything to do with politics again, on any level. Life snickered. I'll swear it was she who put the ahhh under Diefenbaker, just to make a fool of me. At any rate, not one, but two of the local candidates have asked me to give them a hand, and I've promised both.

These are only the major obstacles she has thrown between me and my courtship of that cool but complacent lady known as Peace. She has also: flushed in the rear end of my car; loaded my sweetbreads with ice to the pendulous point; arranged for my cat to get in the family way again; tricked me into getting five weeks behind in my work; broken the zipper on my snowboot, and put my hot water system on the blink.

I give up. Come back, you old trollop, and I'll embrace you as of yore, and forget about Peace, she never did appeal to me much anyway.

Hospital Auxiliary

The Killam Hospital Auxiliary met on March 7th with 14 members and one visitor. Membership convener reported the canvassing is almost completed. The news letter proved informative, especially the report on the activities of other auxiliaries.

The evening of April 25th is the tentative date for the tuction.

Meeting voted to accept the offer to serve lunch for the J. E. Chevraux suction sale. Auxiliary executive has outlined a program for each meeting in the year.

Mrs. Hillar, nurse for the Health Unit, was guest speaker. Her topic, The Mentally Retarded Child.

Some 1953 aprons were folded. April meeting on the 4th.

Sedgewick W. I.

Members attending the March meeting of the Sedgewick W. I., welcomed the Constituency Convener, Mrs. Huse, and other visitors from Alsince. An invitation was read from the members of the Argyle W. I., inviting Sedgewick members and their husbands to attend their 50th anniversary party to be held in the Alliance School on March 20th.

Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Gravlaith were elected to attend a millinary course in Sedgewick in the fall. Mrs. Shave reported that she had received a new library grant for 1963. Members decided to join the Salsbda Symbols Saving Plan, to increase W. I. funds. All members were asked to collect as many labels as possible.

Mrs. Huse addressed the meeting on several matters of A. W. I. policy. She asked that Sedgewick send a delegate to the Provincial Convention at the University in June.

Mrs. Blakeney asked whether the members would like to help with some knitting and serving for the Red Cross. Several volunteered to help to complete the project before the end of April.

Korpan - Moser Vows

KILLAM — St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on February 16 when Rev. M. E. McCarthy officiated at the exchange of marriage vows between Rosalind Michael Korpan, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Korpan of Vegreville and Donna Elizabeth Moser, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Moser of Killam. Following the wedding service Father McCarthy offered a nuptial mass, during which the choir sang "What Happiness Can Equal Mine?" and other suitable selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a full-length white organza gown, having a lace yoke, fitted bodice and lily-point sleeves. Flowing softly from a crescent of pearls and crystal, her chapel veil showed a broad lace border to match the lace trimming on her dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses while her jewelry consisted of a dainty gold cross and matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Miss Bonnie Moser, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Sally Korpan, groom's sister, and Miss Lorraine Zwark. All three were similarly gowned in ruby pin de soie with matching slippers. White petite petal point headdresses, white gloves and cascade bouquets of white carnations completed their costumes.

The mother of the bride chose a three-piece turquoise tropical linen ensemble complemented with white accessories, and wore a corsage of roses. The groom's mother wore a brocade green in copper-tone, with matching accessories, and tattooed rose encorsage.

The groom was supported by Messrs John Kuiza, Terry Tak and Michael Hucks. Mr. Mervin Moser and Mrs. Jim Schneider acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the bride's home for the immediate relatives. At 6.30 p.m. 170 guests attended a reception and dinner in the parish hall, Bride's table carried out the valentine theme in white and red. Surrounded by red carnations and flanked by crystal candelabra, the three-tier wedding cake made a lovely centrepiece. Red roses and crystal roseboxes provided the floral decorations. Rev. Fr. McCarthy proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

Later in the evening a wedding dance was held. Besides local friends, guests from Camrose, Vegreville, Holden, Edmonton, Calgary & Drumheller were in attendance.

For travelling the bride wore a winter white suit accented with pink corsage and accessories. After a short wedding trip, the happy young couple will reside in Killam.

The Bible Today

Celebrations of thanksgiving were held recently on the publication of the Lunda Ndembu Bible in the north-east corner of Northern Rhodesia. Here Angela and Kasanga touch the Rhodesian. Three days of great rejoicing climaxed thirty-five years of long and patient toil necessary to complete the translation and publication of this version of the Holy Bible.

The chief translator did not live to join in the services of thanksgiving, but many others who shared in the translation work were present.

Refugees from Katanga and Angola participated. These from Katanga were anxious to purchase the new Bible and could pay only 75 francs Katangese. The Katangese franc has no value in foreign exchange.

The Rev. Maynard Boots, a Canadian, who was present says, "These folk were concerned as to how they were going to repay the Bible Society for the beautiful Bibles that were now available. It was explained that people in other parts of the world would help pay for their copies.

"This Word is so precious," explains Mr. Booth, "that exchange barriers must not prevent its distribution."

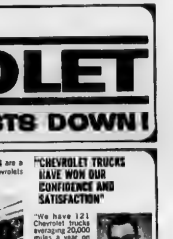
CHEVROLET
KEEPS DELIVERY COSTS DOWN!

MORE HANGING PICKUP AND DELIVERY ROUTES are a real day's work, that's why Nelsons run only Chevrolets in their busy greater Vancouver operation.

"CHEVROLET TRUCKS HAVE WON OUR CONFIDENCE AND SATISFACTION"



"We have 121 Chevrolet trucks averaging 20,000 miles a year on short run, multi-stop routes. We have so little down-time, we have reduced the number of spare trucks from 4 to 2."

"BY STANDARDIZING ON CHEVROLET WE PUT OUR DELIVERY OPERATION ON A SOUND BASIS"

"Heavy loads and multi-stop routes are demanding, but our Chevrolets are doing a wonderful job — giving us dependability and economy."

The lack of source of farm credit has often been proclaiming as one of the farmers' big problems. Plan to attend this meeting and have your questions answered regarding farm credit.

RAT REVIEW AND PREVIEW!

"Alberta is a rat-free province." This sentiment voiced by J. B. Gurba, Alberta's Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control, is a happy one when viewed with reservations.

It has been 13 years now since the first of those intruders scampered across Alberta's eastern border from Saskatchewan. During this period our provincial campaign has been designed to eliminate those pests and establish a rat-free buffer zone all the border. However, difficulty has been experienced because of the high rat population in Saskatchewan that has been continually infiltrating our eastern border from Manyberg to Cold Lake. This means that our rat-free condition exists only temporarily.

There is a state of apathy toward eliminating rats in most areas of the world where they are well established. Many people feel nothing can be done about it. Alberta's campaign to beat the problem, however, has been successful. It has also helped to stimulate an attitude in her sister provinces that there is no rest necessity to put up with rats. Last week a joint Regional Rat Control meeting was held at Provost. At this meeting attended by Alberta and Saskatchewan agricultural representatives & municipal officials, a pilot project for rat control in Sask. was revealed.

The project, which will get underway this spring, is designed to eliminate rats in an area in Saskatchewan bounded by the North and South Saskatchewan rivers and by the Alberta border to the west. This is the first time such a campaign has been initiated in this area where rats have been well established for 40 years.

Mr. C. F. Barrett, Saskatchewan's Supervisor of Pest Control said that the success of the project will influence consideration being given to an overall plan to control rats in his province.

Reports from conveners and other business was completed during the morning session. Following lunch the delegates took part in group discussions arranged for the various department activities of U. C. W. Delegates to Conference to be held in Red Deer early in April will be the Presbyterial president and six delegates to be appointed later.

Nominating committee presented a slate of officers, which was accepted, and installation was conducted by Rev. Allan Pan; Pres., Mrs. Helen Rose of Duhamel; Vice Presidents Mrs. Strandberg, Mrs. Brundage, Mrs. Glaister and Mrs. Thuliet; Rec. Sec., Mrs. Chapeon, Camrose; Treas., Mrs. John Cox, Stettler

FRIGID PLANNERS. A Canadian housewife's lot, especially the back lot where the wash, is not a happy one these freezing days. Long johns left outside to dry turn out stiff as a board. Oh, well, it makes it easy for Mrs. Lyn McCall, above, to waltz them gracefully into the house to thaw out.—

HOW is the time to fertilize with

Elephant Brand

ON SUMMERFALLOW	ON STUBBLE & SOD BREAKING	ON FORAGE
$8.93 EXTRA PROFIT PER ACRE — after paying for fertilizer	$7.29 EXTRA PROFIT PER ACRE — after paying for fertilizer	$11.84 EXTRA PROFIT PER ACRE — after paying for fertilizer

These extra profits are 4 year averages of 40 Demonstration Farm fields with Elephant Brand fertilizer on summerfallow, 60 Demonstration Farm fields with Elephant Brand fertilizer on stubble and sod breaking and 35 Demonstration Farm fields with Elephant Brand fertilizer on forage.

Remember . . . Year-after-year results on grain and forage crops prove that it will pay you to use Elephant Brand right now! Get bigger yields, extra profit from every acre. See your Elephant Brand dealer today. He knows fertilizer and can help you plan your fertilizer program.

"Day of Triumph," a two hour feature motion picture, is to be shown at the Killam Calvary Temple on the 19th of March at 8.00 p.m. Pastor Don Hopkinson said the public was invited to see what is described as the only major film production of Christ's life that is scripture true. The full color picture includes the climatic events in the life of Christ including the sermon on the Mount, the Last Supper, the conversion of Mary Magdalene, the raising of Lazarus, the Lord's Prayer, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection. These true to Bible scenes highlight a story filled with action and suspense. The film was produced by a minister Dr. Friedrich, and Episcopal Reverend. The nations clergy have hailed it as remarkable. There is no admission.

Esso Team Sees Oil Kings Play Hamilton

(By Mrs. Tina Gollan)

The Sedgewick Esso Hockey Team was welcomed to Edmonton by four volunteers recently to witness the game between the Oil Kings and the Hamilton Red Wings. When you undertake to motor 16 boys of 12 years average to Edmonton and chaperone them in the Gateway you have about 20000 fans, various things are apt to happen, but with 16 local boys you can count on everything going smoothly until the game starts, then you just close your ears.

First of all as all mothers know, a boy is always starved, and especially after riding that far. As one boy said, hamburgers are just a drop in the bucket. Oh, the tickets. Where do you find the tickets we phoned for. One official tells you just to go and knock on that door. Knock knock. Some gentleman official finally opens the door and bangs it shut in your face, walks past you like he is looking for a puller. Happened to be the room where all the piles of money are kept. How did I know. All I wanted was tickets. So we ask another officer, who points to the same door. This time we're more careful, but luck is with us and we obtain 25 reserved tickets. Now boys, line up to get your ticket. A stranger got in the line-up, but is soon routed. We paid for our tickets and we want them.

Pre entertainment we had a look at the huge arena; next the try stickers (Hamilton Red Wings dressed up in their Sunday best) are unload and the kids by a top-hat and tail coated gentleman, and they show us their stunts. Next the Oil Kings and the Red Wings are introduced, skating through a line-up of fancy figure skaters. The game is on. Pre intermission the Muk Luk Mardi Gras Queen and attendants. Halftime, bed sled. Eskimoes and Figure Skating Queens.

During the game, of course, we all let fly papers, rubbers, eggs & what have you. Even if we make a lot of noise we are still watching the game, and we can't forget when the Kings make a goal the wires takes off like a mushroom. Last but not least the game's over, score 7-2 for the Kings. Now for t... trip home, but first we have to find our way out of the mob to the cars. We make it, we are start out for home. At 11.45 we're pretty tired. We talk, but soon fall asleep, only to be awakened on arriving at Sedgewick at 3.30 a.m., glad that the worst is still standing.

Hardisty - Daysland In Hockey Final

Hardisty Stampeders earned the right to enter the finals of the Battle River League against Dayaland, Monday night by virtue of a 9-3 win over Wainwright Dukes. In a penalty-ridden game the Stamps were easy winners to take the best of five series 3-2. There were 33 penalties handed out, 23 to the Stamps and 10 to the Dukes. Included in these was 8 majors. The final series between Daysland and Hardisty got under way Tuesday night, with the Stampeders at home to Daysland.

HARDISTY — Wainwright Dukes carried their goalkeeper Partouse off the ice after blanking the Hardisty Stampeders 4-0 in the semi-final series of the B.R. League on Wednesday night in the Hardisty Arena.

The Dukes were facing elimination as Stampeders held a two-game lead in the series, but they came skating out like champions and never stopped going both ways. Veteran Ken Kyle took Gordon's pass at 13.30 of the first period to put the Dukes ahead. John Gelka got hit by a flying puck which required stitches to his head. Downie and Roy Bevans mixed for a fighting penalty early in the game. Gordon scored for the Dukes at 8.40 of the second, followed by Jim Bevans at 14.30, on two good passes from Walker, who showed up well all night. Gelka and Walker went off for interference. D. Bevans got the final goal at 9.34 of the 3rd. Perkin set up the play. Bevans larger drew two penalties, one a misconduct when he attempted to board the refree; but that official neatly stepped aside in the nick of time. Robertson also got similar punishment when he swung his stick after a call.

A. Miller blamed the defeat on it being the 'thirteenth' bus most of the Stampeders ate crow and vowed vengeance in the meeting on Saturday.

The crowd enjoyed the keenly contested game, and as Hardisty power-player Joe avoid the whitewash in the last minutes of play, the puck was moved expertly and with thrilling precision, but Wainwright covered up every scoring opening.

NOTE — Since theabove was compiled, Wainwright again trimmed Hardisty to even the games at two apiece. At Wainwright on Saturday night the Dukes won 3 to 1.

"MEET CANDIDATE" NIGHT HELD BY S. C.

KILLAM — A "Meet Our Candidate Night" was held in the Killam Co-op Hall on March 18th, sponsored by the Sedgewick Constituency Young Social Creditors. The purpose of the meeting was to introduce "Art" Roenson, S. C. candidate for Battle River-Camrose to the public.

Mr. Rosenau and Ole Sykora, president for this constituency, spoke to an enthusiastic crowd, and later a question and answer period was held. The Young Social Creditors sang several campaign songs which were highly appreciated.

The Bible Today

The Bible by correspondence is a method of teaching used in many parts of the world. A report in the Canadian Baptist by Waldo Penner tells of the Light of Life correspondence school in India.

The demand is so great that new offices are having to be opened up to handle the heavy volume of mail. Questions are sent out to interested persons, along with a copy of the Gospel being studied. The answers are returned to a central office, marked, comments and notations added and sent back to the student with a new set of questions in successive chapters of that book of the Bible. Thousands of people are enrolled in courses covering dozens of languages in several countries. Through advertisements in the newspapers, on radio and at evangelistic rallies, people are invited to enroll. Certificates are granted successful candidates.

"In the first three months our Kathmandu office mailed out over 2200 Gospels of John to interested new students", Mr. Penner reports. "Still there are 480 on the waiting list." Most enrolled students are teenagers and over 85 percent are non-Christian.

"The method of correspondence appeals to many non-C ristian young people who may hesitate to make a personal approach to a pastor or to another Christian," writes Waldo Penner.

ELLIOTT DRUG OPENS MODERN STORE

Mr. Elliott, who owns and operates the 4-ste-modern Elliott Drug Ltd. Store in Daysland, came to that bustling town almost six years ago. Mr. Elliott carried on his business in the former premises (shown in the smaller picture) until late in 1962, when the new premises, started that year, were ready for occupancy. The new store is pictured above, and constitutes one of the most modern outlays that will be found in Alberta. (Photos by Community Press).

ANIMALS SILENT ON VITAL ISSUE!

People worry me. Yes they do. Here we have a group advocating that animals should be clothed, because it is inhuman to let them suffer in the cold weather, and because they should be included with the human animals in not being allowed to break the social rules of indecent exposure. While this has all been going on, one important element has been forgotten — nobody has thought to ask the animals what they think about it. Fortunately they can't talk. That blessing (?) has been reserved only for the human animal. But believe me, I think if they could speak they would tell mankind in such certain terms to mind his own business, as to leave him speechless. I can almost hear them saying it. Among other things being: we have been provided for by an intelligence higher than yours, so leave us with it.

If the "clothe the animal" squad ever gets their idea on the statute books, we're in trouble, the animals are in trouble, and governments have gone senile. If this thing ever becomes an election issue, look out. The nuclear question is a dead duck, old age pensions will drop, acreage payments will go by the board and medicare will look like a two-bit project. Textile industries will vie with each other in offering campaign funds to parties pushing their particular lines of pants for horses, breatures for cows, and classy spike heels for the feet of milady's pooch. It will simply evolve into a dirty mess of political patronage.

Of course in some ways it could give a boost to the national economy. For instance, the cat food industry could get into the black, for who can imagine a cat catching a mouse with his pants dragging, simply because fastidious animal that he is, he was caught on his way to the bathroom. On the other hand is could ruin the fire-plug industry and put telephone companies out of business. No self-respecting dog is waiting around long enough to unzipper his pants. But always, one person's loss is another's gain. Disposable diaper companies would make millions.

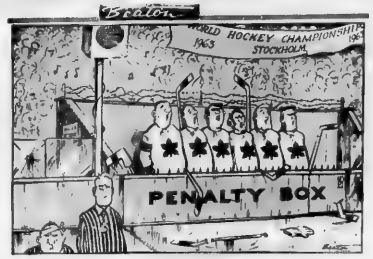
There's one thing for sure. My hunting dog is not going to be clothed or shod. When I bring down a goose, I don't want my dog standing there with his nose in the air waiting to be undressed before he retrieves, all because he refuses to get his nylon hunting coat wet.

APRIL EIGHTH! (Guest Editorial)

Ten million Canadians — more than ever before — are eligible to take part in the election of this nation's 26th Parliament on April 8th, but on past form only about three-quarters of them are likely to do so. Indeed, there appears to be some danger that the total vote may be even lighter than this. Early in the campaign, large numbers of electors were variously reported to be "angry," "annoyed," "impatient," or "indifferent" at the prospect of the second federal election in nine months and the fourth in five years, the implication being that they would express their displeasure by not voting at all. It is to be hoped that such fears prove groundless. A winter election campaign in a country with a climate like ours isn't fun for anybody, least of all the candidates who must seek the voters' favor. But the electorate must realize that the necessity for such an election now owes more to the confused and indecisive verdict rendered last June than to anything else. This being so, the first essential in to recognize that what Canada needs above all else is a Parliament capable of producing a government with an effective working majority — one, that is to say, which can count upon the support of more than half of the 265 members of the next House of Commons.

A repetition of last summer's parliamentary stand-off would be fair to no party. More important, it would be bad for Canada, condemning the country to more months of uncertainty and instability which could only be resolved by yet another election at an early date. Such an outcome—and it must be reckoned a real possibility—would not, to put it mildly, be helpful in promoting the accelerated economic growth and industrial expansion we need. In short, it is the duty of every eligible citizen to involve himself in the affairs of his country, and he will certainly be taxed whether he votes or not. But voters in this election have a greater responsibility than ever not merely to vote, but to do so after carefully considering the issues and weighing the possible implications of their action beforehand.

Those intent on sitting the election out might reflect that while they can contract out of their responsibility to cast a ballot April 8th, there are two things they cannot do. One is contract out of the consequences of their action and the other is change their mind the following day. The ballot that is all-powerful on April 8th is without value on April 9th. — Industry.



"O CANADA"

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

A month from now it will be all over. Have you decided yet which way you're going to vote? It's tough isn't it? The experts tell us there's only one real issue in this election — that of nuclear arms. Well, I'm telling them right now, if they can't think of something a little brighter than that to vote for, or against, they needn't expect me to vote at all.

Let's say, just for the sake of argument, that I'm an ordinary Canadian voter, which I am, who is flatly opposed to nuclear arms for Canada, which I am. Who the heck am I going to vote for?

Smallmouser says we won't have any of these nicorium in Canada, sort of. But if a war starts, he'll blow the whistle and stop the play while we send a couple of trucks down to Bertolli or somewhere and pick up nuclear noses for those Bomcheeds or whatever they call them, that the Yanks unloaded on us. Makes me go all hot and cold when I think that I voted for that fellow one time.

Then there's Lesser Person. Lesser reminds me of the girl who sang in the choir and taught Sunday School, but took a drink one night, on a sleighride and now dances third from the left in the chorus line at the Purple Garter. Lesser, who once remarked recently that he'd rather be red than dead, who once won the Nobel Peace Prize, now wants to grind those hideous into the hot little hands of our gallant lads in uniform. How could I vote for him?

And of course we have that new party. Tweedledums vows that the party wouldn't touch nuclear arms a 10-foot Tory. Tweedledee says the party will accept limited use of nuclear arms. Tweedledum says in Tweedledee, "Comment ca va, Bob?" (English translation, "How's that again Bob?"). Tweedledee informs Quebec audience that the party wouldn't touch nuclear arms with an 11-foot Tory. I'd like them to be a little more explicit. Is it to be no nuclear arms for anybody, or just a sprinkling here and there, or no nuclear arms for Quebec?

There's only one party left. It's been left for years, and will probably be left again on election day. The grinning leader of the Socreps, somewhere in there among all his jokes, has stated unequivocally that his party is against nuclear arms at home or at school, at work or play. Does he mean that, because it's the only party that agrees with me, I have to vote Socialist, whether I want to or not?

I told you this one-issue business was ridiculous. The sooner the politicians get back to some good, old-fashioned election issues, the sooner we'll all know where we're at. You know the sort of thing I mean: higher salaries for everybody and lower taxes for all; free dentures for every body who believes in fluoridation; government subsidies for credit card carriers, free twist lessons for all over 80; a month's supply of oil, free on April Fool Day. We want something the voter can get his teeth into, get this tasteless, rubbery nuclear nonsense.

What about a shot in the arm for bilingualism, and thereby Canadian unity? More French in the schools would do it. And I don't mean text books. The party that promised it would import a few thousand Parisian models and plunk them on our teaching staffs would be doing more to create national unity than all the shredded wheat boxes printed in French and English between here and Trois Rivieres.

What I'm looking for is a straightforward party of the old school that will offer a solid program of the type we're familiar with: easier income and lowering the legal drinking age; free medical care for every man who can prove, in triplicate, that he's dying of an incurable disease; polygamy, with all household expenses to be shared equally by the working wives; a chicken in every Jaguar.

Nuclear arms my foot! If they keep up that foolishness, I'll vote (and I think I can swing my wife)

A FEW HARDISTY FLAKES

(By Pootie)

Signs of spring: Pootie has at long last come to life after missing the Press columns for many weeks. It is not because I have had such a busy winter but just that I cannot seem to adjust to my tour of duty which gives me Saturday off. Then was the day I usually set aside for pushing out my few lines of nonsense.

There should be no shortage of material to sound off about these days what with the coming federal election and the movement to clothe pots and animals appearing in public. I cannot take any first stand on the first subject, but the second one interests me, and I see in it a whole new way of life. As I sit here mulling the topic over in my muddled mind, I envision a new enterprise which could ultimately ruin the gross national product some umpteen percent, in the textile industry alone, not to mention the increased specialist workers required to train the animals to wear clothing. The following points will bear out the interesting facts which will follow; should this movement gain national support:

1. I've had quite a problem with prom's dogs insisting on confronting their daily routine on the P.O. door. Pants would either result in their owners having to change them during calling for mail or leaving them at home where I hope the urge is not so great. 2. All our local establishments, with sales rings, and which children attend, would be enforced to employ several more employees to assist in making the animals present able. This should add a little color to the ring, and possibly a little color to the clothes, as they were being constantly changed from one animal to another. 4, 4-H Beef and Dairy Clubs would have to establish an entire new training program. Pride would have to be given for the most original and colorful garb, and also for animals able to cope with the confinement of clothes when return called. The Royal Winter Fair would become sort of a fashion parade, establishing clothing trends of what the best-dressed animal should wear. 4. I do feel however, that it would really create a hardship on the operators of rodeos and stampeds. I can just picture the job the chute boys would have in putting a pair of pants on a snorting grass-fed steer or bull. You can just imagine how it would slow up the wild cow riding event, having to remove a four-barrelled brahrer before filling the pop bottle with milk, and then replacing same to keep everything prim and proper. I see small shows like our own going broke as added costs of clothing and help to handle them would over tax our budget. 5. Of course the grand old sport of horse racing would have to undergo some changes too. Can you picture 2 horses racing neck-to-neck in the home stretch, and one jockey having to pull his mount up to make adjustments to a slipping pair of horse pants? Boy the side-boys would go grey in no time flat.

I have hit on only a few of the interesting features in this new movement and I find it quite a refreshing subject in this area of heavy weapons with all its tensions, and I see in it a whole new field of enterprise, with the textile, cleaning, and laundry boys making millions.

Well readers enough space has been used for this edition, so I will sign thirty and get on with my sewing. I find it a bit tedious making a tuxedo for this pet flea of mine.

Stan Perka Says

What Canada needs most to-day is a STABLE government — one that both Canadians and others can have confidence in.

Let us take an honest look at all the parties: Neither S. C. nor the N. D. P. have had experience as a government. The Conservatives have lost the confidences of their best cabinet ministers. Only the LIBERAL party is ready to give CANADA the STABLE DECISIVE government it needs to-day.

I am proud to be the LIBERAL CANDIDATE for Battle River-Camrose.

FLEXI TOOTH*

HARVESTS MORE CROP • PICKS UP FEWER STONES

Field-tested last year on the prairies, this remarkable new, flexible harvesting tooth for combine and baler pick-ups has proven to be superior to conventional teeth. Flexi Tooth can be lowered closer to the ground. As a result Flexi Tooth harvests more crop per acre.

It picks up fewer stones — meaning less rejection at machine-damage to combine equipment. Mounted in rubber springs Flexi Tooth is quieter — minimizes dust. What's more, wild buckwheat is thrown off and doesn't "load" as it does with conventional tools.

MRS. F. SHERWOOD SR. Reporter

Friends gathered at Dr. MacQuarrie's last Wednesday at a farewell gathering for Dr. and Mrs. McLeod. A purse was presented to them.

Grade 9 Students of Killam played basketball against Mr. Chandler's team. Of course the boys just had to lose.

Gordie Hilker, skip, H. Hartt, Dr. MacQuarrie, B. McMahon and Arnold Saunders, really showed up down in Stettler when they won the Northern Alberta Championship of Royal Canadian Legion.

Mr and Mrs Gordon Hilker, Mr and Mrs. Norm Rose were up to watch the Edmonton Splel last Thursday.

Mr and Mrs Spinks and Dmitly of Edmonton were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pin.

The Presbyteon Club of Killam & guest were down Saturday to Camrose to spend the evening bowling.

Mr. and Mrs. De Abreu were Edmonton visitors over Sunday.

Charlene Costall of Camrose was visiting Corrine Fox over Sunday.

Mr. W. T. Pattifer of Calgary is visiting his son and family here.

Mr Bill Mappin of Rimbey was in town for a few days.

It was reported that the first crow was seen on Saturday.

Audrey Fuson had a few young ladies in on Saturday for a surprise party on Marion Anderson on the latter's birthday.

Betty and Blanche Brown had ten young ladies in on Saturday to enjoy their 19th birthday.

Alberta Rural Fire Protection Conference

The first Alberta Rural Fire Protection Conference was held recently in Red Deer. The conference attracted more than 130 fire chiefs, council members, reeves and directors of rural fire protection organizations from all areas of the province. The agenda ranged from the purposes of fire protection and organization, to types of equipment in use. Delegates reported on the organization, problems and successes of their local fire fighting units, and covered aspects of insurance rates and coverage.

Chairman of the two-day program, Fryer, Fire Commissioner A. Bridges, stated delegates were agreed that the objects of the conference were accomplished. There was a free exchange of information about rural fire protection plans now operating.

A prime resolution of the conference was a decision to request the Provincial Government Dept. of Municipal Affairs to resend the Town & Village Act to enable towns and villages to enter into joint ownership contracts with rural fire protection associations.

Killam made international news last week when Andy McLeod, son of Dr. McLeod became a suspected case of rabies. Serum was flown by the U. S. Consigment to the Queen Elizabeth. The canines in Killam are in quarantine until the tests come back from the lab this week.

Ralph Sorenson and John Kvill accompanied Mr. Art Bowman, S. C. candidate, to Lloydminster on Sat., where Mr. Bowman appeared on the T.V. program "TeleTools".

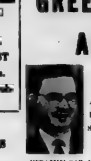
GREEN ACRES



By A. E. EDWARDS
Dist. Agriculturist
Sedgewick, Alberta

VITAMIN "A" AND BEEF CATTLE PRODUCTION!

Knowing an adequate supply of vitamin A is a problem in beef cattle production, it is not so much the case of what to give as how to give, and in what quantity. There would be no vitamin A problem if cattle had access to green forage all year round. Good green hay or silage should contain a fair amount of carotene but often our hays do not turn out to be in this category. Also cattle are now kept on dry feed in the feedlot longer and are fed higher grain and lower roughage rations than used to be the case. All these factors can and do cause a vitamin A deficiency.

According to W. C. Gordon, Live stock Supervisor with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, vitamin A is essential to an animal's resistance to infection and disease. It also influences the breeding ability of both males and females. Animals store vitamin A, manufactured from green plants rich in carotene, in their liver. Unfortunately, however, they cannot store enough to carry them through the five or six months of winter we have in this part of the country.

Dry stabilized vitamin A can be incorporated in protein pellets, cubes and blocks. It can also be made up as a premix which can be added to the ground or rolled grain. Then a daily allowance can be fed which will ensure the animals get a sufficient amount of this vitamin. If it is not practical to give cattle an winter grazing vitamin A daily, they can be given it once or twice a week. On this basis they should get hold of a week or a full week's requirements in one feeding, depending on the circumstances.

Mr. Gordon recommends giving feedlot cattle on a low hay ration approximately 10,000 I. U. of vitamin A per day. If they are not getting any hay, only straw, this should be increased to 20,000 I. U. Steers & open feedlot which are just being wintered may not need any vitamin A if the color and quality of their hay or silage is good. If the quality leaves anything to be desired, they should be given at least 5000 I.U. a day. Pregnant cows and heifers may not require any vitamin A supplement if their hay or silage is excellent in color and quality. If their roughage is not first class however, they should be given 20,000 to 30,000 I. U. daily. If it is not possible to get the roughage analyzed it is better to err on the safe side than to risk having cows born that are weak and lack disease resistance.

Dayland Wins First Game In B.R. Finals

Before nearly 400 fans, Leeuwerik of Dayland North Stars took a setup pass in front of the Hardisty net to score for an overtime win. Dayland took the first game of the final series 3-2 in Hardisty on Tuesday.

Despite "writery" ice both teams met the opponent with quick-passing thrusts, with Stonegarde's Butch Downey scoring on Alvin Miller's pass in 34 seconds of the opening whistle. Minutes later Vey Miller smothered a play when a Dayland player broke free. Goalie visitors in a holding penalty and Dayland pressed to the attack. Hanrahan and Brown drew minors and Smith drove into the Dayland corner, centered right in front. Gelka skated off a Dayland break-away as Miller gave the boys air-light backing in the nets. Dreyer and Robinson sailed in close but Alvin Miller's better moving stance was smothered by Dayland's goalie.

In the second period Gerbe set up two scoring plays, the first at 2.24 with Young the marksman; then Lewcowich got his first goal of the night at 16.52 to put the pressure on the Stamps. Alvin Miller juggled a rolling Dean right on the lapels of the crease, Norsie shot in too close and Young broke away for North Stars, Miller making a number of stops, and Smith drew penalties together, and Stampeders rode out the storm by icing the puck, with Dean Peters on defence. Gelka brought the crowd to its feet when a determined drive carried right in on the Dayland goal but he was stoning off. Then Dreyer was right in front, the puck came over to the corner and Smith tipped it out to Lehr who lobbed it in at 19.27 to tie the game. The fans went wild.

In the overtime both teams had good scoring chances wiped out by good goaltending. Bill Robinson counted in behind Gelka's play but couldn't get a shot away. Dayland got a two-man break but Miller stood the day. After a 10 minute break the teams resuming play, with a good natured crowd settling down to enjoy more fun, when Lewcowich spoiled their joy after 8.46 minutes.

The crowd filled out satisfied that both teams played good hockey. The officiating was a decided improvement over the previous game when 32 penalties were called.

Seated in the centre of the above picture is one of the Grand Old Pioneers of the Province, who homesteaded with her husband and family South of Sedgewick in 1906 — Mrs. B. M., fondly known as "Granny" Rombough, East, Great Grandmother. Seated on her lap is Baby Lorna Renshaw. Standing left to right are: Herbert H. Rombough, grandfather; Henry H. Rombough, great grandfather; (Victoria Karen Rombough) Mrs. Ernest Renshaw, all of Hardisty.

Local Girls In Top Five Alberta Tennis Players

Listed in second place behind only Daphne Barrow of Calgary, is Miss Diane Nordstrom of Sedgewick. The youthful sensation of Diane. This 15-year old, winner of the Alberta Women's Singles the past two years, gets no challenge for the number 2 spot. In fact, had she have played in more tournaments she would possibly have got my vote for the number one position. Diane is a half-volley expert, and so far other women play ers in Alberta have failed to master her game. She has a fine temperament for the game and is a real little fighter.

Listed in third place was Evelyn Arntzen of Sedgewick, of whom the editor says this: Another fine teenage player who comes from the same school as Diane. Evelyn plays a similar game to Diane, and, in fact, reached the final of the Alberta in 1961 and 1962. Unfortunately, like Diane Evelyn has been unable to attend any of the 1962 tournaments. She, too, plays the half volley, and along with Diane, forms a formidable women's doubles combination.

Dayland H & S Holds First Hobby Fair

DAYLAND — Dayland Home and School held their regular monthly meeting in the high school. This small, but vital group in the community has finished off a very interesting year by holding the first Hobby Fair ever to be held in Dayland. Some time into being in the minds of the executive and unashamed a t the February meeting by a panel consisting of Dr. Gretton, Mrs. Paul Schnell, Mr. Vern Harney and Mrs. Winchester, with Mrs. Keith Pointer as moderator.

Mr. Harney gave an inspiring talk and demonstration on painting. His display included numerous illustrations at differing stages of completion. He highly recommended the Basic Edition.

Mrs. Winchester brought dozens of craft projects to show. She explained instruction methods, and soon captured the enthusiasm of the group. Mrs. Schnell suggested that the Hobby Fair could be of benefit to teachers and pupils in providing the motivation so necessary to encourage the learning process. Dr. Gretton recommended the participation of old and young in hobbies, and stressed their importance to our well-being and happy social outlook.

The object of the Hobby Fair is to stimulate everyone to become more of a "doer" or participator, rather than a "watcher." Arts and crafts that are accepted as traditional may become sadly extinct unless an effort is made to revive them.

The individual questionnaire indicated that interest is limitless. Anyone may enter, and almost anything may be entered. Entry forms will soon be available at the school and other main centres. The Hobby Fair will be on view at the high school Gym on May 11th and 12th. Ribbon awards will be made by adjudicators.

Everyone is encouraged to attend the next Home and School meeting on April 8th. Further reports will be made on the Hobby Fair. An amendment program for all will present a "top" speaker in the curriculum and recreation trends today. Thinking people are interested in education. Don't become a vegetable.

DISTRICT HOCKEY

In district hockey the Bellshill Cowboys rode down the Battle Bend Light Horse 6-4, in possibly the last game of the season. The Cowboys strong was unofficially awarded the championship for his outfit, based on the Bender using ineligible players, when several Stampeders were sworn in for deputy duty. Two local Standings, and game previously. Hughenden played rushing hockey from the start, with Provost conserving strength as some of their players had not arrived on time. Hughenden went into the lead in the first period but Provost tied the score at 5 to 5. Provost pushed in the winner on a neat passing play early in the third period. After several attempts to get the equalizer Hughenden pulled the goalie. Rogers suffered a twisted leg in a collision and the Provost goalie got hit and had to retire for the rest of the game.

FOUR CANDIDATES SPEAK AT PUBLIC MEETING

(By A. W. E.)

Approximately 150 persons from surrounding areas attended the P.U.A. sponsored Joint Political Meeting in Sedgewick on March 19, when all four candidates in the Battle River-Camrose Fed. riding were given the opportunity to present the platforms and views of their parties. The P.U.A. in sponsoring the joint meeting, had requested the speakers to stick to agricultural matters and problems as closely as possible, and for this reason, very little else was presented, although some of the speakers did stray into other fields to some extent.

Mr. W. R. Hassell of Gadsby, and head of District 8 P.U.A., was the chairman for the meeting, with Mr. Bruce as timekeeper. Each speaker was allowed 20 minutes, plus a 5 minute rebuttal period.

Stan Parks — Liberal

Mr. Parks advocated a broader and more extensive program of Deficiency Payments in order to help relieve needing assistance; a Veterinary College for Alberta, where such a large number of people are educated. He also advocated more exports of beef cattle, and a larger sale of the Registered animals overseas. Mr. Parks spoke about assistance for Vertional Schools, which should be continued until these institutions become self-sufficient. He took issue with the need for the Trans-Canada Highway, as another route to the West Coast for northern areas, that industrial output and traffic may be channeled more efficiently. He said, in closing, that the great need for Canada today is a stable, decisive government, one which will be provided by the Liberal Party.

Alfred Aranson — N. D. P.

Mr. Arnston in his opening statements said the present election was due to the inclusive result of June 1962, and that we are still faced with the same problems. Farm prices are still the same, and stability of income still not assured. Production is great enough, the problem is marketing in an orderly manner. Farmers should be able to market at a fair & reasonable price based on the standards of today. He thought farmers should process some of their own products through Co-operatives, and have some say in their sale. He advocated free trade and exchange of goods with other countries, accepting their currencies in payment. Loans to young farmers should be based on individual initiative and the potential of the farm land. He said the very basis of this constituency is the farm family, parity prices and farm stability. He came out opposed to Nuclear weapons, and advocated that Canada should provide troops for the United Nations.

Arthur Bowman — Social Credit

Mr. Bowman opened his speech by heartening back to the so called "dirty thirties" and its hard times on the old farm, where he first built up his knowledge of agriculture. He then went on to say that the issue of this election is not Nuclear weapons but rather Unemployment, an Obsolete Financial System. Under a Farm Problems, Inadequate Welfare, and World Relations, for which the Old Line Parties have no answers. Social Credit has. It will tackle unemployment, relieve tight money & bring in a National Credit Commission. The Bank of Canada will create new purchasing power (money) to equal the value of production. University education will be available to all, whether they can afford to or go not; there will be technical training available for those not inclined toward an academic course; new industries and new businesses will be created by the Bank of Canada making more money and more credit available. He said there is more grain stored in Canada today than in 1942. Social Credit would expand trade. People must be fed. His party would introduce a 2-price system for wheat and parity prices as home; there would be a subsidy on export sales if prices were below the domestic price. Social Credit would trade internationally on hard currency, foreign currency or by barter. Crop Insurance would be extended to full coverage, and the farm loan plan broadened. Social Credit would balance the budget, lower taxes, encourage free enterprise and bring in an old age pensionable pension plan.

Cliff Smallwood — Conservative

Mr. Smallwood very fully outlined the agricultural program of the P.C. Government of the past six years. He said that the credit policy on our wheat sales resulted in those large sales being made, and from which a large payment to farmers will soon be made. Mr. Smallwood dealt quite forcefully with the attitude of the art parliament, and blamed the Liberal Party "with the help of a couple of grits" for the do-nothing session. He ridiculed the opposition for its "doom and gloom" preaching, and emphasized that Canada today is enjoying a time of the highest income and output in her history. He said that output is up all along the line, and the G.N.P. at an all-time peak. He mentioned the national debt, and said the only fair way to look at it was to compare it with the gross national product. In dealing with the nuclear issue Mr. Smallwood said it arrangements are changing rapidly and that much of what we have now is obsolete.

Question Period

Nothing much really came out of the rebuttal period. Mr. Smallwood then went on to say that the issue of this election is not Nuclear weapons but rather Unemployment, an Obsolete Financial System. Under a Farm Problems, Inadequate Welfare, and World Relations, for which the Old Line Parties have no answers. Social Credit has. A PROGRAM FOR CANADA!

In these days of muddled-up thinking by the electors, and trespassing by central governments into realms that it should avoid, along with the prevalent popular idea that when governments hand out something, it is free, it is refreshing to observe what a contemporary writer has to say about a program for Canada. It is a program that may not be popular in all its ideas, but yet one which deserves close attention. It is this: 1. There should be an effort to get back as closely as possible to the sound principle that governments should govern and stay clear of matters outside the realm of government. Canada's government follies are sufficient unto themselves and it certainly should not contribute to other follies by trying to administer affairs beyond its proper sphere. 2. Canada should be an independent nation, and maintain that independence, but its foreign policy should be one of friendship and frankness with other countries. 3. The central government should again study the act of confederation and rediscover that provinces have their own rights and their own privileges, and their independence should not be undermined by intruding on it own matters. 4. Government should remember that its solvency depends on not spending more than it has. In the long run governmental solvency is the same as the solvency of the citizen. When more is spent in one year, it has to be offset by a cutback in expenditures in another year. Inflation is nothing more than robbery of the people.

WHAT SHOULD VOTING AGE BE?

Two of the provinces of Canada have set the voting age at eighteen, and current agitation is for the same situation in the federal field. At the outset this proposal appears shocking to some, for, they maintain, we cannot expect young people of eighteen to have a mature enough knowledge or political judgement matching that which we attribute to older people. That statement in itself is open to question — to wit, the political mess Canada has been enjoying the past few years, and is still embroiled in today. Young people of eighteen are eligible for military service, civil empioyment, etc., and perhaps should have a voice in selecting governments. Who knows, they may do a better job of it than we have done.

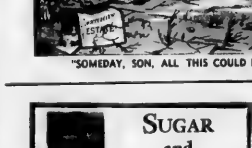
"SOMEDAY, SON, ALL THIS COULD BE YOURS . . ."



SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

There's nothing quite as destroying as being torn between two women.

Some fellows are ripped asunder by a wife pulling in one direction, a mother handing in the other. Other chaps are split down the middle by the big decision: should I marry Mabel, who is good, kind, sweet, homely, dull and crazy about me; or should I run after Tessie, who is bad, cruel, mean, eye-popping, exciting, and couldn't care less if I dropped dead?.

I remember one time when I was about 18. It may be hard to believe, for those who know me now, but that was the year I had two girls keen on me. At the same time. I was pretty fond of both. One was sweet and innocent . The other was a red-haired with a wicked shape.

I don't know how it happened, but by some miracle of mismanagement, I made a date with both girls for the same night, same time. When I realized the pickle I was in, I knew that each would be furious if I stepped out with the other one. So I took the sensible, cowardly way out, stood them both up, and went to a country dance with the boys. Both girls recovered from the blow with amazing speed and eventually had the good sense to marry somebody with some sense.

It is only we cowards who get into these jams. And I'm in another one, right now. This time, my wife and daughter are tearing me to ten. They've worse than politicians. Both heads my ear with intensity and the other isn't around, trying to persuade, bribe or inveigle me into joining her side.

It's all over those crazy kittens. Four more arrived two days ago. It's the fourth batch in two years. Our cat, needless to say, is a real sex-pot.

The first batch was no event. The kids witnessed the wonders of birth. There was tremendous excitement. The kittens were nourished and cherished. The new was fed daintles. I brought cigars.

When the kittens were weaned, I had to talk with my daughter. She wept, but agreed that we might have a problem if we kept them all. I put an ad in the paper. It was on a lofty tone, demanding a good home, suggesting that nothing but the best would do. We got rid of them all.

Next time around, a little of the gloss had worn off. It took two ads in the paper, to get rid of only two kittens. Finally, a little boy turned up. He wanted only one, but I told him they were inseparable twins, bullied him, threatened him, enjoled him, and finally, he took them, when I gave him half a dollar apiece.

The third batch brought chinaware from the Old Bathtowe. And I don't blame her much. Have you ever tried to get dinner with four meowing little heads tottering about underfoot, widdling on the floor every step? Even their own mother became fed up with the grocery-gutted little punks, who gave her never a moment's rest.

Three ads in the paper produced one reluctant customer. My sister came to visit, and, her normal good sense destroyed by a pre-dinner martini, in which I craftily tripled every thing except the olive, she was a fairly easy victim. That left two kittens. We couldn't move them. The market for kittens was apparently saturated. There were two alternatives — kittens or wife. Kittens won't cook.

All right. I admit it. I did it. I still shudder when I think of it. I've never been the same since. But I don't want to go into details. Just call me Eichmann for short.

Never again, I swore silently. Especially after my daughter came down in the morning, immediately spotted the empty box, pointed her finger at her parents, and screamed, "Murderers!"

The battle is on now. The old Trouble 'n Strife says they've got to go. Young Kim is watching me like a hawk, and reminding me of my past perfidy.

I haven't the nerve to murder them. I haven't the nerve not to get rid of them, somehow. The only way out, as far as I can see, is to take them in a basket, suitably decorated, with an appropriate note inside, and leave them on the doorstep of our next-door neighbor, whose big, black tom cat is at the root of the whole dilemma.

OBITUARY

JOHN ANDERSON

Funeral services were held on Monday, March 18th in the Sedgewick United Church, with Rev. J. Post in charge, for Mr. John Anderson, an old-timer of the Goose Creek, Lougheed and Sedgewick districts. Pallbearers were, Jack Broadfoot, Artie Adamson, Stuart Caldwell, George Baldwin, Hunter White and Norman McKenna. Burial was in Sedgewick Cemetery. Fee and Sons Directors.

John Anderson was born on January 9th, 1886 at Selkirk, Scotland. He Served there for a while, emigrating to the U. S. A. in 1905. In 1907, he was married to Elizabeth Haliburton, and in 1911 went back to Scotland, after following year emigrating to Canada, where he settled in the Goose Creek district South of Lougheed. Mr. Anderson farmed there until he retired in 1960 to the Village of Sedgewick.

In his younger and active years, Mr. Anderson was interested in all civic and community affairs, serving for some years on school boards, as director of Goose Creek Fair and as [illegible] the United Church. Besides those activities Mr. Anderson took an active part in all community affairs and the social life of the community, during which years he established a large number of friends and even as seniors, who will be grieved at his passing.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his loving wife, one son George of Sedgewick; two daughters Jean (Mrs. R. Parrish) of Sedgewick, and Betty (Mrs. Harry Person) of Edmonton, five grandchildren, Hunter White and Norman McKenna, a daughter in 1939.

Mr. Anderson passed away on Friday, March 15th, 1963.

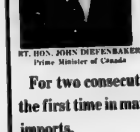
In 1.57 Mr. and Mrs. Anderson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, surrounded by their grandchildren, relations and 170 friends and neighbors.

The Community Press joins with a host of acquaintances in extending sympathy to the family. The local district have suffered the loss of one of its original settlers, and one who was instrumental in bringing progress and stability to the area.

The large number of floral tributes and memorial donations testified to the esteem in which Mr. Anderson was held in the community.

LENT BLESSING. Pope John XXIII smiles and blesses the crowd from his limousine during his visit to the Church of Santa Sabina in Rome, in connection with ceremonic celebrating lent.

Canada is GOING AHEAD



RT. HON. JOHN DIEFENBAKER
Prime Minister of Canada

We have had the fastest rate of growth in 1962 of any country in the Free World.

We have the highest national production, the greatest trade expansion, the largest labour income, the most farm income in the history of our country.

During the month of February, 1963, there were 38,000 fewer unemployed than during February, 1962, AND there were 111,000 more people working in this same period.

Canada had the lowest cost of living rise in 1962 of any country in the Western World.

For two consecutive years, Canada enjoyed a trade surplus, the first time in many years that the exports were larger than imports.

HARDISTY HI-LITES

Mrs. P. Dragor spent the weekend in Calgary with her mother.

The spring tea season is starting with the approach of Easter. Two annual affairs are coming up.

The Legion and Auxiliary met jointly at the Hut on Thursday, After the individual meetings, the two groups united to discuss problems of common interest. Plans were finalized for the big show; also for catering to a dinner in April. Arrangements for the Career Courtesy were tabled to a later date. It is planned to hold the joint meetings for a time on a brief basis. Lunch was served.

Dr. G. R. Murray, with David and Jeanette, were Hardisty visitors for the week end.

Barney Hertlieres is undergoing treatment at the Col. Mewburn Hospital in Edmonton.

Mr and Mrs Anderson, nee Helen Hartley, and children of Quesnel, B. C., were in Hardisty for a few days to attend Mrs. Hartley's funeral.

Mrs. Walter Reeves was the lucky winner of the Purity Jolly Miller cash prize this week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hiava, a son. Congratulations.

Archdeacon V. P. Cole visited St. Mark's Parish on Thursday evening, meeting members of the congregation in the parish hall.

The Variety Show "Hits and Misses Through the Years" presented by the Legion Auxiliary, played to a packed house on Friday. Featuring costumes and music from 1900 to the present, the program opened with a fashion show covering the period. Musical selections ranged from cowboy to classic, with talent from outlying districts supplementing locals. A skit presented by Hardisty's own "Hill Billies" ended the show in a burst of hilarity.

GRASSHOPPER CONTROL 1963!

According to the Alberta Grasshopper Forecast map, 30,000 square miles of the province will be threatened by grasshoppers this year. This represents a 25 percent increase over the 1962 infestation area. Mr. J. B. Gurba, Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control with the Alberta Dept. of Ag., reports that grasshoppers are expected in varying outbreak numbers south of a line down through Chauvin, Lougheed, Stettler and Innisfail. In the northern half of this area, large regions are rated as severe and moderate. The infestation is rated as "light" for the region south of Calgary-Brooks-Schuler, except for a "moderate" infestation in the Pt. McLeod-Pincher Creek area.

Mr. Gurba says the clear-winged grasshopper, which hatches in grass and will move into grain fields, will be the main species to infested areas.

The 1963 forecast map has been distributed to all municipal districts and D. A's. offices in the provinces, as well as to all grain agents in the outbreak areas. Farmers should check these maps for expected conditions in their districts. Cropping, cultural and chemical operations can then be planned accordingly.

The Dept. of Ag. and M. D's. will be stockpiling insecticides in outbreak areas for distribution to farmers at cost. Under the grasshopper control policy, dieldrin will be available for cereal and non-feed crops; Malathion and Dimethoate will be supplied for pasture, forage & other feed crops because these chemicals do not leave residues in meat, milk.

According to Mr. Gurba, printed grasshopper control recommendations will be available soon. All farmers in anticipated infestation areas are advised to become well informed on them and to be prepared to take necessary action.

RUBBER TANKERS!

"Pillow" tanks which hold up to 10,000 gallons of liquid are being manufactured by a British firm in the Midlands. When empty these tanks, which are made of a tough rubberized fabric, can be rolled and unrolled like a rug. According to information received by Alberta's Extension Engineer, British farmers are using these tanks on flat-bottomed vehicles to transport water to their livestock. They can also be used to hold oils and fuels as well as a wide variety of chemicals, acids and other liquids.

MRS. F. SHERWOOD S.R. Reporter

The IODE met at the home of Mrs M. E. Stefanic with a good attendance. Plans were made for the zone meeting in Killam on June 19th; also arrangements for the members to attend the Provincial annual meeting in Edmonton in April. Mrs. George Stewart was appointed delegate. Mrs. Geo. McCabe read a paper on the Constitutional Commission in our country. The business of the meeting closed and the hostess served lunch.

Mrs. Bessie Brooks, Mr. H. Bennett and Mr and Mrs Mac Backen were in Calgary last week attending the sessions of the Rebekah Assembly and Grand Lodge IOOF. Mrs. Backen was attending as Inside Guardian of the Assembly, while Melvin was acting in the same capacity in the Grand Lodge. Mrs. Boyda was representing Silver Link Lodge and Mrs. Henry Bennett represented the Oddfellows Lodge No. 76.

On Sunday at the morning service at Knox United, the Baptismal service was held for Donald Frank, son of Cpl. and Mrs. Bob McTavish, and Stewart Douglas, son of Mr & Mrs Douglas Forster.

Jim McMahon took part in the school table tennis finals. Jim won first in the second event.

Bill Dunham of Edmonton paid a short visit to Killam on Tuesday, taking his mother back to Edm. At the week end Mrs. Roy Dunham and Darwin of Athabasca and Bill and Mrs. Dunham Sr. were all home, and then Mrs. Dunham returned to Athabasca with Mrs. Roy.

Stan Perka Says

Farmers are the backbone of Western Canada. We need a just return for our hours of labor. We need a fair price for the things we have in soil. We need equalization payments we can DEPEND on for many of our products instead of the unreliable, so-called deficiency payments. We need a VETERINARY COLLEGE in ALBERTA.

These are some of the things I pinned to work for, if elected.

(Inserted by the Battle River-Camrose Federal Liberal Association).

THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS— FREE ENTERPRISE ELECTRICITY!
It seems hard to believe that anyone would want to undermine the free enterprise spirit that built Alberta. Yet there is a small minority who wish to turn our vital electric utilities into a government monopoly.
It is claimed that they are monopolies of necessity – and might as well be government monopolies! Nothing could be more misleading.
Right now, Alberta has the best of two worlds – free enterprise initiative, plus judicious control by the present government. The operation of investor-owned utilities is closely scrutinized by government bodies, who regulate such matters as consumer rates and overall planning. Uncontrolled power monopolies simply don't exist.
Government-owned power would be such an uncontrolled monopoly. It would be called "public power", but the present right of appeal to the Public Utilities Board would be lost.
A few people might think this better than the present system of free enterprise initiative with judicious government control. Some might . . . but do you?

WEDDING · BELLS

ALDERDICE - RENSHAW

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Marten United Church on Sat. March 2nd, at 2:30 p.m., when Pearl Agnes, daughter of Mrs. Walter Wilson, of Alix, and the late Mr. S. Renshaw, became the bride of Kenneth Norman Alderdice of Hardisty, on of Mr. Annie Alderdice, and the late Mr. Joe Alderdice.

Rev. W. S. Pederson performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. V. Renshaw, the bride wore a white length gown of white silk organza fashioned by pointed sleeves. She wore a finger-tip veil of silk illusion which was held in place by a crown of purses bereals. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss. Henrietta Widaker attended her friend as bridesmaid. She wore a white length gown of nylon silk organza and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. Frank Alderdice attended his brother as best man and the ushers were Mr. Norman Brythand, brother of the groom, and Mr. Alvin Mathew of Lougheed.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Porter O'Reilly and Miss Patsy O'Reilly sang "A Wedding Prayer".

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. A. W. Widaker where the guests met the bride, to which the groom shly replied.

Open House was held in the evening when many friends called and Pearl called to offer their congratulations.

The happy couple will make their home on the groom's farm south of Hardisty. —Alliance Enterprise

E. T. Ericksons Hold Golden Wedding

KILLAM — Mr. and Mrs. Eric T. Erickson of Killam celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary here recently when a reception was held for them in the Baptist Church basement. Thirty-one guests sat down to a lovely dinner served by the ladies of the church. Present also was Mrs. Ida Combs who had been the bridesmaid. A tiered wedding cake baked by the couple's daughter Violet, graced the head table, flanked by flowers and tall lighted tapers. The eldest son Ted acted as M. C. and congratulations were read from the Lieut.-Gov., J. Percy Page, Premier E. C. Manning and the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. Following a few enjoyable speeches, a gift from the family was presented to the couple by their son LeRoy.

Open house was held in the evening from 7 to 9 in the church where many lovely gifts were received. Assisting to unwrap and display the gifts were two granddaughters Gail and Shereen. Another granddaughter, Sandra was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Chris Erickson and Mrs. Lars Erickson poured tea and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Erickson were married in Westbrook, Minnesota, and settled in the Killam district in the year 1913. They have six sons and 2 daughters, all of whom were present, and 14 grandchildren. The sons are, Ted and Ebert of Calgary, LeRoy & Arnold of Edmonton, Selmer of Grande Prairie and Delbert of Vancouver .Daughters are Ms. Roland Hiller (Violet) of Edmonton and Mrs. Ben Countie (Elaine) of Beaverson Creek.

130 Attend Recreation Banquet

Staff Writer

Hardisty — An estimated 130 local and district people attended the Recreational banquet on March 28th, sponsored by the Hardisty Fund Raising Committee. The affair took place in the new spacious waiting room of the spanking new 8-sheet curling rink. Serving of the large crowd was handled by the Hardisty Teen Town.

Johnny Goltz, M. C., who is also Vice-Pres., of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the large crowd and thanked all those who had worked to put it on and make it a success. He outlined the creation of the curling rink from the planning stage in its completion up to date. It started in 1960 the M. C. said, when a Grant was available, a Rec. Com. set up, and a survey taken to find the best way to use it. The decision was to build the new curling rink, with an added waiting room to serve both the curling rink and the arena.

The new structure has, besides 2 large waiting rooms, a fully modern kitchen, up-to-date heating units, plumbing, a spacious room upstairs overlooking the curling ice, where a first class view is obtained.

Mrs. Brenda Lukens, chairman of the fund raising committee and the Chamber president, outlined the various sources of revenue, showing that many organizations had helped in providing money, as well as many individuals and groups from other areas.

A review of the financial report listed assets at $68,000.00 with the liabilities only $7,000.

Other speakers included, Mrs. Vera Mendrick who outlined the activity of the booth section; Lou Gelka of the building committee; Walter Kozal for the Snowgooser Hockey Club; Ken Dreyer who spoke on sports in general and the ways of making use of the buildings the year around.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Laurie Rasmussen, manager of the Gardens and the new Sportex Centre in Edmonton. Mr. Rasmussen spoke on the Government Recreation Grants and Fitness Programs, and said that in order to get in under this program a community must have a committee set up to work with the program, following which money and assistance in planning and programming would be available. He also mentioned that a two-year training program would be instituted in Jelsevoy and train local directors. The speaker stressed the need for continued activity and warned those in attendance not to relax now that the building was completed. Ways must be found to keep the building busy, for it will not pay its way being used only 2 or 3 months in a year. He advised the extension of the season by the installation of artificial ice, allowing winter activities to extend from October to April. In closing he congratulated the community on its fine arena and curling rink centre.

The fund raising committee outlined its summer program, which includes a car wash, ball game, a calf raffle and a number bingo.

Mr. Derrek Lund of Canada Ice Machine Co. was introduced to the meeting, and asked to outline costs and methods of installing artificial ice. Mr. Derrik set the price at $14,000.00, complete with sub-contracts, and said this could be financed over a three year period. He outlined the differences in electric and propane machines in cost and installation.

Before the meeting closed a motion was passed that the artificial ice project be further investigated and if found feasible that the committee proceed. Those present indicated a majority desire for the project.

Library News

An Extension Library Box has arrived and will be in the Sedgewick Library on Saturday. New books for Teens and Adults have been ordered and should be in the library by May. There are still some library books overdue. Please check your book shelves. — Dorothy Storey, Library Chairman.

Crime Prevention Book by R. C. M. P.

"Crime Prevention" is the subject of Booklet No. 7, which has been prepared for distribution by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, under the general title of "Crime In Your Community".

The R. C. M. P. instituted this series of booklets several years ago & they have dealt with such matters as Armed Robbery, Bad Paper, etc. The results have shown that an alert and well informed public can, in certain categories of crime, make it very difficult for the criminal. The booklet is made up of illustrations, in Silhouette, and is directed to the householder and the business man.

Booklet No. 7 leaves law enforcement as requiring the support of all citizens. It stresses the importance of preventive ideas and contains a number of suggestions which, if observed, will help to reduce the incidence of crime. This booklet will be distributed across Canada by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Merna 4-H Club

MERNA — On March 12th the Merna 4H Beef Club held their second community night in the Merna Gym. The program was opened by the singing of O Canada followed by the 4H Pledge. Then followed a short business meeting which consisted of a report on the year's activities, treasurer's report and secretary's report. The business part of the meeting was the discussion of a club tour. The places to be toured were the Pinnacle Farm in Sedgewick, Silverwood's Dairy, a Packing Plant, and if time permits, a play or hockey game. Following this were four public speakers, including Gail Bowness who will enter the Interclub Speaking Competition in Sedgewick. A debate of four members on the subject of a Central Packing Plant.

Films for the kiddies and adults were supplied. Then the members served a delicious lunch. We would like to thank all those who turned out to support the project.

FARM CREDIT MEETING HELD

SEDGEWICK — A well attended meeting on Farm Credit was held in the Sedgewick Community Hall, on Friday, March 29th. The meeting was sponsored by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, the Sedgewick Board of Trade and the local P.U. A. The lack of farm credit is often one of the biggest problems of the farmer, and the speakers outlined some of the ways in which a farmer can obtain credit when it is needed.

FARM PURCHASE BOARD

The Alberta Farm Purchase Board Act was passed in 1957 with the purpose of assisting farmers in acquiring economically sized operations. This is done by adding to existing property or by outright purchase of a sufficiently large unit.

The Board will assist in the purchase of a farm valued at up to $50,000.00 of which the purchaser must put up a down payment of 20%. The balance is payable over a 30-year period with interest at 5% including fire life insurance.

To qualify for a loan a purchaser must be: 1. A Canadian citizen or a British Subject; 2. 21 years of age; 3. Have resided in Alberta for three years; 4. Be a bona fide farmer, or intend to become one; 5. Have three years farming experience; 6. Must have access to equipment; 7. An economic sized unit is to be established.

During 1962 there were 423 loans approved; and most of the ones that were turned down was because the unit was not considered to be large enough to provide an economically feasable operation.

A prospective purchaser may obtain more information by contacting the Secretary of the M. D. Flagstaff.

FARM CREDIT CORPORATION

The Farm Credit Act was passed by the Canadian Parliament in 1959, and is under the administration of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

The Act provides that loans shall be made only to farmers whose experience, ability and character are such as to warrant the belief that the farm will be operated successfully. T. e aims and objectives are to assist Canadian farmers in reorganizing their industry into economically feasable units.

Long-term credit extended by the Corporation is not intended to replace short-term credit offered by banks and other financial institutions, but as an addition to those sources of credit.

The main purposes for which loans are made are: 1. To assist land & to erect or modernize farm buildings; 2. To purchase basic-herd livestock; 3. Any purpose which the Corporation may consider necessary for the organization and operation of an economic unit, such as clearing and breaking, drainage, etc.

To qualify for a loan the applicant's principle occupation must be farming. He must own or propose to purchase t. e farm offered to security and be engaged in or about to engage in operating that farm. The loans are available also to "co-operative farm associations" or a "family farm operation". The applicant must have 5 years farming experience and be over 21 years of age.

Hardisty H. and S.

HARDISTY — The March meeting of the Hardisty Parent Teacher Home and School was held in the school. President Aimee Moody was in the chair. After the reading of the minutes there was a discussion on the forthcoming conventions in April.

Twelve dollars of the profit from the card party was donated to the school library Fund. A library committee was selected to meet periodically with the teachers and go over the book selections. The committee is as follows: Primary Grades, Mrs. P. Mearns; Intermediate, Mrs. Wood; Junior High, Mrs. E. Moody.

For the April program a group of men are coming to speak on "Fire Prevention In Our Schools."

For the program there were two very interesting speakers from Hugh McKee Home and School. Ms. Lara Soudel delegate to a Workshop, gave a condensed version of the workshop as well as holding an experiment in communication. Mrs. Clarence Bergen, delegate to a H. & S. Workshop in Banff, spoke on programming & The Home and School of Tomorrow. Both talks were extremely interesting.

Lunch concluded the evening. The next meeting is April 8th.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

something unprecedented, uncalled for, and unmistakable is happening to our good, grey Canadian people. Their feelings are showing. One of the things I've always admired about us Canadians has been our dour lack of response to any of the usual standard emotional stimulants: Queen, country, flag, anthem, politics, religion.

Latin races are expected to be excitable, emotional, mobile and revolutionary. Nobody is surprised when a Tunisian wants to beat you up one minute and sob over a song the next. Scandinavians are noted for their moodiness. Slavs are explosive. Asians form shouting mobs. Africans are unpredictable.

Not us. At least we never were before. Compared to us, the Yanks have always been a wildly sentimental nation. Even the British, who pride themselves on their reserve are sloppy and sentimental compared to us. Or at least they used to be.

We have always been cheesy, corny, surly, cursory, independent and deeply unsentimental people. We have been unimpressive, perhaps, but also unimpressed.

Other nations have had processions and parades. The people turn out at hundreds of thousands to cheer at the tops of their lungs, wave flags, surge against the police lines.

We have had our parades, too. If it's not a nice enough day to go for a picnic, or play golf, or go fishing, or work in the garden, Canadians will turn out in their hundreds for a parade.

They will stand in their dusty ranks, stonily watching anything from a prime minister to a Santa Claus parade. Occasionally, if it's the Queen or Winston Churchill, or somebody of equivalent rank, there might be a goodly patter of handclapping. Once in a while, some eccentric will actually cheer — one little hurray! He subsides immediately, heavily embarrassed, while everyone in his vicinity stares at him coldly.

In other countries, university students write poetry, join parties, man the barricades, march on the palace, die for their ideals. In this country, the university students write letters home for money, go to parties, man the bars, march to the Polish Hotel, and die at a ripe old age, usually for their high living.

But things are changing. The solemn, cynical Canadian is being swept out of his quiet backwater, into the seething mainstream. His ink-like blood is shed. Strange, savage snarls are escaping his thin lips. Deep within him, a Beast is being aroused. He's praying up the stoutest of his pride to hurl at somebody, though he isn't quite sure who it is.

Gone is his decent reserve. Vanished is his phlegmatic calm. Ripped are ribbons in his ancient fear that somebody might think he was displaying emotion. A new, strange violence surges through his knotted veins. There's going to be terror in the land. I can feel it.

"Nonsense," you say. Oh, yes, I can hear you sniffle and poppycock," you snort. All right, don't believe me. But don't cry I didn't warn you.

Just take a look at your daily newspapers. It's all right there. Your fellow Canadians have gone haywire. "I'M JEERED BY STUDENTS," says the headline. "RECK-LESS DISRUPT MEETING," it says. "SPEAKER HOWLED DOWN" it gloats. Isn't that enough evidence for anybody? The Canadian public, famous for its timid, unpacific calm during election campaigns, is aroused. The tiger is loose.

Can you actually conceive the picture of an honest, placid Canadian standing up and asking questions at a political meeting, unless he was drunk? Can you imagine sensible Canadians rotary, cheering, except at a hockey game?

The 1963 election is going to go down in history. It may not solve a thing, politically. But emotionally it will symbolize the time when the wild, free spirit of the Canadian people burst loose and we were rewarded for the tempestuous passic, romantic race we really are.

It's beautiful, somehow. And after generations there was nobody like us. And now we're just going to be like everybody else.

GREEN ACRES

Dist. Agriculturist
Sedgewick, Alberta

IF YOU DON'T FOLLOW IT YOU CAN BE IN TROUBLE!

The label on any pesticide container is like a doctor's prescription, if you don't follow it you can be in serious trouble. These instructions have been put there to ensure the wise & safe use of the chemical.

P. J. Proctor, Chief, Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control Alberta Dept. of Ag., stresses that the directions on the label of any insecticide container are based on extensive testing. Among the factors tested are the toxicity level and the length of time it takes for the residue, that part of the chemical which remains on the plant, to break down and disappear. These are calculated from rates or dosages which will effectively control an insect pest. In addition other aspects of safety are worked out on the usage and intake of foods eaten in an average human diet. In other words, a level of residue is determined in each food and the total intake from all foods must not exceed the safety margins laid down by the Canada Food and Drug authorities. A safety factor of about 100 is used to further ensure human safety.

If more than the recommended chemical rate is used or if not enough time is allowed to elapse for the residue to disappear before the produce is eaten by livestock or humans, then these calculations will be thrown out of balance. The same situation will exist if chemical applications are repeated without label authorization, and if an insecticide is used on crops or vegetables for which it has not been recommended.

Never buy a chemical unless the container states that it is for the use you intend, warns Mr. Proctor. For example, label recommendations for dieldrin state that this insecticide can be safely used on cereal crops for grasshopper control. However, if it were to be used on forage, which is not an approved use, the following chain of events could occur. Cattle eating this treated forage would absorb any dieldrin which remained on the plants and store it in their body fat, or, in the case of milk cows, in their butterfat. Dieldrin, added to the human diets by its presence in milk or meat fat, might exceed the total of safety levels calculated for other foods. Therefore, meat fat or butterfat, which contains dieldrin is said to be chemically contaminated and liable to be confiscated.

To protect the public from chemically contaminated food, all foods are federally inspected & analyzed. If an excess of any chemical is found, the produce is rejected and the producer can be prosecuted. Mr. Proctor reports there has never been a case where a chemical, properly used, has caused a fatality but there have been cases in North America where the misuse of chemicals have resulted in illness or death.

Anyone who feels upset or irritable after using a pesticide of any kind should go to a doctor immediately, taking the container of the chemical with him so that the doctor can tell by the information on the label what pesticide is use. Sometimes pesticides are more hazardous when absorbed through the skin than when taken orally. The label will also state whether protective clothing is necessary.

In one way the old insecticides were safer than our present day chemicals. Those of 20 years ago were usually lethal and were regarded with a healthy respect for this reason. Today's chemicals, however, can be just as lethal if misused. Although the effect may not be as dramatic, the end result can be the same.

DISPOSING OF STRAY ANIMALS

Alberta's Livestock Commissioner, W.H.T. Mead, reports that there is a growing tendency for residents of municipalities, counties and improvement districts to seek other methods than local impoundment for disposing of stray animals. An increasing number of people are taking stray animals found on their premises directly to local markets without claiming any proceeds, instead of impounding them. This action is only legal in areas in local improvement districts which have no pound, when the owner of the animals is not known and when permission has been obtained from the local R.C.M.P.

Pound keepers have reported that more people are now allowing stray animals to lang around their premises for longer periods. In many cases this is unfair to the owner because it deprives him of the chance of locating them in his local district pound. Also he does not have the opportunity of finding them through local advertising required for all impounded animals.

Mr. Mead requests anyone who finds a stray animal to take prompt and proper action rather than leave it in his herd for an indefinite length of time. Somebody is probably looking for it.

ARRIVAL

It was the usual Southern Manitoba fall day when we arrived at the farm, September 1928. By "we" I mean my husband, myself and three youngsters, namely, Debbie, age 3, Rowland, age 2 and Andy, a bouncing baby of eight months. The day we arrived, my husband, (Ded), as I shall call him through-out my stories, hired out to a farmer north of town to run their threshing outfit. So the children and I were left alone from weekend to weekend, as he just came home Saturday nights after the day's threshing was done, to bathe and change his clothes, then was away again for another week, by Sunday afternoon.

I was new in the neighborhood only being slightly acquainted with one family, so I spent many a lonely hour during the fall. However, with threshing finally wound up we started to prepare for winter. I have often wondered why the winters from 1928 to 1950 or a bit later were so much colder, with far more snow than we have now. The temperature at times would reach 50 below, with that co l d wind, of course. One winter it was drifted as high as the eaves of the house.

Like so many "new" farmers in those days, we were extremely short of cash, therefore, our fuel for cooking and heating these huge rooms had to be green poplar, and I do mean green. (Incidently, we managed to live in that house before that winter was over). I have often remarked since, that we raised the older children on good old-fashioned oat-meal porridge, HudSon's Story of the Bible, and green poplar.

Getting that wood home was a real Herculean task. Ded would get up at around four in the morning, feed and harness the team, milk our one cow, feed the two pigs and about 20 hens, while I was getting his breakfast and putting up his lunch, (Besides the sandwiches etc., I always used a big pail of tea, as he did enjoy his hot tea when working in the bush). One day, as usual, he made a fire in the bush (which was a chore in itself as his hands would be so cold he had difficulty finding and scratching a match) and finally with a real blaze going he set the pail of tea on the fire, as well as his lunch, which was frozen solid. This time I'm not forgotten to loosen the lid of the pail ,and as he was stirring up the fire, pop went the lid. He managed to save most of the tea, but was thankful it hadn't popped in his face.

He never arrived home before dark so I would feed the children, that have been in bed, Harvey provided. Ded I would put do the chores (as we were afraid to leave the young steers alone in the house) I would run out every few minutes to the corner of the house and listen for the squeal of the sleigh runners on the snow, or for Ded urging the poor old tired team on, or possibly to hear the rattling of harness chains. As soon as I heard him coming I would rush around and make a hot supper, and by the time he had unharnessed and fed the team I had fresh cooked potatoes and meat, etc., with a big pot of hot tea.

As our horses were too old & thin to stand the 24 mile round-trip each day, Ded just made three trips each week. This arrangement gave him a chance to saw up those green poles (by hand) to do for two or three days each time.

We had quite a system of preparing those green poles so they would burn. Ded would saw it with a buck-saw, split the thicker pieces, and bring them into the kitchen, piling it on one side of the cook stove. I would fill the oven with the wet, green sticks, and so they would dry out I would pile them on t'o other side of the stove, filling the oven with more of the steaming pieces. By doing this day and night we managed to pull through our first winter on the farm.

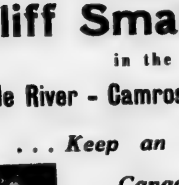
Canadian Farm Economy!


RT. HON. JOHN DIEFENBAKER
Prime Minister of Canada
THE 1962 NET FARM CASH INCOME WAS OVER $3,080 MILLION - AN ALL TIME RECORD HIGH.
Progressive Conservative Government increased Canada's share of the world wheat market from 30 p.c. to 35 p.c.. Agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton called on the farmers to "grow more grain". The sales record was achieved by hard work, good salesmanship and credit sales. These credit commitments have been honored 100 percent.
In 1962 the Liberals predicted that Canada was losing world markets, that Canadian exports would be down, that devaluation would cause a crushing increase in prices. They were WRONG on ALL counts. They MISLED CANADIANS.

The total of federal, provincial & municipal spending on state health and welfare programs will be $3.3 billion in Canada in the coming year — there is a "statutory" or automatic increase of about $350,000,000 in such spending each year.

In the 1962 national election there were 123,143 votes cast in the urban riding of York-Scarborough in Ontario, compared to only 5,000 votes in the rural riding of Hes-de-la- Madeleine, in Quebec.

The new vocational school in Camrose is nearing completion. In order to make the best possible use of this school throughout the whole area, it is very important that dormitories should also be built for the use of students from outside of Camrose. As a member of the new Liberal Government, I will work for additional federal grants for the building of student residences in connection with the Camrose Vocational School. Argyle W. I. Holds 50th Anniversary

The Argyle Women's Institute of Alliance, Alberta celebrated their 50th anniversary on March 30, having been formed with five charter members by Mrs. Fleming on March 30th, 1913. During the first world war when all the women's clubs were knitting for the me noversees, their membership rose to 60.

Having invited past members and constituency members, they had a large attendance. Past members not only motored down from Edmonton and other Alberta points, but also one past member flew up from California also several carloads from Lougheed and Sedgewick.

M. C. for the evening was Mrs. A. Rands. Welcome greetings were given by Mayor Colin McLennan. The highlights of the evening were when Mrs. Roberts of Drumheller, Provincial W.I. President presented Mrs. Jake Spady with a golden anniversary quarter; District No. 8 Director Mrs. Quail gave congratulations and Constituency Convener Mrs. O. Huse not only welcomed all but was the pianist for the evening.

As a remembrance ontheir anniversary they were presenting with a gavel from the Lougheed and Sedgewick groups by Mrs. Stoberg Sr., & Mrs. Frebel Sr. Mrs. H. Benirato of Sedgewick thanked them for the entertainment of the evening.

Several numbers of history reading, poems and dedicated songs were given, but when the Lions Club of Alliance presented a foreign fashion show the crowd was so enthused that numbers had to be delayed for laughs to subside.

Mrs. Hereid Hamblin visited with friends here the past week.

Mr and Mrs Dennis Lonen: entertained at four tables of 500 Thurs.

A good crowd was in attendance a the Variety program on Wed.

I would like to extend a welcome to Mr and Mrs Blumhagen & family who have moved into the L. Guild home by the school.

Mr and Mrs E. Auburn spent last Sunday at Provost with Mr. & Mrs. Allen Auburn.

Bob Lockhart who is attending Tech School in Calgary, was home for the week end.

FOLLOWER OR LEADER?

Most Albertans would rather take the lead than "follow the flock"!

Other provinces which have adopted government power monopolies have done so because of conditions which do not exist in Alberta. Those who went to see the same thing happen in Alberta say. "They've done it. So should we."

Does this political argument make sense? Does it mean we should "follow the flock" in other ways too? Because we have no provincial sales tax in Alberta, does this mean we should impose one?

Overseas, some of Canada's important trade competitors have realized that government-owned electricity is a costly mistake, and are restoring free enterprise utilities. In the United States, with the world's highest standard of living, 80% of all electricity is supplied by investor-owned companies.

Let's take the lead in Canada, and keep free enterprise free!

Youth Pilgrimage Semi-Finals Held

KILLAM — The semi-finals of the United Nations Youth Pilgrimage, sponsored by the Oddfellows and the Rebekahs of District No. 2, North-Eastern Zone, was held in the Killam public school auditorium on Friday March 29th, with a good attendance.

Pat Madden of Hardisty, a student at Central High in Sedgewick, was adjudged the winner over three other contestants, and will represent this district at the finals to be held in Irma on Friday, April 5th.

The winner of the final will get an all-expense paid trip to the United Nations in New York.

Pat chose for his subject, "Dag Hammerskolds, Soldier of Peace," and we are pulling for him to win the final contest on April 5th.

Three other speakers competed and were, Marylin Cotton, Killam; Joan Armitage, Sedgewick and Donna Cookson, Lougheed.

NO CONTEST IN BATTLE RIVER - CAMROSE

CLIFFORD E. SMALLWOOD
M. P. Battle River - Camrose

With the Conservative sweep across the Prairie Provinces, Battle River-Camrose was no exception as Cliff Smallwood, P. C. member swept back into office with an overwhelming majority. He polled 15,224 of the constituency votes, indicating the farmers' satisfaction with the agricultural policies of the Hon. Alvin Hamilton. The nearest rival was S. C's Rosenau, who tallied 5,843; third was Liberal Perka with 2,554, and low man was Arntzen (N.D.P.) with 1,264. The Conservatives swept 41 of the 48 western seats.

On the national scene, Lester Pearson led his Liberal Party to a lead in seats with 128 (7 short of a clear majority). The Conservatives won 94; Social Credit 24 and the N. D. P's. 17.

The Service vote, notably Liberal, will not be counted until the week end, and could change a seat or two, but not enough to give a Liberal majority.

C.G.I.T. Hold RALLY

SEDGEWICK — "Go Ye Into All The World," was the theme of the C. G. I. T. Rally held in Sedgewick on March 30th and 31st. Over eighty girls nd leaders were in attendance, coming from Camrose, Strome, Killam, Sedgewick, Lougheed, Hardisty and Botha. The Rally commenced at 10 a.m. in the Central High School , with registration and get-acquainted games. Mrs. I shelf James of Daysland, was the Provincial Vice-President of the CGIT, led in opening worship. She was followed by mid-day inspection and a sing song. After lunch the girls were divided into 4 interest groups. Each had the opportunity, in the afternoon, of attending Bible Study, participating in two Handicraft sessions, as well as seeing and discussing the film "The Gift." A break was called in the middle of the afternoon when all groups joined together for an hour of folk dancing in the gym.

At 6.30 p.m. the girls assembled in the Uniting Church basement for a turkey banquet served by the Sedgewick U. C. W. The president of the local CGIT, Diana Fast, introduced the guests seated at the head table, and called on the visiting presidents to say a few words.

Rev. Larry Edwards guest speaker, from Big Valley, was introduced by Mrs. J. Weir. His talk was both inspiring and thought-provoking. This was followed by the re-show ng of the film "The Gift" in the church.

A lively campfire meeting was held in the basement of the church, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The day concluded with Vespers conducted by Diana Fast, assisted by Pat Galletly. After Taps, the girls dispersed to their billets.

The group assembled at the United Church at 10.30 a.m. Sunday and attended church in a body, during which they were CGIT Sunday as Anthem. After the service and a buffet luncheon provided by the Lougheed UCW, the girls and leaders departed for their homes along Highway 13. Due to much fine co-operation of all concerned in this effort, Sedgewick's first C. G. I. T. Rally was a huge success.

Lutheran Ladies Change Name

Regular meeting of the Sedgewick Lutheran Ladies was held, Tuesday, April 2nd. Plans were made to attend the spring conference convention at Camrose April 27th at Messiah Lutheran Church. Mrs. Oswald Olsen was names as delegate, as well as president Mrs. Myrabeng.

Higher education was Cause of the Month, and four of the ladies present brought a panel, led by Ivy Christenson, after which Mrs. Mayne presented the needs of Camrose Lutheran College in their building program this year. A prayer request was also made for the young people.

The Lutheran Sunday School Hall will, in future, be known as "Prince Of Peace Lutheran Church" and the Ladies Organization as "Prince Of Peace Lutheran Church Women, Sedgewick."

W. I. Notes

The Sedgewick W. I. met on April 3rd with 13 members present. The president gave a report on the visit to the Argyle W. I. when they celebrated their 50th anniversary. Lougheed and Sedgewick had presented a gavel to Argyle on this occasion.

Members handed in the money that had been collected at area parties held i nheir honour. The Chicora canvass is to be on April 22nd. Mrs. Cooper invited everymembers to supper at her home on this occasion. Ten mebers volunteered to help.

Preliminary arrangements were made for the Constituency Conference in Sedgewick on May 27th. The visiting committee for April is Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Robertson.

Mrs. Gollan gave a very interesting talk on Social Services, and showed a film, "Mero Dragorous Than Dynamite," dealing with the dangers of dry cleaning in the home.

Except for Newfoundland, Canada's most easterly province is Quebec along the north shore of the St. Lawrence, Quebec extends nearly as far east as the city of St. John.

St. John Bldg. Fund

The hearty wishes to acknowledge with thanks the following additional donations to the building fund:

Don McBrayer, T. J. Wilson, Bob. A. Jackson, Ralph and Chris Leck (the Clemens Memorial), Mr and Mrs J. A. Kyrill, Mr and Mrs F. F. Beairsto, St. Marys Church, Jasper; Norman Rose, Wm. Adamson, Rev. Fowler, Sedgewick Lutheran Ladies Aid.

The fund now stands at $1465. Plans and estimates are ready for submission to the congregation for approval at a meeting to be held this week.

McDuff Ottawa Report

First Instalment of a new Community Press Feature

OTTAWA — When Ottawa gets over its election hangover something will have to get busy picking up quite a number of pieces. The file of unfinished business left in February is larger than usual including an uncompleted budget on which finance officials have been working quietly ever since their minister dumped it in their lap and turned to the prettier pre business of greeting voters.

Another problem shelved by the political arm of Government two months ago was the Glassco report on Government organization. Three volumes have been published; two more are ready or nearly ready for publication. Meanwhile, piling up for cabinet consideration, have been the reports on the Report.

Not long before the death of Parliament a small committee of civil servants under the chairmanship of one of Ottawa's soundest and most experienced Deputy Ministers, Gen. F. Dwidson, was given the job of sorting out the scores of recommendations. During its two and one half years at work the Royal Commission has looked at Government from the outside as a super-efficiency expert. The senior civil service group was directed to look at its report objectively from the inside. It was to advise the Cabinet not only on what recommendations might be implemented but what would be involved in their acceptance. The work was farmed out in three ways. Most sections of the Glassco report affected two or more departments. Those sections were handed over to inter-departmental committees, usually under the chairmanship of deputy ministers. In other cases, notable recommendations to increase the efficiency and reduce the cost of postal services only one department was involved and it was invited to make its own study and approve or condemn.

Finally there are specialized recommendations which require very technical study. A case in point is the recommendation that the system of payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes under the Municipal Grants Act be transferred from the Finance Dept. to the Department of Public Works. This is getting a three cornered study between the two departments involved and the Glassco committee.

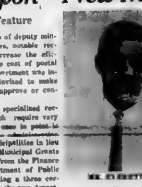
The plan was to have a steady stream of recommendations fed to the Cabinet by the committee. Even a cabinet basic Government decisions on this bulkiest of all Royal Commission reports (with the possible exception of the Bowell-Sinclair Act of 1940) will take months. With the stream dammed by two months of election campaigning the volume of recommendations on the recommendations presents a formidable front.

But in addition to all the paper work turned out by the committee, are the basic recommendations for a drastic reorganization of the two pillars of Ottawa officialdom, Treasury Board and the Civil Service Commission. Nothing has been done or will be done about this until the last two volumes of the Glassco report have been published. Then, if it is put in the hands of the committee at all, it will be accompanied by specific instructions on how to handle it. In other words, it seems likely that the committee will be asked merely to rationalize a decision already taken on the political level.

All this casts a cloud of doubt over the fate of the whole Glassco report. Terms of reference of the Royal Commission appointed in September of 1960, were patterned on the Hoover Commission in the U. S. The Hoover report completed in two stages several years apart promised the taxpayer savings that ran into billions of dollars. The Glassco report is more modest. It talks in tens of millions.

A few savings were accomplished as a result of the Hoover recommendations. Some will result from the Glassco report. But neither report tackled the real key to high Government expenditures — the incurable desire of the politician to spend money.

New Manager Appointed For NADP



MR. EVERETTE WAYNE

"Ev" Mayne, popular Sedgewick man, has been appointed Manager of the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool at Sedgewick, to succeed Mr. Grant Cheran who was appointed to the Glenmore Creamery. Mr. Mayne has been employed by the Dairy Pool for some years and his promotion is an indication of his ability and service.

Wheat Pool Meet At Sedgewick

SEDGEWICK — A Wheat Pool meeting was held in Sedgewick on April 3rd at 8.00 p.m. A good crowd attended to hear Mr. R. Pfaale, director and Mr. D. Freed, fieldman, who brought t.e members up to date on last year's Pool business.

Miss Evelyn Arntzen, PUA Queen Candidate for this year, was introduced by Mrs. J. Hallinn, who requested support for Miss Arntzen & for Gold Eye Lake Camp.

Mr. Freed, Wheat Pool Fieldman, showed several films on Co-ops, Calgary Stampede and the Trans-Canada Oil Pipeline. Lunch was served by the Fairdenne P.W.U.A.. All reported an enjoyable meeting.

Young S. C's

On April 8th, the Sedgewick Constituency Young Social Creditors attended a Meet Your Candidate Night held in Camrose at the Bailey Hall. Mr. Art Rosenau, C. Sayers, M.L.A., and Hon. L. Halmrast, Minister of Welfare, spoke to a crowd of about 300. The chairman of the meeting was Mr. O. White of Camrose, and M. C. Ray Pottage introduced the campaign songs by the Young Socreds. Following the meeting the group, guest speakers and other League members were invited for lunch to the Stark home.

NEWS GLEANINGS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

"U. S. IS BIG AND GETTING BIGGER"

A recent forecast made in the United States estimates that there will be 330 million U. S. citizens by the end of this century, and their average income will be double that of today. With the same rate of growth Canada would have a population of about 55 millions in the year 2000.

"SOVIET FLIGHTS OVER ALASKA"

The latest evidence on the two Russian bombers that flew over Alaska early in March points to the fact that they were lost and that the overflight was not deliberate. As soon as the tierraft sighted land they turned back to sea and increased their speed.

"INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP IN A LIBRARY"

One case of international friendship and co-operation it the fact that a library which straddles the International Boundry, is shared by the towns of Rock Island, Quebec, and Derby Line, Vermont.

"RUSSIANS FAIL IN MOON LANDING ATTEMPT"

Russia's latest satellite launch, an obvious attempt to land instruments on the moon, has been a failure. The satellite's radios have only worked intermittently since it was launched and the space craft missed the moon by more than 1000 miles.

CANADA HAS DONE IT AGAIN!

The people of Canada have made another indecisive choice and the country is again faced with a minority government. The only difference is that the Liberals now have the most seats. Parliament could carry on as before, needing the support of S. C. and N. D. P., or the Liberals could take over needing only the support of N. D. P.. It is unfortunate that the voters while coming so close, could not have gone a bit further and put a majority group in power. The Service vote could make a slight change, but not enough in our opinion to give Pearson the seven seats he needs.

Standings as of Tuesday, April 9th were: Liberals 126, P. C. 94, S. C. 24, N.D.P. 17.

SCHOOLS THE KEY IN CIGARETTE HABIT!

The Canadian Cancer Society points out that it is now ten years since the lung cancer scare begun with proof that cigarette tars could cause cancer on the backs of laboratory mice. It is not unreasonable, says the Society, for educational authorities and parents and others interested in the health and welfare of our youth to ask: what is the situation now? Has the relationship between cigarette-smoking and lung cancer been proven? If not, will it ever be. According to Dr. K. R. Thornton of the Cancer Society, statistical evidence for this relationship has been building up in many parts of the world. The Canadian Medical Assn. is satisfied that ther is a direct link between lung cancer and smoking. The National Cancer Institute of Canada has likewise accepted this relationship. Dozens of medical & health organizations throughout the world have also done so. And yet the cigarette companies can still say with justification that there is no proof. Dr. Thornton spoke to members of the Society recently. He adds that the simple cause-and-effect proof that lung cancer in human beings can be caused by smoking just cannot be obtained without setting up a laboratory experiment using human beings. Obviously this is out of the question. Apart from the fact that we do not treat people in this fashion, there is the time factor. It would mean taking, say 100,000 children and having half of them smoke a pack of cigarettes a day for perhaps fifty years, and the other half abstaining, after which it would be determined in which group more had died of lung cancer.

One of the big advances in human history was the invention of writing. This permitted human beings to benefit by the experience of others and eliminated the necessity for each individual to learn only by his own mistkes. Unless we are going to turn back the clock a few thousand years, surely we can accept the truth of lung cancer without insisting on another forty years or so of experience.

The statistical evidence is this: the death rate due to lung cancer among men who smoke cigarettes is up to 40 times that of non-smokers; and if it were not for the rising rate of deaths from lung cancer, the overall death rate among men from all types of cancer would be falling as it is falling in women. The campaign to stop cigarette smoking among adults has not halted the constantly rising consumption of cigarettes. In spite of this, the effort to convince students that they should never start the habit, that if they do they will one day wish they hadn't, has been intensified, with commendable co-operation from the schools. Upon parents must fall the prime responsibility for the habits of the offspring. But educational authorities can help a great deal in this save-the-children campaign. Indeed, without the help of educational people, and even more important, without their good example, a campaign to divert our boys and girls from the dangers of smoking can have little success.

WE ARE STARTING OUR 55TH YEAR!

This week the Community Press starts a new volume number which indicates we are setting forth on the 55th year of newspaper publishing in Sedgewick. The original "Sedgewick Sentinel" began operation in 1908, with Mr. A. J. Honey as publisher. The present publisher's father purchased the business in 1916, and carried it on until 1943, when we took over. Since that time the Community Press (which name was adopted in 1980) has jumped from a four page "home print and ready-print" edition, to an eight-page all home print, and the circulation has increased from 325 to the present 1240. During the past year we have included two supplements to the regular edition, Western Weekly and Rural Alberta. Also the plant was changed from a single ownership to a partnership firm, bringing into the printing and publishing business the fifth generation of the present publisher's family.

CARE WITH GRAIN AUGER!

The grain auger is a frequent source of contamination of commercial grain with grain that has been treated with seed dressings. When used for handling treated seed, the auger becomes coated on the inside with the chemicent. This gradually rubs off on other grain unless the auger is thoroughly cleaned. Since these chemicals are almost insoluble in water, they are difficult to wash off. For this reason, W. P. Campbell, fungicide officer of the Canada Department of Agriculture suggests that it is a good idea to have a second grain auger on the farm to be used only for treated grain. If this is not practical, the auger should be cleaned as well as possible, it should be capped with a hammer to dislodge any coating of the fungicide which may have built up as well as any of the treated kernels that are stuck in the auger. —Wheat Pool Budget.

CATTLE SITUATION!

More beef cattle marketings in North America areexpected to reach a peak between the middle of April and the end of June, producers would be wise to market their animals as they reach the grade rather than to feed them to heavier weights. This will hold down the tonnage of beef produced and ease the downward pressure on prices. The downward trend in fed cattle prices began in 1962. However, according to Alberta's Agricultural Statistician, R. E. English, this early manifestation of large beef supplies appears to have reduced prices in the new year more in a reply than was warranted. If this is the case, adjustments to still heavier marketing between the middle of April and the end of June will not reduce the prices much below present levels. Mr. English says prices are expected to strengthen during the late summer and fal months.

In 1962 beef cow and heifer numbers increased 4.3 percent in Canada and 1.5 percent in Alberta. This gain is not significant in relation to the total North American market, says Mr. English. However, a reported 6 percent gain in cow numbers in the United States last year, could, if continued, provide some beef that can be consumed by population increases alone, if it were accompanied by a similar increase in Canada.

Since 1940 cattle and calf numbers in the U. S. have risen 32 percent, in Canada they are up 64 percent, and Alberta recorded an 11 percent increase during this period. The rapid development of cattle numbers in Alberta was due to unused capacity to produce beef at the beginning of World War 2. This was in the form of available range land, feed & grain markets. Also a series of favorable seasons for crop production in conjunction with restricted markets for grain resulted in low feed bills. Alberta's increase in production took the form of high quality beef which consumers in an expanding economy were prepared to pay for.

It is estimated that the North American economy can absorb an increase in beef output of about 3.5 p. c. per annum without breaking prices. Hence, continuance of the present rate of increase would put the cattle industry into serious trouble. However, corrective forces may soon come into play.

The supply of grass and winter feed for breeding herds are important in long-term prospects. When cattle numbers are at high levels, feed restrictions quickly result in increased cow and calf slaughtering. As far as Canada is concerned, beef output in the U. S. may check the increase here by bringing about a reduction in our feeder cattle exports. Congressmen have strongly raised the question of putting tariffs on imports above quotas set for cattle, beef and veal.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Well, now that the nuisance is over (and boy! aren't there a lot of dopey voters in this country?) we can get back to the important things of life.

I'd like at this time, to pass along a vote of appreciation to the women of Canada. They have put up with a great deal in the past couple weeks, and it's not over yet. It has been a harassing experience, but they've taken it as bravely as usual. No, I don't mean the election.

Night after night, our women have shredded, creased, and threatened, trying to get small boys and grandfathers to bed at a decent hour. Night after night, they have received only blank, uncomprehending stares from their husbands.

But, hold, Indian. Rash naught of the scowls of young Wilbur, the ankets of grampa. Don't be distressed by the utter nothingness of your bitter half. Bear with them. NHL playoff time is to them what Paris is to a middle-aged French teacher, what Stratford is to the fanfoq chap who helped paint the scenery for the Stepfort Centric Drama Festival.

Stanley Cup time is a wonderful spring tonic. It is Alice in Wonderland and Peter Pan to the males in your family, from eight to 80. Where you see only a lot of large young men rushing at each other, they see a ballet. Where you see only brutality and bloodshed, they see the drama of a ballring. As you shudder at the horrid roar of the arena mob, they are thrilling to the skill and gallantry of the gladiators.

You see, mum, hockey at its best is poetry in motion, music in flight. An NHL goalie has all the grace and delicacy of a toreador. Maybe we don't think of these comparisons, as we sit on the edges of our chairs, watching the warriors weave their intricate dangers of combat, but we're aware of them. It's a national pleasure, pretty well restricted to the male species, and it makes the so-called "fever" of the World Series or the Grey Cup games look like a mild case o fthe sniffles, in comparison.

How did we get this way? Well, it's a little embarrassing to explain. But nine out of 10 boys in this country are exposed to hockey early in life. And eight out of 10 of those have had, at one time or another, a desperate desire to become a truly great hockey player. The urge may have lasted five minutes or five years, but it was so powerful that it hurt, when it was in force.

And about 99 percent of us knew perfectly well that if it hadn't been for sheer bad luck, or bad management we'd have made the NHL. Some of us were too heavy, some too light, some were a little slow; others could not boot a puck. Some started to smoke; others to go with girls. It was just some lousy break like that that kept us out a fthe big time.

Even knowing this, however, we're not envious. We watch the best players in the world with the complacent connoisseurship of a movie extra watching the stars at work, with the friendly contempt of a burlesque stripper watching a prima ballerina. We sit there as they flash about the ice like mad music. "There, but for the fact that I always went over on my ankles, go I."

During my own hockey career, in the days when we used department store catalogues for shinpads, I played in the same peewee league as a fellow who later went up to Detroit Red Wings. I still think it was only the fact that he could shake off or eight times faster then I could that made him confidence me in our hockey careers. Many a time I tripped him as he went by.

Go through any family and you'll find they have some great hockey traditions like this. That fat fellow watching TV once scored the winning goal with only eight seconds to go. If the busy red-headed redhead it back for an affable. That old gentleman in the rocker remembers the time Morely Morrow came to town, when Howie was still an amateur, and he'd have seen him play if he hadn't been working the night shift that night. That urchin gumming his nails in the corner, why he was the third highest scorer in the third best team in the Squirts league, this very winter.

Oh, it may all seem very childish to you women. But it's in our blood. It's part of the simple, terong, poetic heritage of the Canadian male. Have patience. The plague wanes shortly. And then, but not until then, will you retrieve us to the dull, ordinary round of family togetherness.

"I'm proud to be an ALBERTAN"

"Proud to live in a province where individual rights are respected, and individual initiative is encouraged. A province where people still have the courage to develop their own resources. Where our first pioneers the men and women they were. "Creeping socialism" would have received short shrift from them, and that goes for me and my neighbours today!"

Alberta's electrical resources, like her farms and other businesses, were developed by individuals with faith in themselves and faith in the future. They took risks . . . and the risks were great . . . because they believed in a land that fostered individual effort.

This rugged individualism is still very much alive in the spirit of modern Alberta. We believe that most Albertans intend to keep it alive in this province of ours!

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

Warmer days came, at last, and none too soon. Not only was the feed grain running alarmingly short, but so was my patience. It was such a relief to get the two older children outside, for them, as well as for my shattered nerves.

With so much snow from the long winter, melting, added to the usual spring rains, there was no lack of mud and water holes. After a week of more than the usual amount of rainfall, leaving the land far too wet to do any seeding, or even plowing, we decided one morning to all go to town (a treat even if it was in a wagon given by two seventy old work horses. After being cooped up at home for about six months any diversion was a good change. Little Andy was just walking by then, so, after I had dressed him and brother Rowland in their white "dickeys" and and knee pants, I put them out to sit on the doorstep while I dressed little Debbie and myself, telling them half a dozen times to sit quietly until Dad drove up with the wagon.

Did you ever see a boy, or 2 boys, sit quietly for more than a minute, especially with an empty mud and water holes all over the yard? Well, when Debbie and I went outside, there were no boys to be seen, immediately, but in glancing around there they were, running back and forth through a big mudhole, laughing and yelling, having the time of their lives. As we Andy wasn't too sure a calf pen, even on the level ground, he had been falling face down and getting up again, only to fall again, while Rowland was speeding back and forth, enjoying every minute of it, with no thought whatever of the mess they were making of their clothes. You can imagine my re-action. I was just about speechless, with anger.

First I drove up and was very sure and upset, and so was pat! But I added not a word to Rowland, but I'm afraid my remarks to Andy were not complimentary. I put him in the house, stripped him down to his diaper, and then I had a hard time to keep from adding my tears to the rest, as we were all disappointed. I might add I just had a outfit of "dress-up" clothes for the occasion, so as it was now too late to go to town that day, we settled by having it stay home. We lived eight miles from town and it would take hours to make the round trip with those old horses.

I think Rowland thought we were to say the least, unjust, as all day he kept saying, "We were just having fun Mom," or "we didn't remember Mom," or "are you still mad Mom?" and the mother-heart of me melted, and taking them in my arms, I assured them, "No Mom isn't mad any more, and I do love my wee laddies much more than most (their favorite expression).

The next weather continued for so long that our barley crop had to be doled out so sparingly for the horses, (who were old to start with) that the poor beasts didn't have strength enough to do any spring plowing, with the result we had to sow our wheat in the stubble.

Whether one can attribute it to beginner's luck or to a kind Providence I'll never know, but in all the twenty-three years that we lived on that farm, that was the best wheat crop we had.

SWEET SMELL OF SPRING. The magic of spring can be found in many different places. Some look for it in the song of a trickling brook, in the smoothness of lush new green grass, or in the clean warm blue sky. Others, like 4-year-old Andrew Bean, find it in the perfume of a simple white lily.—

UP A TREE. Scientists wouldn't attempt to say but every year when the weather gets warm boys across Canada inevitably get the urge to climb skinny up a tree. Above, 11-year-old Eric Wall is in upside-down world, while Leonard Lachance has climbed the tree trunk a fierce bear-hug.

Mrs. Don Ritthaler and baby daughter and Shari Dragar of Edmonton spent the week end at the Fred Dragar home.

St. Paul's U. C. W. held their annual pre-Easter tea and bake sale on Saturday afternoon.

Some 18 members of the Legion and Auxiliary attended the Legion Social Evening in Hughenden last Tuesday. A most enjoyable time is reported, with games, dancing and community singing making up the entertainment, climaxed by a Pot Luck supper.

Mrs. Breen and son Darren from Camrose spent the week end with her mother Mrs. Isobel Nelson.

A number of Hardisty Teen Tawners attended the Teen dance held at Provost on Friday night.

St. Marks W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Hearn on Tuesday. The devotional period was led by Mrs. Hearn. Projects discussed were the Mothers Day Tea and Bazaar, and a Smorgasbord, as a congregational affair.

Born, to Mr and Mrs Williamson (nee Fay Robinson) of Edmonton, a son. Mrs. Harry Robinson spent a while with her daughter & family.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. W. J. Carruthers and family extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation for tokens of sympathy & floral offerings extended to them during their recent bereavement. A special thanks, to all those who assisted at the cemetery, and the ladies for serving lunch.

St. Pauls U. C. W.

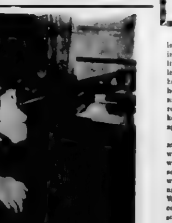
Unit No. 4 of St. Paul's U. C. W. met at home of Mrs. Rempel, Hardisty, with Mrs. Gibson as assistant hostess. Eighteen members answered roll call. The devotional, "Easter Thank-offering Service" was taken by Mrs. Edwards assisted by Mrs. Meintyre, Mrs. Elm, Mrs. Cavanagh, Mrs. Hartford and Mrs. Hayes. A number of thank you letters were read, also a letter from Lenny Yui.

Financial report on the recent dinner served to the Teacher Rally and the Easter Tea proved very good.

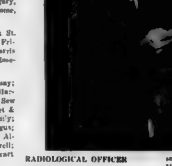
Two members will attend the Leadership Course at Alberta College.

At the meeting held in March it was decided to hold our meetings in future at the homes instead of at the church basement. On Sunday, a Bible for the pulpit will be dedicated in memory of Mr. Allan Johnstone Mr. James Johnstone and Mrs Manning. Bible Study on "The Word & the Way" was conducted by Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Frazier. Next month's study will be chapter 7 by Mrs. Canton and Mrs. Edwerby.

The meeting closed with th Mizpah Benediction. Per May the meeting will be held at home of Mrs. Dreger, with Mrs. Cavanagh as the assistant hostess.



FINAL DECISION. John Diefenbaker, seen here talking by telephone with party aides in wake of election which left Conservatives as second party to Liberals, waited several days before making final decision on his government's future. After all recounts and official tabulations, party standings were expected to be Liberal 130, Conservative 94, Social Credit 24, NDP 17.



RADIOLOGICAL OFFICER COURSE IN EDMONTON

A Radiological Officer Course held at the Alberta Civil Defence School, Edmonton, March 25 to 28, provides the distribution to M. D's. of $100,000 worth of radioactive fallout detection equipment which has just begun to arrive in the Alberta.

The first shipment of the new Canadian-made equipment includes 320 survey meters registering up to 500 Roentgens an hour, and 1,500 personal dosimeters, a small device not unlike a fountain pen, which records accumulated doses up to ten Roentgens.

The equipment is paid for on a ratio of 75% federal and 25% provincial funds, and will be distributed to municipalities on the basis of population densities related to trained personnel available and with an eye to avoiding duplication of equipment with Canadian Army Fallout Report Posts which are being established to count on a grid of 15 by 45 miles, south of the 55th parallel.

Further shipments in the value of $135,000 are expected to arrive in Alberta during the next fiscal year, and the training course will be repeated April 22 to 26.

B of M Asking Help To Find A Name

The Bank of Montreal is calling for help from its active and retired staff across the country and abroad to find a name for its new data processing system, due to go into operation this summer. To this end, the bank has launched a novel "find a name" contest, in which over 3,000 pensioners are eligible to compete. Ten cash prizes, ranging from $500 to $7.5, totalling $1,275, are offered for the best ideas. R. D. Mulholland, vice-president and general manager of the B of M, is chairman of the judging committee which will be responsible for selecting the winning entry. The contest closes May 15th, and results will be announced soon afterwards.

"When a suitable name is found for the bank's extensive data processing program, it will be for quick, easy reference in correspondence, circulars to branches, advertising & publicity. It is intended that the name will quickly identify the Bank of Montreal's computer system in Canada for everyone concerned.

Contestants are given unlimited scope in preparing their entries. They are told, "the name need not be the initials of the words of a phrase, nor need it be restricted to one word, but it should preferably be brief. It might be either English or French, it might be invented or might be derived from the Bank's creet, its history, or its locale, or it might be an appropriate Latin word or phrase

(By Mrs. F. M. Canton, Hardisty, Alberta)

There never was, and incidentally isn't to this day, a church building in our rural district. Occasionally the little one-room school was used, but in the winter it was quite a job to heat it, as well as expensive. It was heated by a huge coal-burning furnace standing in one corner of the room with a six inches around it, to keep the children from falling up against it.

So, as there were several church-minded families in the district, and we had room to spare in our house, we told them they could use the big south room, which was empty anyway, if they would build benches, as naturally we did not have the chairs. With fifteen benches built and painted, a wee old organ "dug up" from somewhere, and a couple gas lamps which someone donated, the folks came from far and near, even quite often as far as 18 miles, to sing their praises unto God, and to tell of His goodness to them, and to pray that they would be true to the trust He had given them.

What times of refreshing those meetings were, and what wonderful soul-searching experiences they were to all of us. One of the district farmers nearly always took the service, and he proved faithful to that trust for many, many years.

I recall one Sunday in October (winter came exceptionally early in that year), as folks came for early afternoon S. S. session, it started to snow, just lightly at first, then harder and heavier, and some of the families from a distance got up and left for home. However there were 2 farmers, imbued with the optimism of pioneers of that day, who lived over on this day, who figured the storm would die down by sunset as it was only for snow. They decided upon that solution to stay for supper and service, which they did. Instead of dying down, the storm increased, drifting the roads full, accompanied by a blizzard and cold. Result? You guessed it. We hauled out feather ticks, quilts and blankets, from where we had stored them last spring. Incidentally it was lucky that folks brought blankets with them at this time of year, or even then one would be uncomfortably cold during a long drive with horses. So, with their's added to my few extras, we managed to put up ten or twelve extra folks for that night.

The young lads slept on the floor of the meeting room, next to the big heater, and we took back over to wonder they didn't burn the roof down over our heads crowding so close to the stove. Then, with three beds, and Eaton couch, a crib, and a bed made up on three chairs, we managed, and morning came at last.

After cooking a huge pot of oatmeal porridge, platters of bacon and eggs, and stacks of toast, as well as pots of tea, they left for home.

F.U.A. Newsletter

At a joint meeting of the executives of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the National Farmers' Union in Winnipeg, it was further discussed ways and means of better furthering the interests of farmers throughout the country. It was recognized that no immediate action at the national level to change the organizational structure of the 2 bodies is possible. The meeting recommended that the organizations in the provinces and the Maritime region attempt within the coming year to ... research, an understanding. This understanding should be a means of achieving unity of action. No action taken should be in conflict with the present relations of provincial organizations to the national parent organization. To meet the pressing and urgent issues of future policy facing farmers a joint committee will be established to study them and how farm organizations can best deal with them.

California cattlemen think the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board is doing a good job for the producers. For their money, they also have started a "push-button system" for marketing cattle. It is patterned after the system used by the Ontario Hog Producers, and only small-lot sales will be excluded from it.

SMALLER CLASSES ARE BETTER?

Recent release by the Alberta Teachers' Association brings up a point or two that may well be re-considered by all those concerned with education in Alberta.

A recent study of pupil achievement in Alberta's two largest cities shows that students learn their subjects better in the smaller classes under the supervision of more qualified teachers. The study was made by the A. T. A. and covered grade 9 for the four-year period up to 1961, as well as class size for a nine-year period. According to Executive Secretary of the ATA, Dr. Stanley Clarke, the study showed that substantial differences in grade 9 achievement were caused by class size, and teacher qualifications. The differences in achievement were large and pointed out that a child in a more crowded classroom is not getting as good a chance to develop his potential as one in a smaller classroom.The secretary went on to say that this means that school systems that attempt to save money by employing the poorer qualified teachers and increasing class size pay for it through poorer educational results.

Another study, made by Dr. Black of the Faculty of Education, showed that class size in Alberta was increasing in recent years, and a third study showed that many teachers feel their work load should be reduced by five hours per week to obtain the best results. The average class size in one metropolitan area in 1960 was 30.71 and the students there consistently scored higher marks on their grade 9 departmental exams than students in the other city where there were 34.03 per class. Students in the city with smaller classes and with the better teachers, had a higher percentage of honors and a lower percentage of failure in each of the 4 years under review. The differences in the aggregate scores were considerable. Students in the smaller classes, with better qualified teachers, had an average of 306 out of a possible 500. This was nine points higher each year than the score achieved by students in the more crowded classrooms. Dominion Bureau of Statistics data showed that the cities with the smaller classes had more teachers with higher qualifications, as well as more administrative staff. In 1960, nearly 65 percent of the teachers had Normal-Entrance certificates. In the same year the city where lower marks were scored, only 50 percent of the teachers held the certificates.

The report goes on to state that the recent growth in class size and consequent lower student achievement is largely the result of the school grant structure under the provincial government's Foundation Program. The policy of the government as reflected in the per teacher and per pupil grants has been to increase class size as one means of holding the line on expenditures.

Dr. Clarke said the general conclusion which can be drawn from the studies is that education is an investment, not an expenditure, or in other words, the public gets out of education what they are prepared to put into it. There is little doubt that the small saving made today by increasing the class size and hiring teachers with poorer qualifications will turn out to be a costly expense in the future in the form of a poorer education for the student. This is particularly so in the case of the student who will have to learn at university what he didn't learn in the secondary school.

THE END OF CAMPAIGNS!

There is one thing we have to admit about election campaigns. They do something for the Canadian people. Recently they have not done much while they were in progress. It's when they are finished that the people come into their own. For after the final guns have boomed everyone can sit back and enjoy life. You can watch your favorite TV program without the rude interruption admonishing you to vote for Joe Blow and "me" his stalwart supporter, or suffer the dire and dreadful consequence of a Canada sunk into the morass of a ruined economy and financial obliteration. Newspapers (daily that is) can get back to reporting news in full truths of situations of more interest than the viperous utterings of politicians annoyed at the heckling of know-nothing party heelers. The government can get down to business and deal with the national business so largely left undone by the 25th parliament.

But what is probably more important to the average Canadian is that he can now saunter down to the coffee shop and enjoy the country's best ale beverage without choking over it because his next door neighbor made a slurring remark about his favorite politician. Friends are re-united and neighbors once again loan their wheelbarrows.

FOUR ELECTIONS IN SIX YEARS!

Having suffered through four elections in six years, some Canadians are wondering if there isn't some merit in the American system with fixed dates for presidential and congressional elections. Most of us have been inclined to believe that our way was superior, adopted more to flexibility, and more responsive to the people's will. At the same time it is very doubtful if the public desired the four elections since 1957 which our very system necessitated. It is also very doubtful if many wanted the kind of government we got between the two last elections with an almost complete paralysis of business in parliament. This was due to the result of the prior election and the seemingly importance placed by politicians in winning the next one.

The unwritten British constitution so far as parliament is concerned, applies also in Canada, and of course flexibility as to election dates is necessary. The difference in the systems of Britain and of Canada is what has been written into the B.N.A. Act. Yet there is no assurance a Prime Minister can govern for any fixed term of years if he is to be responsible to parliament. If he is to be freed from this responsibility then his duties must be clearly set forth in a written constitution the way it was spelled out in the U. S.

Experience seems to have shown us the fact that our parliamentary system will function best when there are only two parties, or at least two large parties in the House of Commons. The French old parliament with a multiplicity of parties and frequent changes of government was a classic example of what takes place with a large number of parties. Our Canadian experience seems to show that a variety of parties does little harm unless the supporters opposed to the government outnumber the government supporters, and that is what happened last year and also in 1957.— Canadian Business.

One compensation for these periods without a parliament, is the Governor General's warrant. Instead of spending what has been provided for in the kitty by estimates approved, the government is limited to paying only the urgent current bills. Perhaps this will shave the 19-62-63 deficit, estimated at $600 million.

MCDUFF OTTAWA REPORT

CANADIAN CONUNDRUM!

OTTAWA — Close association of to Prime Minister in Ottawa are convinced tat Mr. Diefenbaker should step down as leader of the Government clearing the way for Mr. Pearson to take over as the head of a Liberal Government, and Mr. Diefenbaker on his return from Prince Albert had a cabinet meeting at which it discussed his future plans.

Conservatives generally were very pleased with the strong showing made by the party in the election. They attributed it to the vigorous campaign waged by Mr. Diefenbaker. But they were of the opinion that it would be a mistake for the Conservatives to try and cling precariously to power depending on the support of the New Democratic Party and the Social Credit Group.

Social Credit Leader Robt. Thompson said he correspondence that he had no idea what Mr. Diefenbaker might do. He pointed out that the Conservative leader was responsible for the deverified himself as strongly in favor of stable government and indicated that if Mr. Pearson formed a Government the Social Creditors would not try to defeat the Liberal minority administration. New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas is on record as ready to support the largest group in the House.

The decision of whether Mr.Diefenbaker will resign and how the way clear for Mr. Pearson to take over rested with Mr. Diefenbaker unless the Armed Services vote gives the Liberals a majority.

Mr. Diefenbaker hinted on election night that he might be tempted to hang on and go into Parliament heading a minority Government, but to do so he would have to count on the NDP and Socreds who only nine weeks before voted to turn him out. He pointed out that 1925 provided a precedent, when the then Prime Minister Mackenzie King did not resign even though he had only returned 101 Liberals against 116 P. C's.

But unlike 1926 Mr. Diefenbaker can hardly count on the support of the two minority groups as Mr. King could depend on the support of the Progressives in 1925.

Mr. King had been defeated in the House of Commons as Mr. Diefenbaker had and had received a much higher popular vote than Mr. Diefenbaker got this time. Moreover, Mr. Diefenbaker after having been defeated in 1926 at heading a Government that has been flatly rejected at the polls. The Liberals refused to give Mr. King any support, as well as having the largest group in the House of Commons.

It would appear that the precedent of Stanley Baldwin after the 1929 British general election would apply to the latest Canadian political conundrum. In that British election no party had a clear majority but Prime Minister Baldwin resigned. He explained, "I wasn't sure whether the people wanted Ramsay MacDonald or not, but I was damn sure they didn't want me."

A later precedent occurred here in Canada in 1867. The Conservatives, under Mr. Diefenbaker had 112 seats here which was 22 short of a clear majority. The Liberals elected 106 & the other parties elc. Mr. Laurent could have governed with the help of the 48 members in the splinter parties. In fact some of his cabinet, t. Hon. J. G. Gardner for one, urged him to carry on and face Parliament. Mr. St. Laurent's right to form the next Government was not challenged. But he said he did not consider he had the moral right to follow that course. He said the result of the election was in effect a vote of nonconfidence in his administration by the Canadian people and he resigned, even though the Liberals had won more votes than the Conservatives.

There are still arguments going on among constitutional experts over Mr. King's action in 1925. They give Mr. St. Laurent high marks for the action he took in 1957. The question for Mr. Diefenbaker is whether he should consider the vote which he received in April 1963 a vote of want of confidence in his administration and resign leaving the way clear for Mr. Pearson to form the Government that would probably have the support of the New Democratic Party group on most issues other than defence.

It was an open secret during the election campaign that Mr. Diefenbaker was desperately striving thro' almost a one-man effort to hold up enough votes to give him the largest number of seats, so that he and Social Credit could together have a majority. Or failing that he hoped to accumulate enough seats that he would be justified in staying in power. He failed in that effort. Already one of his former Cabinet Ministers, Douglas Harkness, who resigned as Minister of Defence, has called for a Conservative leadership convention and there will be definite pressure brought to bear on Mr. Diefenbaker from sources both inside & outside of Government that he must step down.

Another development will almost certainly come out of the results of the election. This is a determination by the Liberals, if they form the new Government as expected to push ahead with redistribution. In this move they will be readily supported by the New Democratic Party.

The election just finished should have been waged on the basis of redistribution of electoral boundaries for the 1961 census. However, redistribution which was due last year has not been brought about. It is delayed by the Conservatives under Mr. Diefenbaker a nine grounds that

By Bill Smiley

I don't know what it's like for all you folks in inland towns, but this is a rugged time of year for the housewife in these parts near the waters of the Great Lakes. Right about now our womenfolk should be coming into their own. In most localities, the ladies, bless and praise them, are working like beavers, greasing the galley slaves, hounding their husbands, chastising their children and generally making life unbearable for all about them. It's house-cleaning time.

But in this neck of the woods, things are different. The gals work just as hard, beef just as bitterly, and turn things just as raspberryey as their inland sisters. But nobody pays any attention to them. At least none of the males in the family do.

Only the few women with the fore sight to get at their spring cleaning early in March get much reaction around here. Those who leave it until the ice goes out of the creek might as well forget about getting any help, attention or sympathy.

Women carefully lay their plans to have the old man help them paper a room on his day off. Comes the time. She gets all the junk out to do the job, turns around to call him and he isn't there. He's a couple or ten miles away, watching the rainbow trout trying to jump the falls, or mucking about the banks of some stream looking for speckled, or spanking about at the mouth of a creek seeking some sign of the smelt running.

He arrives home about four p. m. The old lady has just washed the paste off her hands, brushed the cobwebs out of her hair, and put adhesive tape on the scrape she got on her elbow when she fell off the stepladder. She's sitting down with a strong cup of tea, trying to tell herself to be reasonable .trying to muster up enough strength to begin peeling the patterns for dinner.

Let's get at that job, kiddo," he cries jauntily, his face glowing from fresh air and the three beers he had on the way home.

We'll never get that papering done sitting around drinking tea, will we?" As she is a family type cat-ion, I shall draw a discreet veil over the rest of the scene.

But this is only the first phase in the spring hardships of the luhanids ladies. They're almost get used to it, over the years. They realize that "this is Yourself" is more than a slogan. It's a way of life. The read ordeal lies ahead.

This commences when the smelt actually start to run, and the porch are running right on their heels. The girls don't mind that. The spring smelting at 1.80 a.m., and crawling into bed with them, cold and damp, about four in the morning. They've got used to going down to get breakfast and finding a 10-quart pail of smelt sitting in the middle of the kitchen, to be cleaned.

They are not really dismayed about standing over a hot stove for a couple of hours frying, smelt fanny wrinkling their rosy faces, while the family works its way through about 20 pounds of the two crisp delicacies like a shoal of sea porpoise clawing its way through a gaggle of herring. This is routine.

But there comes a breaking point. After this smelt nonsence has been going on for about 10 days, even the old man gets the hide rope a bit green when somebody suggests a "nice feed of smelt." And that's about the time it usually happens. One day the lady of the house announces the downfall, and there stands one of the neighbors.

"Thought you might like a little treat," he grins, and steps aside to display proudly a bushel basket over flowing with uncleaned smelt.

That is the day the men of the house comes home from work to find his smelt not ripped to ribbons, his chest-high waders chopped into two-inch squares, sixty pounds of smelt resting in a heap on the front porch, and his wife facing a suit, entered by the neighbor, for assault with a deadly weapon; namely, a [illegible] he wanted to set up an independent commission but that it would have to wait for the completion of the census returns.

The postponement of redistribution means that Saskatchewan has had 1 members in Parliament which is three more members than they are entitled to under the 1961 census figures. Manitoba stands to lost one seat, giving it 15 members.

The Liberal party and the N D P group now obtain their major support in the large urban areas, the Conservatives hold their strength in the rura areas. Because of the postponement of redistribution the Conservatives now have four Prairie mebers in the Commons that under redistribution would be abolished.

Under redistribution Ontario will gain three seats going up from 85 to 88 members, Quebec will gain two from 75 to 77 seats. New Brunswick and P.E.I. would remain unchanged. Nova Scotia should lose 1 seat, but because of new provisions written into the law its group would be kept at one seat. Newfound land would be unchanged. Alberta would increase to 19 from 17, an increase of two. B. C. would be increased by one seat to 23 members. In addition, some rural ridings in B. C., Ontario and Quebec would probably have to be consolidated to make way for additional urban ridings. Redistribution is long overdue in Canada. A new Liberal Government undoubtedly will see to it that it is put into effect so that the next general election brings about a fairer representation by population in the House of These young Albertans live in a free enterprise climate. Their whole environment is one that encourages initiative and resourcefulness – whatever type of endeavour they undertake. But this free environment should never be taken for granted. The greatest threat of all to the pioneer spirit is the trend to socialism. This threat is not merely a remote possibility. A few are striving for it now!

Do those who advocate government take-over of electric utilities realize when a government power monopoly can lead? Once a start is made, where does it stop?

Even leading socialists now admit: "Nationalizing an industry, instead of making it a better servant of the public, may subject it to political pressures hostile to its efficiency".

State control is not the spirit of pioneer initiative that will continue to build Alberta. Let's keep free enterprise free!

THE ALBERTA GRASSHOPPER FORECAST 1963!

The 1963 forecast for grasshoppers in Alberta indicates that the heaviest infestations will again be North of No. 1 Highway. Last year's "very severe" area around Drumheller has decreased in intensity but has spread out and built up in adjacent regions so that "moderate" to "severe" infestations will extend from the Saskatchewan border to No. 1 Highway and as far north as Hardisty, Stettler and Innisfail. This represents the furthest northward extension of a grasshopper infestation since 1942.

Generally speaking, the predominant grasshopper in all regions north of No. 1 Highway is the clearwinged, Melanoplus, packardi. Nymphs and dinkbees are the places to be checked for hatching in the fields. The egg survey showed relatively little infestation in stubble, according to the Grasshopper Forecast Map the southern tip of the M. D. of Flagstaff, south-east of Alliance, is expected to have a severe grasshopper infestation. A light infestation is expected south of a line running from Hardisty to Lougheed to north of Forestburg and west.

As always, the forecast map is obtained by averaging the results of surveys over large areas to give a general picture. You must be prepared for the possibility of localized infestations heavier than are indicated on the map.

The Bible Today

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India said recently that he reads the Christian Scriptures. He expressed genuine appreciation of the Bible as a source of comfort and strength.

Presented with a copy of the Bible by a representative of the New Delhi, he asked the General Secretary of the Bible Society of India, Ceylon, Dr. A.E. Ekbanachan, whether or a certain Bible depot was still in existence. "I need to pass it every day on the way to school when I was a little boy" said the Prime Minister.

Mr. Nehru commended the Bible Society for the faithful service it has rendered to India and her people for so many years.

"Christianity is as much a religion of the Indian soil as any other religion of India," he told parliament.

Scripture circulation has reached a new peak in India . A total of 8, 365,000 copies were distributed in 1962, an increase of nearly 800,000 over the previous year.

W. I. NOTES

The Lougheed W. I. held the April meeting at the school with 8 members. Mrs. H. Probst welcomed Mrs. Hone of Alliance, who spoke of the work the W. I. hides do and hoped to were working for the Sedgewick Constituency conference in May. She also spoke of the Provincial Convention in June and hopes to see several delegates present.

A very interesting report was given of the visit to help celebrate Argo W. I. 24th anniversary which was quite an event.

Mrs. M Skoberg on behalf of the W. I. would like to thank everyone who gave so generously, also the papers in the country in spite of bad weather, for he is pleased to report was $30.00! We hope to see more members at the May meeting as there is much work to be done.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Gordon Coates and Mrs. G. Bonfield.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to extend a fond farewell to all our many friends in Killam, Sedgewick and districts. Our many thanks for all the farewell gifts, cards, etc. May we take this opportunity to welcome you to our new home in Camrose. — Jim & Lil Scott, Doris and Wesley. 2 1 p

Knox United U.C.W.

KILLAM — The April meeting at home of Mrs. Fred Forster was opened with and Easter worship period led by Mrs. Morris. Her question was, "If Christ Had Not Risen What Then?" Mrs. Wilson gave the study dealing with religious life in Nepal.

Mrs. John Forster and Mrs. H. Young volunteered to canvass for the Cancer drive. An Easter thankoffering was given. Five girls were chosen to go to Alberta College for an Easter Christian education short course. Each member donated to the buying of two "shack-ons" and each member is to be canvassed for subscriptions for the Observer. Arrangements for the buying of materials and articles for two layettes for U. C. Missions were made. It was decided that the annual church cleaning should be done before the anniversary service and that following that service a light lunch would be served. An evening was selected for the showing of Hawaiian and New Zealand slides. Everyone welcome.

Next meeting will be on May 9th at the home of Mrs. H. Wilson.

LOCAL TEENS AT TOC ALPHA

Local teenagers, Linda Skoberg, Lougheed; Joan Armitage, Sedgewick; Anita Spohn and Judy Morgan, Strome attended the third annual Toc Alpha Conference on the Alcohol Problem which was held in the Mount Royal College in Calgary on April 15th and 16th. The conference brought together slightly more thn 100 youth representatives of churches, youth organizations and student unions throughout Alberta, who met to learn more concerning the impact of alcohol on our society.

Among the speakers were Dr. Linton, Executive Secretary of the Canadian Federation on the Alcohol Problem; Dr. R. Hatfield M.D. of Calgary; Mr. S., a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Toc Alpha is a youth organization sponsored by the Associated Temperance Forces of Alberta for the purpose of providing information from a variety of points of view with the desire to aid Canadian youth to assess the Alcohol Situation and to make valid personal decisions.

Toc Alpha has grown to have well over 500 members in the Province, & will prove to be a decisive force in determining future behavior trends among Canada's youth.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

Two uneventful years went by, except for the usual incidents relative to a growing family on a prairie farm. Then, on January 29th, 1922, another wee son made his appearance, but under unfavorable & difficult conditions. By that I mean, in the first place, that winter followed the trend(first bitter, cold, snowy variety, as typical of those early years; the wind continously drifting the snow day and night, making the 16 mile round trip to and from town an all-day job, playing the horses out as well as the driver. Therefore, the idea of having a doctor for the occasion was quite out of the question.

Sort of half expecting this would be the case, we had spoken to a neighbor woman who often acted as a mid-wife in those early days, and asked her to come over at the time. As she just lived three miles across the field from us, it wasn't as much of a problem getting her as it would have been to get the doctor. So, one morning, with the snow drifting, and a real old-fashioned blizzard raging, Dad got the team out, putting straw, blankets and a feather tick in the sleigh box, & he wrapped and brought the neighbor woman back, arriving back at about noon. By then, the storm was so bad we couldn' see the barn from the north dining room window. Dad, knowing we were in for possibly a two day move of this sort of weather, tied one end of a rope to the back door knob, and the other end to the barn door knob. Then by holding onto the rope there wasn't the danger of getting lost in the storm between the barn & house.

So, our wee son made his "debut" into such a world at about midnight of the 29th of January, 1922, with just this neighbor woman and Dad in attendance to "see" to me. Our neighbor woman stayed for ten days, during which time the storm had not abated, except around four every evening when the wind would quieten down a bit, only to increase in force again by dark.

With a family of seven now, including the neighbor's two recruits (the smaller items especially as we had put in enough flour, oatmeal and sugar, etc. in the fall) we were running alarmingly low. It was over 2 weeks since Dad had been to town. So one morning during that storm, Dad announced he thought he could make it, by starting early and trying to get home around noon. Accordingly, preparations were soon under way for a real early start the next morning, so he left the house around 4.30 a.m., driving a team of work horses hitched to a one-seater, two-runner "Bob-sleigh". It was a long trip at any time with horses, but in the winter and in a blizzard the trip seemed endless. He arrived home about four p.m. instead of at noon, as he had planned. He tried to cut corners by going through open fields, but found too late that the snow had drifted in the creek beds, that the poor old horses would plunge a bit and then had to rest and get their second wind, only to plunge through more drifts. By the time they reached home both the team and the driver really had a

Presbyterian Ladies

The Killam Presbyterian Ladies met at home of Mrs. Jos Grant for their April meeting with 12 members and one visitor present. Devotional was under the direction of Mrs. M. Gibb, and included an Easter theme, together with continued study on Acts's Wits.

The business meeting opened with the president congratulating the ladies fo rtheir effort in serving at the Robinso and Crookery sales. Visiting committee reported 27 hospital calls and four house calls. Home Helpers repored active month. Church house cleaning day was set for May 1st. Two volunteers came forward to take part in the Cancer Fund drive.

Meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction. Lunch was served by Mrs. A. E. Fee and Mrs. E. F. Fee, assisted by the hostess.

Hospital Auxiliary

The April meeting of the Auxiliary was held in St. Joseph's parish hall on the 9th. The Sisters from the hospital, members from Strome and several visitors, along with 18 members from Killam were present.

After a short business meeting the president Mrs. Gibb introduced the guest speaker Mr. Ed Fee, who is the chairman o fthe Auxiliary Hospitals Board. He gave a comprehensive outline of the functions and needs of auxiliary hospitals and how the members of an auxiliary can best fill the needs. This may be done primarily, by giving voluntary assistance in various forms to the staff and to the patients. His informative & interesting discourse also gave some idea of the work and time involved in planning and organizing a new hospital complex. He gave assurance that barring delays in materials, the project should be completed before the snow falls next autumn.

The May meeting will be on the 2nd at the hospital at 3.00 p.m. A further talk on ann. hospitals will be presented by one of the Sisters. Visitors are always welcome.

CARD OF THANKS

THE SECRET IS OUT. Jacqueline Kennedy (with the U.S. President, above) is expecting her third child in August. It was the White House's best kept secret, but it's now been officially announced. The President's brothers, Ted and Bob, will also become fathers again this summer.

CANADIAN FLAG. This flag, or one very much like it, will probably wave over Canadian soil within two years. New government of Lester Pearson is committed to bringing in distinctive Canadian flag and Union Jack will likely be left out in deference to Quebec cry for all-Canadian design. Design like one above was runner-up to Union Jack in last parliamentary study.

Hardisty H. and S.

The April meeting of the Hardisty and District Home and School was held in the school with a fairly good attendance. The only major business of the meeting was in connection with the forthcoming convention in Edmonton April 22 to 26, President Aimee Moody and Treasurer Anne Kobitzsch have agreed to attend this convention as delegates from here. To help finance this the H. and S. is holding a bake sale at the Auction Market April 25. Any parents interested in helping with this project is asked to bring contributions to the Auction Market or phone 66 Hardisty for pick-up.

Following the meeting ocpn house was held with all teachers in their respective classrooms. The parents were invited to come and discuss any problems with the teacher. There were also displays of work by pupils. Lunch concluded the evening.

B of T TO SPONSOR CLEAN-UP WEEK

One of the items discussed at the Sedgewick Board of Trade meeting on April 17th, was a Clean-up Campaign in the Village. This was set for the first week in May with the concentrated effort on Monday, May 6th. Along with this is a proposed effort to re-landscape the grounds at the Flagstaff Lodge. The co-operation of all residents is asked in this Clean-up project.

Lennie Berg, president, proceeded at the meeting which was in the form of a supper meeting.

Lengthy discussion took place regarding recreation, and out of this came the fact that the lack of facilities at the Centre are rapidly being installed and the three items should be ready for use in May.

The May meeting will take the form of a Ladies Night, with a public meeting thereafter a guest spe4ker to follow the banquet.

Speakers from the Provincial Recreation Council are to be invited to attend the June meeting.

It was reported that the Sedgewick Kinsmen Club is busy planning the Sedgewick Sign to be erected at the southern entrance to town.

Tentative plans were made to install a water tap, roof shelter and table and benches on the property of Centre Service Station on 1-c highway, for the convenience of tourists and highway travellers.

GOVERNMENT WITHOUT OPPOSITION?

The absence of any official announcement from Premier Manning notwithstanding, rumors originating in high places, still insist that there will be a provincial election in Alberta this year. The likely month is said to be June, and the probable date the 19th. To what ever degree these rumors are correct or false is really not of much importance, since such speculation is purely guesswork. What, I think of more importance, is the fact that there is really no need for a provincial election this year. We have just recovered from the effects of the last one, people would be happy to "call it a day" for this year at least. The S. C. Government can constitutionally carry on until 1964 before going to the people; there is no legislation that is important enough to warrant a mandate. Everything seems to be going along quietly. Let's keep it that way for 1963.

But just in case the Premier does decide to call such an election, I have a suggestion to make to all opposition parties in Alberta. We have heard of the suggestion coming out of Calgary that all opposition parties unite in choosing the best candidate in each constituency to oppose the Social Credit choices. If you follow the news very closely you will recall the charge made by Mr. Earl Ansley, M. L. A., that Social Credit is running at a wiping out all opposition in the house. Whether that allegation is correct or not, I have a suggestion somewhat along that line. It is this: Let all the opposition parties unite and decide not to run any candidates at all in Alberta. Let the government have all the seats. Let it rule absolutely without any opposition whatever. Two of the present opposition are retiring from the house, and the remaining one is not certain to win his seat again. Social Credit stands a good chance of winning these three seats, in which case my suggestion could become a reality anyway, so why not make it unanimous? Let democracy function at its worst. At least it would be stable government.. I don't for a moment suppose my suggestion will be very widely heeded, but this I do know, any member of this constituency who may like to run, might as well save his deposit.

ASPECTS OF HUMAN RELATIONS!

Nearly every time you see a public relations man for a concern of any importance, you notice that he is really what the name implies. He has learned, or been taught to do the following: SPEAK TO PEOPLE: There is nothing as nice as a cheerful word of greeting; SMILE AT PEOPLE: It takes 72 muscles to frown, only 14 to smile; CALL PEOPE BY NAME: The sweetest music to anyone's ears is the sound of his own name; BE FRIENDLY & HELPFUL: If you would have friends, be friendly; BE CORDIAL: Speak and act as if everything you do were a genuine pleasure; BE GENUINELY INTERESTED IN PEOPLE: You can like everybody if you try; BE GENEROUS WITH PRAISE: Cautious with criticism; BE CONSIDERATE OF THE FEELINGS OF OTHERS: It will be appreciated; BE THOUGHTFUL OF THE OPINIONS OF OTHERS: There are three sides to controversy: yours, the other fellow's, and the right one. BE ALERT TO GIVE SERVICE: What counts most in life is what we do for others.

Humor: In one of his anthologies of anecdotes, Bennet Cerf writes that Emily Kimbrough, popular lecturer, was waiting to be introduced to an audience when a workman appeared carrying a screw-driver and beckoned to the chairlady. After a whispered conference, the chairlady turned and spoke to the audience. "I am sorry that there will be a slight delay. Word has just been given to me that there is a screw loose in our speaker."

THE POET'S CORNER

SPRING IS HERE?

A sweet mystery in the air doth ring
Signifying the coming of Spring;
For in the trees the birds lustily sing—
They sense what the coming season will bring.

Soon the earth will be green instead of white
All nature will be a wonderful sight;
There shall be longer day and shorter night,
The sun shall rise, and it shall bring us light.

The stream shall flow and fish in them shall swim
Some shall fall prey to a fisherman's whim;
Soon the hedges will again need a trim
And shears shall beautify them limb by limb.

Ah! What a dreamer! It seems you don't know
While you were dreaming, outside it did snow.
Wait a few weeks, maybe then you can crow—
Now it is again winter, gloomy and low.

— Arie VanVliet

The Diefenbaker Era

The changeover of Government has now been made. Lester Pearson sits at last at the centre of power, having won on his third try the Prime Ministership of the nation. In his home climb to the political zenith—a story by the way of courage and ability which has not yet been fully told—Mr. Pearson pulled off stage a star which operated with intermittent brilliance for ten years. John Diefenbaker has stepped aside after nearly six years as Prime Minister.

With his departure and with the advent of the new Liberal Government under Mr. Pearson, Canada seems ready toembark on a new political voyage. Just before the boat sails, it may be well to bid a brief farewell to John Diefenbaker. In terms of history, Mr. Diefenbaker's six-year rule was brief, but it will not be forgotten.

He shook the dust from forgotten chambers in Canadian political life. He came like a jolt of adrenalin to a languish population. He turned his party upside down. He generated intense admiration or intense dislike in the government of something in nearly every Canadian.. Was he a "good" Prime Minister? Probably not in the social sense o fthat word. The contributions he made as Prime Minister were more political than administrative. He couldn't preside over a board of directors Government the way Louis St. Laurent could.

In his six years as Prime Minister, there is no piece of legislation, no national accomplishment that stands out as a monument to his career. Even the bill of Rights has not yet gained acceptance as a truly significant concept.

There is a legacy of sound but unspectacular legislation — business incentives, aid to municipalities, vocational training, regional development measures. Perhaps only in agriculture was there any flair shown, and imaginative action taken at the right time in the right amount.

The Diefenbaker Government did put a sound economic base under the farmer, something long overdue. If the small farmer has not benefitted to quite the same degree as the western, it was probably because he had further to go. There is no question that this would have come if the Conservatives had been permitted to remain in power.

But these accomplishments, solid as they are, are obscured by a record of administrative chaos, of indecision, of emotionalism and sometimes disorder.

One thinks of the abrupt cancellation of the Avro Arrow; of the disgraceful and unnecessary squabble with former Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne; there was the defence controversy, which the Government allowed to fester & spread; there was the financial crisis and the dollar devaluation, good in itself but not so good when forced upon a Government in the throes of unrest; and I think past year there has been the austerity program and a brief session of Parliament in which the minority Diefenbaker Government failed to provide even a minimum of leadership.

There was the Cuban crisis when the Government knew not which way to jump. There was a failure to provide a national focus for French Canada at a time of revolutionary change. There was increasing carping and harsh tone in our relations with the United Kingdom and the United States. And finally there was disintigration, defeat in the house, cabinet revolt, the resignation of Ministers and the retirement of others.

In short the Diefenbaker era was simply too tempestuous too riddled with mistakes to be called a successful administration. The Government acted too late for example to stem the rising tide of unemployment to stimulate a lagging economy.

And that is one of the things one thinks of in "good" Governments: Showing strong and steady leadership, making sound judgements and giving reasons for them, acting on problems, even before they come to public recognition, and enhancing Canada's image in the rest of the world.

On these counts, Prime Diefenbaker was not a good Prime Minister. But on other counts, he was a good Prime Minister.

After all, Canada had been enjoying, or enduring, a sound steady and unexciting administration under John Diefenbaker came along.

If the economy was whirling along, political life was stagnant, and that can be just as unhealthy. A purge is necessary once in a while, and was particularly necessary when John Diefenbaker arrived.

He awakened Canadians to a sense of national destiny, even if he didn't point the way too clearly. He was a man of words, not actions, of ideas, not blueprints. It is, in fact, ironic for the only Canadian Prime Minister in recent history to win enthusiastic majorities in every part of Canada on the strength of his broad Canada First nationalistic appeal should have been reduced 6 years later to emphasizing the divisions in the country for electoral purposes.

After 6 years, his words, his ideals perhaps became a little distorted but by then his work had been done. He had jolted Canadians. They had become more aware of themselves, and it was perhaps natural then that Canadians became more aware of the shortcomings of a man like John Diefenbaker.

He was a prairie lawyer. Before he became Prime Minister he was a controversialist, a cross-examiner, a lawyer of Canadians. He did not change that much when he became Prime Minister.

He had a talent for combat, and he was unhappy, as in the years of his massive majority, when there was no worthy opponents around. He was happy in the last election campaign when there were opponents all around him, on top of him and underneath him.

There has been a tendancy lately, to speak of John Diefenbaker in the past tense. This is grossly inaccurate. He is no longer Prime Minister, but he is still very much alive. And his special talents are especially suited to opposition. For he is a fighter. That is such as anything was his admiration for him during his last campaign.

And that as much as anything will assure his memory. In a few years, perhaps a few months, the memory of the flamboyant indecision, the record of administrative failure and the messianic posturing, which alienated so many who watched him at work, will likely recede.

When that has gone, it could well be replaced by a feeling of affection for this man of good humour, a great campaigner and a fighter who persevered the inestimable service of making Canada awake, from coast to coast.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Don't expect those ingredients of any good column — unity and coherence — this week. Since last November, I've been needling everybody who bored me by talking about what a dreadful dose of flu he had. "Stop babying yourself," I derided, "it's all in your mind. You're getting too much rest. You're not keeping enough to kid the bugs. You just want a day off." And so on. So it couldn't happen to a nicer chap, but what throws me is that I had to wait until the Easter holidays to catch it.

Something that gives me a big pain in the arm is the advice you get from doctors when the flu smites up and pounces. "A couple of days in bed is the best cure."

Who in the world can take a couple of days in bed in this crazy age? A farmer, yes, the seeding is the busiest A.I.farmman, with the bye just nicely out of the labs? A contractor, with his final job in four months, and the rush on?

Ask any mother of young children how many days she spent in bed her time she had the flu. The only time most women ever spend a few days in bed is when they are supposedly at their confusion by bringing another little stranger into the world.

Enough of that. I still say it served me right. However, I smile it to church on Easter week end, before succumbing, and was delighted to receive acquaintance with so many old friends I hadn't seen since last Easter. They showed chaste admiration, and a good stiff one, for those bunswho turn up at church once a year, on Easter Sunday, stuffed full of, an eress buns and holiness.

I did overhear a remark that day which rather refreshed my somber spirits. As we were coming out of the church, a little fellow ahead of us, clutching his mother's hand, piped, loud and clear, "Does Jesus have a second name, Mum?" His mum looking around proudly to make sure everybody noticing how cute the kid was ,answered brightly, "Yes, dear, it's Jesus Christ." The little guy pondered this, and shrilled "I bet I know what God's second name is." His mother took off out of there so fast the boy was practically screaming out horizontally.

Most of the election reerimination are over by now, but a few editors are still catching it from readers who feel that the local paper was one-sided in its coverage, or did not print the whole truth. Few of these complaints are from winning candidates or their supporters.

This has always tickled me — the fellow who demands that the paper print the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. What he really means, of course, is the truth as he sees it. Or the truth about somebody else. Most newspapers print the truth, but show me one that prints the whole truth, and I'll be the first to donate toward a statue for its editor, by a tombstone.

The whole world be a good thing if newspapers did print the whole truth, about everything. It would certainly put some life into the obituary columns. But in the first place, a lot of people would suffer where the truth hurt, in their vanity. In the second place, the editor would be so busy facing actions for slander & libel that, even if he won them all, he wouldn't have time for anything else.

The truth is a fine thing. It's like potatoes, one of the staples of life. But just as we get pretty tired of spuds three times a day, every day, we could get mighty weary of nothing but the plain, unadulterated truth.

Do you think women would lend a fuller life if, when they ask how they look in a new outfit, their husbands would answer that they resembled something left for the dog's breakfast?

Would the preacher feel richer, spiritually, if you told him, right in the middle of the Sunday morning buddinker, "That was the dullest sermon I have ever heard"?

Would your friends feel more warmly toward you if you answered the casual query, "How are you?" with the plain, unvarnished truth, right from your thumping corn 5hrs' pour pulsing hemorroids into your aching back and on up to your certainly that you had a lump in your breast or a brain tumor?

Perhaps the bride would get a better send-off in life if the editor, in his write-up of evening dress radiant in white, simply announced: "The beauty of the bride, a plain, dumpy little girl, was scarcely marred by the hint of a black mustache beneath her prominent nose, on which was a wart the size of a small gherkin."

Truth, like cheap whisky, is invigorating in small doses, but is better to take if it is mixed with something.

J. C. Hillman Wins S. C. Nomination For Sedgewick-Coronation Constituency

J. C. Hillman, M.L.A., won the nomination for Sedgewick-Coronation Constituency, at the convention held in July.

Competitors in the district eliminations were as follows:

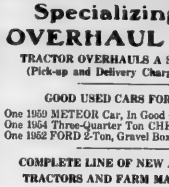
LaVergne Berg Sedgewick Beef Club
Ronald Henderson, Hastings Coulee

Bohn Konkiedge, Valley Beef Club
Gail Downes, Mevera Beef Club
Grant Bisener, Daysland Beef Club
Dwight Smith-Gander, Wavy Lake
Kenneth Kalpetzky, Wavy Lake Beef
Carol Bergel, Killam Beef Club
Louise Trlaka, Heisler Clothing Club
Judy Watts, Lougheed Clothing Club
Connie Spiller, Daysland Clothing C.
Norman Carignan, Daysland Garden
Patricia Hauck, Heisler Garden Club.

The audience was favored with an enjoyable evening of excellent talks. Each speaker was introduced by a fellow 4H member. Following a few of the talks, fellow club members gave some of the history of their club. The Lougheed Clothing Club sang the 4H' 40th anniversary song, which was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Russell Grant on behalf of the Killam School Division presented the winners with trwel cloths in token of their fine accomplishment, and wished them well at Camrose.

A special thanks is extended to the judges for their help in the 4H Public Speaking Eliminations, on behalf of all the clubs represented.



Mr. J. B. Cross, President of the Calgary Brewing & Malting Co. Ltd., announces the appointment of Mr. Gene Duchak (above) as Manager of the company for Edmonton and Northern Alberta. Mr. Duchak succeeds Mr. W. H. McDougall, who has retired from active participation in business.

Mr. Duchak has a record of 29 years service with the Calgary Brewing & Malting Co. Ltd., and is widely known in sports circles for his past performance as an amateur hockey and football player. He was a member of the Trail Smoke Eaters hockey team—subsequently world champions when the club won the Allan Cup in 1937.

Mr. Duchak played an important part in the formation of the Buffalo Athletic Association, and organized the postwar Calgary Stampeders hockey club which won the Alex Cup in the first year of re-organization.

In addition to his new position as Manager of the Edmonton plant, Mr. Duchak will also continue as the Northern Alberta Supervisor of hotel operations for the Calgary Brewing & Malting Co. Ltd.

School Board Holds 1963 Organization Meeting

The organization meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division No. 22 was held recently with the following present: Trustees R. Grant, Clouston, Niehaus, Polehoyke, Swan, and Supt. Bruce. Chairman Grant called on Mr. Bruce to assume the chair for the election of officers for the year. Forms I and II re Declaration of Office and Certificate were signed by the newly elected Trustee, Mrs. Swan of Alliance.

Mr. Leonard D. Nieliaus was elected as Board Chairman, and Mr. John Polehoyke as Vice-Chairman.

Mr. Niehaus assumed the chair & past minutes were read and adopted.

Mr. Clouston and the Secretary were authorized to sign all cheques of the Division drawn on its general and capital accounts.

The firm of Deloitte, Plender, Haskins and Sells were re-appointed as auditors for the Division for 1963.

Mr. Niehaus was appointed as the representative of the Board to attend meetings of municipal councils within the Division, as required.

The Chairman, Superintendent and Sec.-Treas. were appointed as a committee on salary interpretation.

It was moved that the hiring of the following new teachers to staff of Killam School Division for the 1963-64 year be approved: Miss Ann Dennet; Miss Alene Vornbrock. Cd.

Mr. Ronal Kellington is to be transferred to the Killam school as teacher and Principal for 1963-64, to fill the temporary vacancy created by the year's leave of absence given to Mr. R. A. Gardner.

The resignation of Mr. John Bolch, teacher at Hardisty, was accepted & Mrs. Barbara Bax was given a temporary contract for the position to April 30th, 1963.

The Supt. is to contact the Chipchad and Forestburg School Boards in order to investigate the possibility of establishing both a Commercial & Shop Circuit with Alliance.

It was passed that a Black and Decker valve reducer and valve contrlc be purchased for the Divisional Garage at a cost of $600.00.

It was decided that occasional use of the Gym be granted the Sedgewick Cadet Corps, conditional to proper supervision and observance of the regulations.

Mr. Alexander, C.P.R. Inspector is to be requested to arrange a new transfer of the Park Hill School site to the Killam School Division. This land was sold to the Park Hill District by the CPR, but transfer was never registered.

It was passed that tenders be called for the sale of the 1953, 54-passenger GMC bus.

Also that tender bids be invited for the purchase of two new 54-passenger school buses.

M clon passed that the Holsler School be given permission to transport a bus load of children to Edmonton and St. Albert to attend Children of Mary classes.

A new floor of plywood and line is to be installed in the basement of the Alliance School Playroom.

The report from the Superintendent touching briefly on: Students who have been placed on probation; Progress in hiring new teachers; Survey teachers available in Sept; Supervisor applications.

Correspondence from the following was read and dealt with: Zone Four Drama Festival Committee, Provincial at Penoka; Sharugs and Josephinon, re bussing; East Central Zone Sports Assn; Mr. Von Holten, offer to sell trailer to Board; Zone 5 Secretary, notice of meeting.

Killam Lad Injured In Truck Accident

In following the milk run up the street in Killam on Tuesday, Billy Feigsie and Tommy Fraser were not seen by the milk man when he swung out of a lane until it was too late. Billy was hit. He was taken by the ambulance to the local hospital, then on to the University Hospital by his parents and Mr. Hugh Beadle. Billy will be there for some time with a broken leg and bruises. No blame is being attached to the milkman for the unfortunate accident.

Wavy Lake 4H Club

The Wavy Lake 4H Beef Club met for April at home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nixon. The Club decided to donate $5.00 to the Freedom of Hunger Campaign. The club will have their Achievement Day on May 29th, and their ride on May 30th.

On April 11 the club held the Public Speaking eliminations at Strome. Dwight Smith-Gander and Ken Kelly were chosen to represent the club at Sedgewick on April 17th. A few people from Strome attended the talks at Sedgewick, in which Dwight Smith-Gander took first prize for the beef clubs. Dwight will now go to Camrose on May 8th.

On April 13 the club had Ha Tour Day, and before supper at the Henry Hawkins farm the members judged four feeder steers.

Next meeting will be at home of Mr and Mrs H. Rawe on May 3rd.

A. P. Crop Report

Local Area — As the result of the rain and heavy wet snow, surface and subsoil moisture are good in this area. With wet fields and some lying in some areas, a week of warm weather is needed before spring operations can become general.

Alberta — Moisture conditions vary greatly at the start of the crop season. In the south, subsoil moisture is poor and there is lively sufficient surface moisture for germination. In the central section conditions are fair, and in the northern portion and Peace River moisture supplies are good, with snow still on the ground in many areas. Some spring work has been done in the south.

KELLER - SLAVIK

The Sanctuary and alter of the St. Joseph's Church, Killam were decorated with lilies and baskets of white gladioli for the marriage of Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Savik of Killam, to Mr. Roy Keller, of Berkley, Cal., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Keller of Edmonton, on Saturday April 20th, at 11.30 a.m.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Her bridal ensemble was a white satin sheath embroided and fingertip length veil of nylon taffeta. A small crown and her short tiered veil and she carried an orchid and streamer bouquet.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Dagnault was dressed in pale blue taffeta with an overdress of nylon sheer. Tiny blue asters and orange blossoms were her bouquet.

Best man was the groom's brother Mr. Joe Keller. Fr. McCarthy officiated at ceremony and also the nuptial mass. Ushers were Peter Strack and Lee Savik.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Slavik chose a beige suit with brown and beige accessories. Mrs. Keller wore a pink dress complemented by pink accessories. Gardenias were worn corsage by the mothers.

Mrs. R. Kinzer played the wedding music. Mrs. G. Fee and Mr. R. Fee sang duets during the mass.

In the church hall the CWL served a wedding breakfast following the ceremony. Mr. Lee Slavik was M C and Fr. McCarthy gave the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded. The candlelit table was centered by a wedding cake.

Following the breakfast the guests were received at the bride's home at a reception.

For travelling the bride chose a dark green plaid suit with a small white hat. After their honeymoon the young couple will reside in Berkley, Cal. where the groom is employed by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. The bride is a graduate of the Misericordia Hospital and has worked in Killam, Tofield, Edmonton and Oakland, California.

Among the out of town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. J. Keller, Mr. & Mrs. Joe Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. B. Fitzgerald, Miss Pat Keller, Mr. and Mrs. W. Andrew, Mr. Donald Sease and Dr. and Mrs. J. Jacik of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pershing, Mr. and Mrs. P. Strech, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Pershing, Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Pershing and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spiller of Daysland; Mrs. Lorader Gas of Lacombe.

I.O.D.E. Duties Date Back To Boer War

With chapters from Newfoundland to the Yukon, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire counts 30,000 women as its members in 979 chapters, and this year celebrated its 63rd birthday.

First women's organization to have as a project building community halls in the far north, it is now on its 3rd such structure. First all was at Fredrick Bay in the eastern Arctic; second at Taktoyaktuk in western Arctic, and the last now being built at Baker Lake, Central Arctic.

Founded by Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal, the order's first work was comforts for Canadian soldiers of the Boer war. It also located graves of Canadian soldiers, and erected a monument at Bloemfontein in memory of those who died in the South African war. Ambulances, trucks & field kitchens were among the many items contributed in First World War and enormous quantities of comforts were sent to soldiers.

First war memorial bursaries and scholarships were established between 1918 and 1939. These went to children of men killed or permanently disabled in the war. More than $800,000 was given in overseas scholars ips then.

Operating from coast to coast by 1939, the order's first work in Second World War was blankets and clothing to children being moved under British evacuation plan. Besides the quantities of supplies to service men and hospitals, a Boling-brooke bomber was presented to the government in 1940.

In all $6,500,000 was spent on war work from 1939 to 1945. Another sum amounting to $1,000,000 or more was inaugurated after the war. One-third of money raised annually, more than $1,000,000 or again, on education. In the past year 2,000 schools were adopted and assisted: 1810 students were given scholarships, bursaries and grants from all grades of chapters, 157 of whom were from homes of quarrying personnel.

In the field of education, the order spends $500,000 annually; $400,000 in Canada and the remainder on supplies shipped to Europe, Africa, Korea, West Indies, Hong Kong, India.

Theorder raised $105,000 to put the needlework carpet by the late Queen Mary into the National Gallery. — A. Winifred Lee.

Fairdonian F W U A

The Fairdonian Valley F. W. U. A. No. 502 met at home of Mrs. Walter Hallam on April 24th with 7 members and two visitors present.

A donation of five dollars each was given to the Cancer Society, the Canadian Mental Health Assn., Jr. FUA Queen Contest, and the transportation of members to Conferences. One hundred and two settings of silverware have been purchased for the Community Hall kitchen.

It was decided not to hold a May meeting, and in the future the meetings will be held on the second Wednesday of the month. The next meeting is to be held on June 12th at the home of Mrs. J. Davison. All farm women welcome.

Needlebusters

The meeting was opened by singing O Canada and repeating the 4H Pledge. Later we discussed the 4-H Rally at Camrose on May 11th. Two members are going to model at this rally. One will model an afternoon outfit and another a night outfit. We then discussed going to Bar Harbour Camp for a week. Linda Kirkman, Margaret Ann Probst and Judy Watts attended a 4H Agricultural Rally in Camrose in March.

First year members brought their 4H books to be checked and sewing to be examined. We then discussed Achievement Day.

MACDUFF OTTAWA REPORT:

SET FOR THE SIXTY DAYS

OTTAWA The changing of the guard has been completed. A new Liberal Government has taken office to grapple with the many and pressing problems facing the nation, sworn in yesterday misthereby — to 60 days of decisive action.

As always, the Cabinet selected by Prime Minister Lester Pearson represents a compromise between regional and political forces on the one hand and a demand for able administrators and architects of policy on the other.

On the whole, Mr. Pearson succeeded in striking a notable balance. He has a ministry rich in potential talent, potential human talent is only proved in the fire of public office. Many an otherwise able man has found himself burned to death on the political griddle. But Mr. Pearson was forced in one way at some points to meet the demands for regional representation and political pressure. Particularly is the Ministry true in Quebec, where the new and old guard are locked in quiet but yet fearsome struggle.

There are a number of remarkable things about the composition of the new Cabinet. It is concentrated how By in Ontario and Quebec, no coincidence considering that is where the Liberals drew the bulk of their popular strength. Including Mr. Pearson and the Government leader in the Upper Chamber, Sen. Rene MacDonald, there are 16 ministers from Ontario out of a total of 26, and eight from Quebec, in contrast to the mere seven six elsewhere. There are two from B. C., one from every other province except Saskatchewan where the Conservatives served a decade.

Eleven of the ministers are lawyers, four are economists, four are businessmen, two are agricultural experts and one is versed in fisheries. At least nine qualify as former senior civil servants, six of these holding the rank of deputy minister or assistant deputy minister, including former Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs Lester Pearson. All of the latter are expected to be leading figures in the new administration. Two of three key posts are held by relative newcomers to politics: Finance by Walter Gordon, chartered accountant and consultant to both business and governments; Trade and Commerce by Mitchell Sharp, a former Deputy Minister of that department who resigned as vice-president of the mammoth Brazilian Traction to enter politics. The third, External Affairs, is occupied by veteran Liberal member Paul Martin.

In the increasingly important Agriculture post Mr. Pearson has placed Harry Hays, a native of Calgary since 1909, livestock breeder and unknown political quantity. Into the soon to be created portfolio of Associate Minister of Agriculture, representing the East, will go Maurice Tremblay, former Deputy Minister of Commerce in Quebec, at present a Minister with out portfolio.

Other brighter lights in the new ministry include Maurice Lamontagne, a former economic adviser to Mr. Pearson, who as president of the Privy Council will have special responsibilities for such things as federal-provincial relations, bicultural ism and implementation of the Glassco report on Government organization; and R. M. Drury, former Deputy Minister of National Defence, who is now Minister of Defence Production will take over the important new Department of Industry that is to be created.

Lionel Chevrier, a veteran Liberal and also the Party's leader in Quebec, was named to the Justice portfolio, one traditionally reserved by the Liberals for the senior French-speaking Lieutenant of an English-speaking Prime Minister. As a representative of the fast-fading old guard in Quebec, Mr. Chevrier's days in the Cabinet may be numbered. Because many feel he fails to represent the new forces that are shaping that Province, it would appear that Mr. Chevrier must inevitably go. In the meantime he and the old guard still represents, which in a more mature of temperment rather than age, are still a political power.

Through a near-revolt in the Quebec caucus the old guard succeeded in the appointment of four of their members to the Ministry. More important, they blocked the appointment of one of the brightest upcoming members of the new guard, Maurice Sauve, economist and director of research assistant of the provincial Liberal Party. Although temporarily blocked - due in part to his own stiff personal public relations (he is not noted for sparing the feelings of others) he is expected to play an important role in the new House of Commons and to be in the Cabinet before too many months pass.

During the campaign Mr. Pearson promised the first 60 days of his ministry would produce the most decisive action Canada has ever witnessed. This is one campaign pledge he will not be allowed to forget, one that could return to haunt him. Unfortunately, while there is a need for decision and for action, neither should be taken with undue haste to deal with problems that warn a long time coming and will be a long time going.

On the domestic front, the most urgent need is a beginning on the preparation of a budget to lay down fiscal policy for the current year & a review of the Government's spending estimates for the same period. Legislation must also be drafted to provide for the early establishment of a municipal loan and development corporation and a National development corporation.

The former is intened to make loans to municipalities at the current borrowing rate of the Federal Government, with repayment waived on anything up to 50 percent of the total. Liberals are counting heavily on the scheme to spark a major public works expansion program next winter in order to create additional employment.

The latter is planned to channel a greater proportion of domestic savings into the development of Canada's resources by Canadian companies, employing a mixture of public and private funds. Basically it is proposed as a method of reversing a trend of increasing foreign ownership of Canadian assets.

If it functions effectively, the most important of all proposals over the long term may be the creation of a new Department of Industry. It is conceived of as a body to bring about the structural re-organization urgently required in so many economy manufacturing industries as badly splintered by too many small and inefficient companies.

On the international scent, the Liberal Government faces the task of repairing Canada's badly damaged relations, shored and of finding a place for Canada in the rapidly changing structure of international trade, and also finding greater access for Canadian products in world markets while strengthening Canadian industry to meet increasing competition at home will prove no easy task.

ROOT ROT!

There are several kinds of Root Rot that effect both cereal crops and grasses. Chances are that they are present in most crops to some degree causing loss of crop yields.

Common Root Rot — Will cause brown discoloration of stem bases, roots, crown and lower leaf sheath. Height will be reduced as well as the number of stems in a given area. Severity increases after successive susceptible crops or similar crops. The land should be treated with a mercury fungicide.

Browning Root Rot — Will cause large brown areas in fallowed brown soils in June. The lower leaves will brown and die. Seedlings are stunted, maturity delayed and yield greatly reduced. Use of phosphate fertilizers, maintenance of soil fertility, seeding in a firm seed bed and working-in the stubble will help to control this browning root rot.

Avadex BW — The newer Avadex formulation, Avadex BW, is proving its worth in wild oat control. Not that it provides a greater measure of control than the original Avadex, says H. A. Friesen o f the Lacombe Experimental Farm, but better, and more predictable, show greater tolerance to its action. Hence the letters BW, indicating barley and wheat.

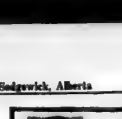
Under soil conditions at Lacombe, Avadex applied as recommended has proved satisfactory. In some areas of the western province, wheat and barley crops on heavy clay soils have seemed prone to Avadex injury. Avadex BW offers additional safety. In spite o fthis, areas of Manitoba under the unusually wet conditions of fall 1962 experienced trouble.

In 1962, a co-operative test of both Avadex and Avadex BW was conducted at Lacombe, Ingelbo, Smith Cutrose and Brandon. One objective was to observe the effectiveness of these two compounds after freezing, compared with one of Avadex before seeding as in the original recommendations. The researchers had in mind the popular method of seeding with the one-way. Mixing Avadex with the soil before seeding means an extra operation.

Spraying after seeding with Avadex (or barley) o; Avadex BW (for barley or wheat) proved effective. The method, says Mr. Friesen, is to prepare the seedbed, seed the crop, spray on the Avadex or Avadex BW, and harrow twice to incorporate the chemical. For best results the spray should follow right after seeding but, if weather conditions are unfavorable delay of up to three days is not considered serious.

The test showed both wheat and barley definitely were tolerant to Avadex BW than to Avadex. At Lacombe, however, barley was found significantly tolerant to Avadex, applied after seeding, to permit use of either compound.

The result is that Avadex has been licensed for wild oat control this year in both wheat and barley crops. With wheat, Avadex BW at 1 to 1 1/4 pounds per acre is not less than five gallons of water per acre, is what Mr. Friedmen recommends. Since barley shows greater tolerance rates of 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds of either product per acre are suggested to effect a somewhat greater degree of wild oat control.



SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Animal life, wild, domestic and in-between, has been giving me a bad time of it lately. First of all, a lady in B. C. wrote a letter giving me the devil for the way I dispose of kittens. She doesn't know quite how I did it, but she suspects they suffered. Lady, I can assure you that I suffered far more than they did.

My daughter caused a classmate late rushing the last pair of the litel flaikh of kittens. As soon as they were weaned, the little girl picked them up. My wife and I sent her off with cookies, pats on the head, and our blessing. As soon as she was out the door, we did a triumphant fandango in the kitchen, and opened a bottle of bubbly.

Twenty minutes later, to bid was back. You guessed it, with the kittens. It seems she hadn't delivered things with the authorities at home. She did not get any cookies or pats on the hed this trip. Nor was lucky to get away without a pasely on to half is his pocket, and agreed to store me the Spot Where the Big Ones Are.

All week, I chortled and rubbed my hands, when nobody was looking. Opening day I picked Denny up early told his mother I'd look after him, and off we went. He told me, excitedly that the Big Ones were just below the dam, in a deep hole. I did a few little dance steps as we rambled through the wet grass. With the big ones, literally, I envisioned my friends fishing those worn-out holes, with hooked offerings.

"There it is!" shrilled Danny. "That's where the Big Ones Are!" And they were. All 72B catches of them.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all who sent cards of sympathy at the time my sister podded away. — Mrs. G. Swanson, Sedgewick.

4 1 p

MAINSTREET AT LOUGHEED

Mr and Mrs Kris Moen, Mr. R. Bergseth and Andrew Lien, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Peder Peck left for home in the city, and visited there for a few days.

Mr and Mrs Pete Grove made a hurried trip to Athabasca last Friday and brought back with them their two little grandchildren Donna and Wanda Cook. They and their parents Mr and Mrs Frank Cook, were among those forced to evacuate their homes due to the flooding of the Athabasca River. Although the danger was soon past, some damage was done to homes and furnishings.

The Valley 4 H'ser' Club took the annual tour on April 20th. Their leader C. Ingvaldsen, assisted by parents present, provided transportation, and they spent the day visiting 10 farms in the area. At noon they gathered in town and were served a fine dinner at the Lougheed Cafe. They ended their visit in the form of Mr. Wm. Routledge where a judging contest was held. Results of the contest are not yet available.

The Lougheed Ball Club held the first meeting of the season on April 25th. The executive for 1963 will be as follows: Mayor, G. Coates; Coach, C. Ingvaldsen; Pres. A. Boutilier; Sec.-Treas., A. Knapp.

Mr. Les Ness of Bepic has been visiting friends and relatives here.

Mrs. H. Lien of Camrose spent a few days with her daughter and son-in-law Mr and Mrs Norm Bax.

Born, to Mr and Mrs E. Armstrong on April 19th, a son.

Master Douglas Reed is spending the week end in Calgary.

The old Flu bug is still on the prowl page to Mr. Langford and many other persons you meet these days either has it, had it, or getting it. Several Lougheedites have been hospitalized as a result, including Mrs. S. Denham, Mrs. T. Kerry, Master Neil Knapp.

Mrs Orpha Johnson of Big Valley and Warder of the Rebekah Assembly of Alberta, was an official visitor at Lougheed Rebekah Lodge. Prior to the meeting the Noble Grand of Lougheed Lodge, Mrs. Sadie McClements, entertained at a tea in her honor. A number of members accompanied Mrs. M. Shoberg to Killam & Provost this past week.

Perhaps there is some truth in the old saying of safety in numbers. At any rate one of our bachelors traveled to Hardisty the other night, escorted by no less than three lovely female companions. Lucky fellow!

Mrs. A. Whitbeck was a Calgary and Red Deer visitor recently.

Mr and Mrs A. Wittenberg & family of Edmonton were callers last week at the Geo. Potter and H. Poitras homes.

Seen back in the old hometown last week: E. Lemoun Jr., Aaron Bakken, Peter Grove Jr., Mrs. Irene Anderson and Lillian and Evelyn Eriksson.

Mrs Esther Odegard and sons Morton and Ernest motored to Calgary and Claresholm during the holidays. While in Calgary they spent some time with Mr and Mrs Gordon Merrow (nee Alma Odegard).

Mr & Mrs Gus E. Probst & Alta, and Mr Mel Larson, Suzanne and Johnny Larson were Edmonton visitors last Thursday. Suzanne went on to Darwell to spend a few days with her grandmother Mrs. E. Larson and her aunt and uncle Mr and Mrs A. Lackie.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all the kind friends and neighbors who visited me and sent cards and gifts while I was in hospital. A special thank you to Dr. Pereira and Sisters and staff of the Killam Hospital. — Mrs. Signe Hollis. 4 1 p

Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. John Armitage of Sedgewick, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Dorothy Ellen, to Mr. Lloyd Morton Caldbeck, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Caldbeck of Hughenden. The wedding will take place June 1st 1963, in the Sedgewick United Church at 2.00 p.m. 4 2 c

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

Christmas. What excitement in all the homes, especially where there were children, our own included. More so, for the ones who attended a small country school.

Because it was the night of the concert, no one seemed to want very much supper, so, sooner then one would think possible the youngsters were all dressed in their new clothes and ready to go. Long before time, and quite a while before Dog and I.

It was traditional in those days, that, if at no other time of the year, the children had new clothes, they had them at Christmas. And how proud they were, especially the little girls, with their new dresses, hair curled, bright ribbons, and faces shining. The boys tried to act nonchalant, indifferent, with their new shirts and sweaters; some with new jeans and spanky shoes, and all with hair plastered down with some sort of oil.

Everyone was so happy, running around, jumping up on the platform and off again, on some flimsy excuse, and the teacher trying to keep some semblance of order and quiet.

Our Danny, age 6, was given a short recitation, and we had some trouble getting him to promise to speak it out loudly. That night he did look rather nice with his new trousers, white shirt, and bow-tie. His shoes were quite new, so we polished them and, with new laces, they looked quite respectable. However, his last year's overalls were too small for this year's shoes, and so the now was pretty drop and he wanted to run down to the school with the other boys (it was just a quarter mile) he did need overshoes. Finally I managed to dig up an old pair which one of the older boys had discarded. They were green with age and the buckles were gone. That was settled by tieing them together with twine. However we warned Danny again and again to be sure and take them off as soon as he got to the school.

The pupils were all lined up on one side of the room, and the older folk on the other. I tried to see if Danny had removed his overshoes, but from where I sat I couldn't see his feet.

Danny's recitation was near the first of the program, so when his name was called Dad and I stretched our necks to see and hear our wee son in his first Christmas concert.

Instead of going to the front of the platform, he went right to the back, so close to the wall in fact that when he made his bow, he bumped against the wall, and over he went on his hands and knees. He got to his feet, looked at the wall, gave another bow, and over he went again. When he got to his feet the second time, the crowd was clapping and stamping their feet and actually making a terrific noise. (We and the little scamp like) did it the second time just for a laugh). By now, he knew he should come forward to the front of the stage, so stepping forward, with a big grin on his face, he said his piece. But when he did come closer to the front, what did I see? Yes, you're guessed it. There he was with those horrible green overshoes on, tied with binder twine, and about three sizes too big for him, all unconscious of the queer looks of those who could see & hoping he could be heard above the commotion.

However, he was happy that he had contributed his part to the Christmas concert to make it a success.

INVESTORS KEEP OUT!

(If this is what we want – there's an easier way!)

Investors mean prosperity for the area they help to develop. But . . . If we really don't want them, we need not shut our borders. Government take-over of industry is enough to deter investors – and can we blame them? A prominent Provincial Official has said:

"Take-overs of private industries are damaging the confidence of private investors. I have tangible evidence that such talk is scaring investors out of other provinces and into ours. A province which wants to attract investors must not talk of [illegible]."

Already, such talk in Alberta may have caused enough harm – but consider what would happen if this threat went into effect. Let's show new investors that free enterprise will always be free in Alberta.

Fred Forster
Pres. Board of Directors

The many problems involved in the expansion & renovation of the Killam Co-op interior has given the Board of Directors an insight to the vision and effort of Co-op pioneers. Mr. Halsall & many others, in developing an organization dedicated to provide a merchandising service with reasonable cost to its members. The completion of the expansion and renovation project brings a sharper focus to the vision of those pioneer Co-op minded people of the Killam district. Members of the Board of Directors feel assured that store patrons on becoming accustomed to modern merchandising methods, will in time develop a greater appreciation of the attractiveness and service provided through modern store arrangement.

On behalf of the Board of Directors I wish to express sincere thanks to all who took part in the planning and renovating of the store interior, and for the painstaking efforts and detailed work done on behalf of the Killam Co-op by all concerned.

OBJECTIVES
Of the Killam Co-operative

1. To promote the economic welfare of its members.
2. To Associate itself with other Co-operative Associations for the purpose of mutual aid.
3. To advance the Co-operative Movement as a system of business, having service and savings for its motive.
4. To do such other things as shall serve the economic and cultural welfare of its members and the public.

"Mick" Baker
General Manager

Mr. "Mick" Baker became the Manager of the Killam District Co-op Store in 1955, and since that time there have been many changes in store arrangement, and resultant improved service to a growing list of customers. Mick feels that the latest renovations, improvements and addition of the Meat Department were a modern necessity, and it is his hope that the store will now fully meet the needs of the ever-growing number of Co-op members. He invites you to drop in and look the store over any time.

THIS IS HOW It All Started!

Wm. Halsall
First Store Manager

Way back in 1914 Mr. Wm. Halsall along with a few other pioneer Co-operators organized the Willow Hollow Co-op, & succeeded in doing about $6000 worth of business that year. This little Co-op continued to grow and prosper under the management of Mr. Halsall. The name was changed later to the Killam District Co-op Assn., and at present is the oldest continuous operating Consumer Co-op in Alberta. The Killam District Co-operative Association will celebrate its 50th Anniversary in 1964.

A. P. CROP REPORT

Local: Moisture supplies are good, and warm weather during the week has improved the conditions of the fields. Snow and rain last week put things back a spell. A few days of warm dry weather will be needed before spring operations can become general.

Alberta General: Little precipitation has occurred in Alberta during the past week and moisture conditions are unchanged, ranging from poor in the south to excessive in the North areas. Seeding is under way in the extreme south and is expected to spread through the southern half of the province during the next week. In the north warm weather is getting the fields in workable condition and cultivation is expected to begin in a few days. In the Peace River District up to two weeks of drying weather will be needed to take up excess moisture and allow field work to begin.

Cards Of Thanks

I wish to thank Dr. Perversoff, Sisters, and staff of St. Anne's Hospital, Hardisty, and friends, for good wishes, visits and parcels. The fine care, which all made my stay in the hospital cheerful. — Harry Pedersen, Lougheed, Alta. 8 1 p

I wish to thank all my friends and neighbors who visited me and sent cards while I was in the hospital. — Hugh Gibbs, Sedgewick. 8 1 p

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL

ANOTHER HEALTHY PATRONAGE DIVIDEND

RESERVE DIVIDEND OVER 2½¢ PER BUSHEL
PLUS CASH DIVIDEND 3¢ PER BUSHEL
TOTAL DIVIDEND OVER 5¼¢ PER BUSHEL FOR WHEAT & FLAX

paid to Pool members

A total patronage dividend of 5¼¢ per bushel is being paid to Pool members for 1961-62 wheat and flax deliveries to Alberta Wheat Pool elevators — by cash and 2½¢ in reserve dividends. These savings passed on by the Pool to its members are in addition to full value paid for their grain.

Patronage dividends on deliveries of oats, barley and rye amount to more than 2½¢ per bushel - 1½¢ in cash; on deliveries of rapeseed over 8⅓¢ per bushel — 5¢ in cash. The same dividends apply to seed grain marketed through the Pool's seed division.

Nobody else pays dividends of this size on grain and seed deliveries. Alberta Wheat Pool has distributed its earnings to its members in this way for 21 consecutive years.

If you are not already a Pool member, join right away and start sharing in the benefits of co-operation.

Sedgewick H. and S.

The regular April meeting of the Sedgewick Home & School was held in the public school with 14 present.

New business included catering for the track meet in May. Also discussed was the taking of individual pictures in public school which had caused controversy among parents. Plans were also made for a social evening to be held during the latter part of May. This will feature a program made up of items from various grades in public and high school. All parents are urged to come and make this evening a success.

Mr. Kvill outlined the science course in junior high school, and a general discussion followed.

Due to the usual poor attendance during the year, we sincerely hope all parents will make an effort to attend the social evening, as this winds up the year's activities.

WHO PLANS ALBERTA'S ELECTRICAL PROGRESS?

You may have heard it said that government-owned power would mean co-ordinated planning for the whole province.

In other words, you are being asked to believe that such overall planning is not in effect now!

What are the facts?

The investor-owned electrical utilities work under such regulating bodies as the Alberta Power Commission and the Supervisor of Hydro-Electric Development.

This government overseeing and directing of investor-owned utilities is precisely to ensure planning in the best interests of this province. At the same time it avoids a government power monopoly, against whose rulings there is no right of appeal. The present system safeguards free-enterprise initiative. But, under this system, co-ordinated overall planning is a reality right now!

★ MACDUFF REPORT

CANADA TO BECOME AN INDUSTRIAL NATION?

OTTAWA — Canada's newest effort to make transition from hewers of wood and drawers of water to a nation of manufacturers could initiate the most important era in her economic history or it could fall flat on its face.

The new department of Industry, perhaps the top priority item of all priorities in the Throne Speech at the opening of Parliament will have great responsibility and little authority. It will be the purchasing department for the government with a yearly budget of about $1,500,000,000 to spend. First consideration will be help for specific industries and areas within Canada. It will gather unto itself a number of branches in the Department of Trade and Commerce which have grown up something like Topsy. Before they are finally meshed into the new Department their faces may be drastically changed.

Success or failure will rest very largely on the type of approach used. Over the years Canada's secondary industries have grown and been nurtured under three distinct influences. There was first the National Policy of 1879 with its emphasis on protective tariffs. Regardless of the party in power there has been no fundamental change in the Sir John A. Macdonald approach.

Then there has been the influence parodoxically of United States 99-lffs. American policy traditionally has been moderate tariffs or free entry for raw materials and semi-processed goods but virtually a closed market to highly processed manufacturers. Canadians have never been able to count on U. S. markets for the production of secondary industry.

Stemming from both these influences has been the development of preferential trade. This was the real spur to the Americus branch plant movement that brought heavy foreign investment in Canadian manufacturing to take advantage of preferential tariffs in Commonwealth markets. It reached its peak with the preferential tariff margins established under the Ottawa agreement of 1932.

A postwar backing of almost every thing for civilian use brought a period of false prosperity to secondary industry, false in the sense that manufacturers were making generous profits under remaining Government controls with little risk involved and no need to make decisions. At the same time with the world hungry for the products of Canadian natural resources capital investment poured into primary industry and we became again lowers of wood and drawers of water.

By 1957 when political upset followed a period of both Government and industrial apathy efficiency of Canadian manufacturing industries had lagged badly and inlitistive had been lost just at a time when competition from imports was increasing.

The previous Conservative Government recognizing the problem but it has taken most of its six years to bring secondary industry into a receptive mood. The Liberals now story on a stage already set and the loss partisan are ready to acknowledge it.

Canada's new Minister of Industry (now Minister of Defence Production) is Charles M. Drury, One of the youngest brigadiers in World War 2. Drury is a member of the brain trust in the Pearson Cabinet. He has a civil background, first with the economics division of the Department of External Affairs and then as Deputy of Defence. He is an organizer, one of the first requisites of his new job, and is already working the clock around.

He will take over from the Trade Department a number of branches dealing with domestic manufacturing and brought together under an Assistant Deputy Minister, Mr. R.G. Barrow. Mr. Barrow could well be the choice for deputy Minister of Industry. In the take-over, however there will be a weeding out. The new Department is not in the least interested in Retail Trade or Service Industries. It is concentrating on Industries that have heavy manpower requirements. Expansion of production here pays its dividends directly in new jobs. Nor will the new Depart ment be much interested in the capital intensive resources industries. It will continue to be the responsibility of the Trade Department to find export markets for these resources.

The new Department faces 2 dangers and problems. It can step on the toes of the Provinces whose constitutional responsibility includes promotion of domestic commerce. Most of them have such programmes.

It can become a fifth wheel to the coach as the Department of Forestry shows some signs of becoming.

To meet the first danger there will be a close liaison with Provincial Departments of Industry. Some of the industrial promotion work now being tried by the Federal Government may be abandoned where it is duplicating with Provincial efforts.

The second problem can be met by close liaison with at least two Federal Departments, Trade and Finance. The basic approach must be one of incentive and the most effective incentives will be provided through taxes and tariffs.

The tariff incentive plan by which tariff concessions are traded for more purchasing by parent companies in Canada or greater export by Canadian subsidiaries was initiated last fall. It will be carried on and extended by the Liberals. The program would logically be initiated in the Department of Industry but worked out in co-operation with the Department of Finance which has responsibility for Canadian tariff schedules.

Where plans to expand secondary industry involve—as they largely will—new export markets the responsibility will be that of the Trade Department.

50th Year For 4-H Clubs

It was in 1913 that the first junior club was organized in Canada. This was at Roland, Manitoba, and the projects included poultry, corn and potatoes. Since then junior clubs, now better known as 4-H, have spread to all provinces and today we find 78,800 members active in 5,460 clubs. The development that has taken place has not only been in numbers, but also includes a variety of projects, activities and scope and depth of the entire program.

In the early years in junior club work people were concerned mainly with development of agriculture thru work done by the members in the project. Today, however, the entire emphasis is on adding to the development of every member enrolled in his or her fullest potential.

To commemorate the 50 years of 4-H Clubs in Canada, a 4-H Centenaire was unveiled in the town of Roland, Man. on Sunday, May 12th. The event was unveiled by two members of the Roland 4-H Club and guest speaker at the ceremonies was the Hon. Duff Roblin, Premier of Manitoba.

12 4-H CLUBS IN FLAGSTAFF

In the M. D. of Flagstaff there are 12 4-H Clubs in operation with a total membership of 222, or an average of about 18 per club.

Of these 12 clubs, 7 are 4-H Beef clubs, located at Sedgewick, Morrin, Killam, Lougheed, Strome, Daysland and Forestburg. There are three 4-H Cooking Clubs, located at Forsyth, Daysland and Heisler, and the remaining 2 clubs are 4-H Gardening Clubs which are operating at Daysland and Heisler.

Besides their internal activities the 4-H Clubs engage in various inter-club projects such as the recent 4-H Speaking Eliminations, from which two local winners were picked. These two winners have since competed in a regional Elimination against Camrose, Stettler and Coronation and came out on top (see Green Acres for more detail).

Two important dates coming up for the Flagstaff 4-H Clubs, are the Achievement Day which will be held on May 29th, and the Flagstaff 4-H Beef Club Calf Sale at Killam on Thursday, May 30th.

KILLAM — The regular meeting of the CWL was held at the home of Mrs. Palmer in Sedgewick wit 25 ladies present. The ladies said rosary the church prior to Confirm Loon, and the pastoral visit of His Grace, Archbishop Jordan.

The mothers of the children confirmed served breakfast to Archbishop Jordan, Fr. King, Fr. McCarthy, the pastor, trustees and the 40 children confirmed. Arrangements were made to present a gift and a spiritual bouquet to Rev. Donald Kroetch on the occasion of his ordination. Prizes were awarded to the ladies for perfect attendance.

Some 140 pounds of clothing were sent in the March collection.

A shower had been sponsored for a bake-sale and needy articles were entered to, also a dinner for the Wheel Pool Elevator Co.

A shower will be sponsored for Miss Mary Slavik in the parish hall on May 3rd. Mrs. J. Slavik was named delegate to the CWL convention.

Ladies were asked to donate perennials and bedding plants to the cemetery, and assist at the work bee.

May is nominating month. Please co-operate by nominating Mrs. Manning, Mrs. McGowan or Mrs. E. Spiller.

Officers elected were: Pres., Mrs. J. Schetzler; 1st Vice, Mrs. R. Kinser; 2nd Vice, Mrs. Beach, Rec Sec Mrs. A. Schaffler; Treas., Mrs. J. Kauber.

Mrs. Schaffler won the attendance prize. The hostess was assisted in serving lunch by Mrs. J. Spiller and Mrs. H. George.

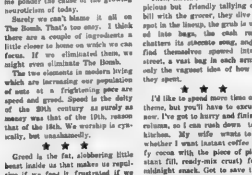
SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley



I visited a mental hospital recently. A couple of nights after that I watched television "comedian" Lenny Bruce. His experiences produced the same reactions; fascination, repulsion and sadness. They also made me ponder the cause of the growing neuroticism of today.

Surely we can't blame it all on The Bomb. That's too easy. I think there are a couple of ingredients a little closer to home on which we can focus. If we eliminated them, we might even eliminate The Bomb.

The two elements in modern living which are increasing our population of nuts at a frightening pace are speed and greed. Speed is the deity of the 20th century as surely as money was that of the 19th, reason that of the 18th. We worship it especially, but unashamedly.

Greed is the fat, slobbering little beast inside us that makes us repugsive if we feed it, frustrated if we don't and happy only if we strangle it at birth.

Everything is speeding up. When I was a kid, people used to sit around on their porches on a May evening, shooting the breeze, then go off to bed some after dark. They slept all night. No pills.

If you sit around on your front porch nowadays, all it means is that you're a bum, because if you were any good you'd have enough money so that you could either be chasing around the lawn behind a power mower, or sitting inside watching television, like a decent citizen.

Speed has ceased to be a means to an end, and has become an end in itself, though we refuse to admit it. We speed up production so that we can "turn out more articles more cheaply." As soon as the new method is in operation, the price goes up. "Higher overhead." We speed on the highways to save time, and spend six months in the hospital, when we fail to make the curve. We speed housework with new gadgets, so the good wife will have more leisure time — to sit around with a bottle, or go to play bingo

Sign on the

Satan who cater to, tempt, and urge on the poor ordinary slob in his worship of speed and travel are the advertisers men. If that seems a little harsh, don't take my word for it. Just pay a visit to a supermarket.

Shopping used to be a leisurely, pleasant part of daily life for women. It was a hangover from the open market of less frenzied times. At the grocery store, they met their neighbors, exchanged repartee with the grocer, pinched the meat, tasted the cheese, squeezed the bread, thumped the melons, prodded the chickens and sniffed the fish. And above all, they chewed the fat.

Today, stopping is a frightening, soul-destroying ordeal. The only things ladies can get their hands on are the vegetables, and there isn't much joy in pinching, thumping, or taking a bite out of a turnip. Where their grandmothers dipped a hand into a box or barrel to taste or feel, they wurriedly read labels or mutteringly pass into those vast, gleaming mortuaries which have replaced the old meat counter.

From every shelf, in every color, they are shouted at to "hurry," be quick, hasten, grab me, buy more," and harnessed by "family size, special deal, limited time only, 10c off." No wonder they scuttle about furtively, snatching up packages like hot potatoes and throwing them wildly into their carts.

Everything spells out speed and greed: minute rice, instant coffee, pre-cooked ham, ever-ready chicken, ready-mix cakes, quick frozen fruits. As a result, they buy twice as much as they need in half the time they should.

Then, instead of a mutually-suspicious but friendly tallying of the bill with the grocer, they dive for a spot in the lineup, the grub is shoveled into bags, the cash register chatters its obscene song, and they find themselves spewed into the street, a vast bag in each arm, and only the vaguest idea of how much they spent.

I'd like to spend more time on this theme, but you'll have to excuse me now. I've got to hurry and finish this column, so I can rush down to the kitchen. My wife wants to know whether I want instant coffee or filtered coffee with the piece of pie (instant fill, ready-mix crust) for my midnight snack. Got to save time if I want to read my book digest, before I go to bed. Think I'll have a big slice of gorgonzola cheese with the pie. Instant dreams, you know.

F.U.A. Newsletter

With the Provincial election set for Monday, June 17th, FUA officials are already busy organizing election forums. This will be the third time in a period of about 12 months that these kind of meetings will be held. Past experience has shown that they are very much appreciated by people in the rural areas. They are organized on a strictly non-partisan basis and conducted in exactly the same way. Announcements in local newspapers will inform people when the where forums will be held.

● In trying to defend the right of the tree power companies to be privately instead of publicly owned, the companies make some strange statements. One of these is: "To make a profit is not the function of the government. The proper function of a democratic government is to govern, not to own and operate physical business."

First of all it must be said that this statement is not taken out of any modern textbook on democracy or democratic government. It's just an invention. Secondly, there is not government in the civilized world today, whether it can be called democratic or not, which does not own & operate physical business. Thirdly, the statement implies that the Government of Alberta doesn't function properly, as the Government of Alberta makes profits. Fourthly, the statement considers the Government of Alberta to be undemocratic, because this government owns and operates physical businesses, such as Alberta Gov. Telephones and Liquor Stores, for example.

The FUA, again, regrets the necessity of having to point out the value of these statements. If no other arguments can be brought forward, the only possible conclusion seems to be that the operation of the private power companies in this province, can't be defended.

● Miss Donna Crepley, Gibbons, will handle recreation at the Gold Eye Lake camps this summer. Robin Routledge, Edmonton, will be the lifeguard and swimming instructor.

● As a result of the provincial election on Monday, June 17, two F. U. A. district conventions, slated to be held the same day, will have to be changed to some other date. District 11 at Delia and District 12 at Vulcan.

FLAGSTAFF 4-H PUBLIC SPEAKING WINNERS TAKE REGIONAL ELIMINATIONS!

Patricia Hauck of the Heisler 4-H Garden Club and Dwight Smith-Gander of the Wavy Lake 4-H Beef Club took the top honors at the Regional 4-H Public Speaking Eliminations in Camrose on Wednesday last. They competed with the winners of the Home Making Clubs and Agriculture Clubs from the Camrose, Stettler and Coronation districts.

Patricia and Dwight will compete in the Northern Alberta 4-H Public Speaking competitions in early July. Congratulations to these two 4-H members and best wishes in July.

4-H SALE!

Dates and times are being decided and programs are taking shape for the Flagstaff 4-H Beef Club Sale in Killam on Thurs. May 30th. Achievement Days will be held on May 29th in the local communities. Watch for details of the Achievement Day schedule in next weeks paper.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SOIL CONSERVATION!

Four billion acres of arable land, at the present time, feeds the world's population of some 3 billion humans. The population of the world is increasing rapidly, while at the same time the depletion of the world's soil resources proceeds at an accelerated rate. The future of any nation depends on a healthy, virile population. To be healthy people must have good food, and good food can only be obtained from healthy plants. Healthy plants are grown only on fertile soil.

SOIL NOT UNDERSTOOD. Possibly the biggest stumbling block in soil conservation is the fact that too many people think of soil simply as a mixture of minerals and organic matter which must be cultivated in order to produce a crop, and which tracks up the kitchen in wet weather. Soil is indeed a mixture of minerals and organic matter, but it also contains a living mass of tiny organisms. The work of these organisms is to change the raw materials and organic matter of the soil into food for crop plants. Without them no crops could be grown.

ORGANIC MATTER ESSENTIAL!

Soil organic matter is not only necessary for the growth of beneficial soil micro-organisms, but it performs many other important functions as well. It is the blotter or absorptive part of the soil. It enables the soil to absorb moisture and to retain it. It holds the soil together. Without binding material it is at the mercy of every wind that blows over it and every rain that falls upon it.

BARE FALLOW DESTRUCTIVE!

Nature supplies a protective cover on the soil! Burying or plowing down straw and stubble returns some plant food to the soil, but it also destroys the protective cover which is so important in preventing soil erosion.

Soil erosion must be controlled if we hope to have productive soils in the future. It can be controlled, and many western farmers are doing it. The necessary information is available. All that is needed is the will to do the job. Plan your 1963 cultural program to control soil erosion. Remember conservation does not cost, it pays.—From Line Elevator Farm service, by H. J. Mother.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE HARVEST HOME FRONT OLD STYLE

A generation ago there were at least two times in the year when a farmer's wife was really happy. One when she saw neighborhood farmers gathering with their teams & tacks to begin threshing; the other, when she saw them pulling out for the last time, until next year.

One predominating feature of the days which will always stand out in my mind is the smell of new table oil-cloth. Each year at threshing time I bought three yards of white table cloth. That was what we needed to cover our dining-room table when it was pulled out to accomodate twenty men. After threshing I would cut the oil cloth in two, using one half for the kitchen table, rolling up the remaining half on a stick and putting it away to replace the first half after it was worn out. Thus, the two oilcloths did me until the next year's threshing time.

Those were the days of the big gangs, usually 18 to 20 men. With our own seven children, myself, and the extra help I had to have, it was really a gang. The mountains of food those men tucked away was almost unbelievable. Every year, just before threshing, two bags were gathered and salted down. With that, a full share in the "beef ring", and, with roasting six or eight chickens (this usually for the last supper), as well as mountains of bacon and eggs for their breakfasts, I think the men fared not too badly.

Then there were always the four o'clock lunches, when I sent out a large bread-mixing pan full of assorted sandwiches and either two large cakes or another pan of freshly-baked cinnamon rolls, or baking-powder biscuits with butter and jam. There were always the three gallons of tea and coffee.

One unforgettable year when the gang had pulled out after an unusually busy day due to bad weather, Emma and I flew around taking the boards out of the table, putting the things away and generally everything back to normal, as we planned to "do" a quilt or two while the men were away. In the bed set up the quilting frames and had a quilt partly "tacked in", when we heard rigs coming pell-mell down the road and into the yard a little after ten. It seems the men had died supper and breakfast at this either farmer's place (the flatly refused to work another hour if they had to eat there again.

Well, to make a long story short these quilts were not done that week as we had to feed those men for another three days, while they did that other farmer's threshing.

Third Year For Kinsmen On Their Lake Project

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Kinsmen are again busy working at the lake north of town. This is the 3rd year in a row that the Kinsmen have been making improvements to the lake and surrounding grounds. Already this year the club has planted over 600 trees on land that has been under cultivation since last summer. Six more camp tables have been built to make room for more picnicers, and a general clean-up of the grounds has been carried out.

STARTED IN 1961

The Kinsmen first became interested in improving the lake back in the spring of 1961 when they decided to sponsor swimming lessons and found that the facilities were not adequate. During this first year, besides sponsoring the swimming lessons, the club joined with the Sedgewick Legion Branch to build a camp kitchen complete with stove, tables, and fresh water. During the summer several dozen fir trees were planted near th kitchen.

In the spring of 1962 the club really got rolling when they decided to build a swimming pool in one corner of the lake. This was done by constructing a dam across the lake to enclose the pool, which was then pumped dry so that it could be disinfected and dumped. To insure that the water in the pool would always be clean and fresh, a ditch was dug to a large fresh water spring located several hundred yards from the lake. This fresh water supply was allowed to fill the pool to a level several inches above the lake and then drain through a pipe in the dam and run into the lake. A pier and diving platform was added just in time for the second annual swimming lessons to get under way on July 2nd.

Besides all the work put into the swimming pool, the club also moved the repaired the dressing houses, setting them on cement pads to make a permanent installation.

Considerable more work in pla- and for this year besides what has already been accomplished in the past two weeks. Swimming lessons will be sponsored for the third consecutive year, there will be more work done on the swimming pool & beach, and the club is hoping to obtain several hundred more trees for planting in addition to the ones already put in.

Hundreds Visit Co-op "Opening"

Huge crowds of local and district people visited the Killam Co-op Store on May 14th for the official opening of the new remodelled and modernized premises, and manager Mr. Russell "Micky" Baker appeared to his satisfaction with the response of the membership and the public throughout the area. The neat and modern appearance of the store drew wide comment from the shoppers present.

The official opening of the modernized centre took place at 5.00 p. m. and was gotten under way by Board President Mr. Fred Forster, who welcomed the large crowd of visitors, brought greetings from the Board of Directors, and gave a brief history of the Killam Co-op Assn. He introduced Mr. Hank Bolak of the Federated Co-op, who brought the greetings of that Association. His Worship Mayor Hilker extended the congratulations of the village, while President R. C. Kinzer brought greetings from the Board of Trade. Mr. Baker introduced his staff to the large crowd, following which Mr. Fred Lockart brought greetings from Federated Co-op.

Guest speaker was Mr. Morris Jevne of Wetaskiwin, Vice-Pres. of Federated Co-op, who commended highly the initiative of the Killam Co-op Board of Directors, and spoke at some length on the activities of Federated Co-ops.

The ribbon cutting ceremonies were performed by Mr. E. T. Erickson, old-time member of the Co-op Assn., assisted by other long-time members.

Coffee and lunch was served to the adults, while the children enjoyed soft drinks and treats.

A CHILDHOOD DREAM. U.S. astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper slips into his spacecraft, Faith 7, minutes before making space history by becoming the fourth American to achieve orbital flight—and minutes before fulfilling a boyhood dream. As a boy, Cooper's hero was Buck Rogers, and he daydreamed of soaring through space. His father was a pilot, and so Cooper first touched a plane's controls at the age of six. Cooper's space meals included bite-size peanut butter sandwiches, probably like ones he ate as a boy while readin his Buck Rogers comic strip.—

MILLER - MACKINNON WEDDING AT GALAHAD

GALAHAD — Galahad United Missionary Church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Margaret Catherine, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Roderick MacKinnon of Lougheed, became the bride of Gerald William Miller of Hardisty. Rev. W. Ansett performed th ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza featuring lily-point sleeves. She carried an orchid on a white Bible.

The bridesmaids, Miss Pat Paterson, friend of the bride, and Mrs. Marc Geebelmann, sister of the groom, were identical waist-length dresses of rose Peau de Soie, white accessories and white headpieces, matching that of the bride. Each carried a bouquet of rose and white carnations.

The best man were Mr. Bennett MacKinnon brother of the bride, and Mr. THOMAS MINEY, 19th BIRTHDAY of the groom. Ushers were Mr. Harry Cook, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Grant Jackson brother of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a royal blue silk crepe dress with beige accessories and a rose corsage. Wedding music was played by Mr. George Davison, and Mrs. Ann Ferrier sang "A Wedding Prayer."

Following the wedding a reception for 150 guests was held in the Galahad school gym. Mrs. Beverly Davison was in charge of the guest book. Ian Burden proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom ably replied. Mrs. Ann Ferrier sang, "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose." Mr. Jos Lemoyne said a few words on behalf of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamp, aunt and uncle of the groom, sang a duet.

The Dayaland Pipe Band very beautifully piped the bridal party out.

Out of town relatives included Mr. and Mrs. Bill Patterson of Vermilion, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Gladstone, Rocky Mountain House, Mr. & Mrs. Don Miller of Edmonton, Mr. & Mrs. Ken Miller of Provostburg, and Mr. Harry Cook of Thorsby. Out of town friends were from Edmonton, Ominow, Stettler, Carter, Burdett, Daysland, Strome, Killam Sedgewick, Lougheed and Hardisty.

Wedding Bells

HARDISTY — Marlene Schultz, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schultz of Amisk exchanged vows in a double-ring ceremony with Norman Harold Usay of Edmonton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Usay of Hardisty. Roman Catholic Church with Rev. Fr. Louzasky of Holden officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white appliqued nylon sheer over taffeta. It was a sheath style with full length sleeves and featured a floor-length train. The shoulder length veil was held in place by a crown of pearls. Her only jewelry was a drop pearl necklace, gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book adorned with a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Maureen Lantiri of Sacramento, Cal., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress was of pink nylon organza over taffeta, and matching hoo bpiece and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bridesmaids were Delores Opheim and Betty Sandahl who also chose dresses of nylon organza with headpieces of aqua net and white accessories. Flower girls were Leslie Allen, niece of the bride, and Kim Benfield. They wore identical white nylon sheer dresses with white headpieces and veils. They carried baskets of pink carnations.

The best man was Doug Cargle of Edmonton. The ushers were Don Reid and Skip Reid of Edmonton.

Miss Eleanor Larsen of Edmonton played the wedding music and during the service Kaye Allen, sister of the bride sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Schultz chose a double knit wool suit in navy and white, and wore white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 168 guests was held in the Amisk hall. A beautiful three-tiered wedding cake centered the table. It was made by the bride's mother, and was decorated in the nuptial theme by Mrs. B. Chapman. Tall white candles and two bouquets of red roses completed the decorations of the head table.

Mr. Benfield proposed the toast to the bride after which Kaye Allen sang "Because." This was followed by three songs by Leslie and Harry Allen, niece and nephew of bride.

Mr, and Mrs. Usay will make their home in Edmonton.—Provost News.

Conference Plans Made by W. I. Group

LOUGHEED — The Lougheed W. I. held their May meeting at the school with 14 present and with Mrs Gus Probst presiding. Secretary's report was given by Mrs. H. Pope.

A letter of thanks was received, also a parcel of layette articles were sent to Unitarian Service. Thanks to those who donated. Plans were discussed for the constituency conference in Sedgewick on May 27th. All visitors welcome. Members please have articles ready and sent to the convenor Mrs. Riddoch.

Large Crowd Attends Variety Concert

KILLAM — The Community Hall was well filled on May 13th when a Variety Concert was given by the Hi-C group and the Choir of United Church. Several choral selections by the choir were well received. Mrs. K. W. Morris gave a fine rendition of the monologue, "The Master Comes," and this was followed by a solo "My Task" by Mrs. Shirley Forster. George Pettifor rendered the sacred solo "I'll Walk With God." Becky and Sheila Palmer sang an old English folk song, "Cockles and Mussels, Alive, Alive, Oh." A trio composed of Joan and Florence Forster and Jean Palmer sang "Now Is The Hour."

The Explorers and Tyros sang two short songs. Several Hi-C members, dressed as darkies, sang a group of Negro spirituals and other songs of the old south. They were accompanied on the accordian by Linda Morgan.

Highlight of the program was the presentation of a 5-act comedy entitled, "The New Minister Mrs. Hi-C," by the Explorers and Tyros. Mrs. Green, played by Dianne Slimmon was most anxious to marry off old maid daughter, Ellen (Marilyn Cotton) to the new minister, Rev. Crandall, played by Linda Morgan. Great hilarity was caused when a brother of Dotty Haven (Rev Forster) who was Peggy Green's (Wendy Saunders) girl friend, w s mistaken for the new minister. Bob Haven should do, and trying to keep his sister from identifying him. Peggy Green discovered the mistake & she and Bob Sale in town. When the real Crandall did arrive and Mrs. Green and Ellen realized their mistake, the curtain fell on the scene on intense disappointment as the mother collapsed in a dead faint. The new pair old daughter, Sarah Green (Beverly Larsen) added many laughs as she played the kid sister part. Darlene Steinberger rounded out the household as the maid. The players are to be commended on t eir portrayal of the characters. Plansfo for the ever long serve Mrs. Wm. Larsen and Mrs Fred Sherwood Sr Rev. K W. Morris acted as M. C.

THE RIGHT TO LIVE!

The attitudes being adopted today by courts and court judges, government officials, and even some people on the street, would almost convince one that our Criminal Code is all haywire, and our harsh treatment of law-breakers is a trespass upon their human rights. Just such development occurred in Edmonton recently when the Canadian Highway Safety Council passed a resolution calling for the Criminal Code to be revised so as to permit the admission of evidence in court of a scientific test to establish blood alcohol content. I see nothing wrong with the resolution. However an Edmonton lawyer has taken objection to the resolution on the grounds that it would be contrary to the Canadian Bill of Rights. Just what his basis of objection is, besides this, I don't know, but this I do know: the right to drive a motor vehicle on our roads is not a RIGHT to ALL citizens. Nor do I believe that it can be classed as a HUMAN right. I am more inclined to the belief that it is a privilege given to each driver who can pass the driving tests of his province. You are licensed to drive when you are judged proficient. When any driver, through impairment by alcohol, fails below this standard of proficiency his license to drive should be suspended or taken from him. After all the rest of the human race has a right to live and be protected. The primary human right is the right to live, and this right is woven into our legal and social structure. Doesn't impaired driving impinge on this human right? Statistics show that 40 percent of highway accidents across Canada can be laid to alcohol. I don't thing our legs have a leg to stand on. The Safety Council shouldbe commended for its action. Impaired motorists have certain right but one of them is not the right to operate a motor vehicle on our highways. The rest of us have human rights too, and one of them is the right to live.

THE WAY AHEAD

OTTAWA — Creation of a Canada Development Corporation to provide capital for industrial expansion is among the most controversial proposals contained in the throne speech read at the opening of the 26th parliament. Many of the proposed new body is to provide Canadian financing for enterprises of national importance which, without such financial aid, would have to turn to foreign sources for funds. It is, in a nutshell, a plan to help to keep control of firms with Canadian investment.

With the project announced in the throne speech as part of a large-scale program which Premier Pearson will bring before Parliament to restore Canada's prestige abroad, build up prosperity at home, stimulate economic growth and aim at eliminating unemployment. This last objective is a tough assignment. It means creating a quarter of a million new jobs in each of the next four years.

Other parts of the program include the formation of a Department of Industry; measures to assist the areas where unemployment is particularly high through formation of a special Federal agency for area development; establishment of a new Municipal Development and Loan Fund; creation of a National Economic Council and the provision of a capital fund for the Atlantic Development Board.

An early June budget will also be brought down by the new Government, with expected tax incentives designed to stimulate business and industry.

The Prime Minister has warned the Canadian people that the country with half a million out of work is in deep, serious and complicated economic trouble. Its problems can be solved, but they cannot be solved overnight, nor by miracle or simple cure-all promises made by Government. They require action and no Party has shown that he intends to provide action in the throne speech.

The new Prime Minister has also made it clear that in his mind and in the minds of his cabinet ministers, there are certain priorities, determined by the nation's needs and by the country's financial capacity and ability to put them into operation.

The first priority for the new Government is to take immediate and necessary measures to restore the confidence of Canadians in themselves and of the world in Canada. Already he has stirred that process by his meetings with Prime Minister Macmillan in London and President Kennedy at Hyannis Port. And he has told the Canadian people that he is determined to provide steady leadership with decisions, including hard and unpleasant decisions, if they become necessary. And he will be happy to make pleasant ones when they are possible and right and financially sensible.

The second priority is to bring down concrete measures which will expand the economy. Those measures are foremost in the throne speech. During this second priority period, new expenditures will not be made unless they will contribute to the strengthening of the economy, the elimination of unemployment, and the end of regional stagnation.

"Economy and efficiency in the use of public funds are two essential ingredients of our policy," Mr. Pearson has declared. But concentration on this second priority does not rule out an early start on some things which are desirable in themselves and which are financially and economically practicable. In this category is included the plan for contributory old age pensions, as it does not involve additional budgetary burdens.

The third priority is to improve social welfare by measures that can be paid for out of the growing economy. Among such measures — those to be started when the economy permits them to be started — would be included assistance to university resources which will add a charge to the Government's annual budget.

One of the parts of the Liberal platform which falls into this category — that is one which will not mean a charge on the National revenues — is a national health plan. The Government expects that it will be in a position to introduce such a plan by its fourth year of office. It could come earlier if the economy and economic improvement is achieved earlier than the fourth year.

Meantime, there is much speculation as to how long the Liberal Government, with its minority position, will be able to remain in office. For example, Mr. Pearson will strike his Government's life on its ruunier policies early in the new session .But the Liberals are convinced that the House will not defeat them on this issue. They believe they can count on support from some members of the Prog.-Conservative party and the Social Credit group. That will be enough to sustain the Liberal administration even though it only has 129 members in the 265-seat house. There are 95 Conservatives, 22 Social Credit members and 17 New Democrat Party members. There is one Independent Social Creditor.

Unlike the Liberals in the last session, the Conservatives and other members of the opposition will not work incessantly to bring about the defeat of the Liberal minority Government, although the Tories are committing to a policy of aggressive opposition.

As Parliament convened, the Quebec wing of the Social group was torn apart by discention and alleged clandestine plotting. The Socreds political prestige both inside and outside Quebec has suffered greatly as a result, and no one can predict precisely what they will do either individually or as a group.

Interclub competitions will start promptly at 10 a.m. on Thursday morning at the Killam Arena.

Sale will start at 1.30 p.m. at the Killam Arena on Thurs. May 30th.

CAUTION IMPORTANT!

Seeding is in full swing. Soon it will be completed and many farmers will have some seed grain left over. It is better to have enough than be short, or is it? If you have any remaining your grain it's almost better to be short. Treated grain cannot be fed and cannot be sold through the elevators. There are stiff fines for anyone caught delivering treated grain to an elevator.

Don't be caught innocently either, just because you failed to clean out the bin or the truck box or auger. One kernel of treated grain is sufficient to reject a carload.

CONTROLLING WILD OATS!

Delayed seeding is one of the most effective cultural methods of controling wild oats, says W. Lobay, Alberta's Supervisor of Soils and Weed Control. Under normal field and growing conditions wild oat infestations can be substantially reduced by this method. He suggests that an infested land seeding should not be done until the first crop of wild oats has been killed. In most areas of the province this is not until the first week of June. Though in some instances it may be as early as May 15th, depending on wild oats emergence. Oil and Gateway barley are suitable early maturing crops for delaying seeding. When seeding is delayed for wild oat control it should be sown at a heavier than normal rate and fertilizer used.

Where delayed seeding is not possible, post-seeding cultivation if often effective. Seeding should be done a little deeper than normal and cultivation started when the grain sprouts are about one-half inch long usually 4-6 days after the crop has been sown.

Avadex and Carbyne are powerful supplementary means which may also be used in controlling wild oats.

"HE WASN'T SPECIFIC . . ."

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Well, it's been another busy, busy week hasn't it? It's had enough excuse of the time, but spring it pitiless in her demands on us.

She fills a pot with boiling adrenalin, throws in a handful of humans, just out of the deepfreeze, adds a carrot of sun here, an onion of energy, and a gentle heat or renewed promise. She sprinkles it with a dash of color and a whiff of scent. She tosses in a suspicion of sunshine and stirs vigorously with a ladle of old memories until the whole thing is bubbling and gurgling.

What she comes up with, for people of all ages, is a lovely brew — experience, the essence of life.

It came to our family in three doses this week. My son took a lesson in economics, my daughter took the cat to the hospital, and I took a dozen rye speckled trout. We suffered and enjoyed in about equal proportions.

Hugh discovered the elementary thesis that canons are murder on the money. He took a girl to the high school prom. Tickets, corsage, and the inevitable post-dance snack cost him what he would spend on himself in about two months. I hoped the lesson would register, and that he'd grow up women for life. But he is human, and as all such, perverse. All it did was make him want to get a high-paying job for the summer so he could do it again, more often. I think the dance took more out of his mother than it did out of him. At any rate, she was more tired when he left for the dance than he was when he got home. This, I understand is par for the course.

On Monday my wife made one of those Kafkaesq decisions for which she is famous. After two years of coping with kittens, she snatched the phone, called the vet, plumbed the cat in Kim's arms and pushed both of them out the door. When I got home, she was wearing that smug air of decision which Caesar displayed the day he crossed the Rubicon. Or was it the Delaware?

And I don't blame her. We had spent a hideous week-end. Piper the cat was then very mature. A huge white tom prowled and howled in the back-yard. A gigantic black tom prowled and roared about the front door. Our dog reared from one to the other, rupping ferociously. They just cantered at him and retreated not an inch. This went on for hours.

Finally, I picked up the cat and hurled her out the back door. I felt just like the Russian parents in the old stories, who cleaned by orders, threw their children out of the sled one by one in the hope of slowing down the pursuers so that the others could get to safety. Anyway there'll be no more of that cacophony of ecstatic sound out here.

In an effort to save my sanity, I went trout fishing. I nearly destroyed the sentiment remnants of my wife in the rediscovery that speckled trout fishing is the most awkward, inconvenient, difficult and infuriating sport in the world.

My wife, and most women, consider trout fishing as the most ridiculous form of recreation that exists. They are right. You stagger through swamps. You slip off wet logs into ice-water. You trip over roots. You lose a hundred hooks. You battle insects. Your line is perpetually tangled around twigs, leaves, or your left ear. You puff, perspire, profane. You eat lunch with bends generously spread with an equal mixture of sweet-guts and fish-guts. If you are tremendously successful, you bring home enough fish to provide a dinner for a midget with an ulcer.

Why do men do it? There are several reasons. First, there are no women, children or cats on fishing streams. There are no telephones or doorbells jangling their nervsrattling summons. It is life tripped down to elementals. There are just you and those stupid trout. It's you or them. And once times out of ten it's you.

Don't feel sorry for the trout. They re pretty, with their colored spots, but otherwise are more than except other trout, who promptly try to eat them. And don't feel that they haven't a chance against the cruel angler. Sending a voluntary civilian against the brook trout is like sending a hippopotamus out to catch monkeys with a butterfly net.

The real reason I go trout fishing at least once a year is that it's a ritual of spring that purges the soul of those winnerings which have built up during the winter. After a long day on a rugged trout stream, even civilization looks pretty good.

NRC MEN INVESTIGATE

from the Financial Post

Research continues into new construction techniques that fit Canadian conditions of climate and soil. This work is conducted on a national level by the National Research Council.

Here the Director of the Division of Building Research gives a rundown on some of the achievements of the division, and a preview of some of the research activities ahead.

By ROBERT F. LEGGET

Condensation in far-northern build ings in mid-winter has been studied on the spot in the Arctic. The relative tightness of well-built modern buildings used in the north leads to serious moisture problems unless adequate ventilation can be provided.

A start has been made on a general study of the performance of school buildings, in one selected area, on the request of the local educational authority.

Hospital buildings present special problems of their own, some related to the high humidities that have to be maintained in parts of the buildings. One or two unusually difficult cases were looked into for hospital authorities.

The work done some years ago by DBR into the prevalence of proper conductive flooring to prevent operating rooms, to help prevent explosions due to anaesthetics, has been followed by visits to major hospitals.

The lands to which buildings are subjected can be determined only by investigations on the spot and floor lands in post offices have been measured for comparison with natural loads used in design.

Wind loads on buildings present many unusual problems. DBR has embarked on a long - term program of measuring the wind loads that actually occur on tall buildings. One of the newer structure in Ottawa is instrumented and records are being obtained at times of high wind during the present winter.

The instrumentation for studies of large buildings in active use is so complex that it can best be arranged by bringing the laboratory to the building. The division recently acquired a new mobile laboratory, built to its own design on a standard automobile chassis. It has its own power supply of guaranteed voltage for accurate instrumentation.

It is equipped with recording instruments which can be connected with measuring devices at critical points in buildings.

Designed initially for acoustical measurements in buildings, and already in use in the Ottawa area for this purpose, the mobile lab is a versatile unit that can be used with very little modification for all major types of building investigation.

At the Building Research Centre in Ottawa, the division's extensive program of laboratory research work continues, with enlarged facilities for its important work on double-glazed windows. Work in the building materials field had become so extensive that a number of the old Building Materials Section was split into two units.

One is concentrating on inorganic materials, the other on organic materials. In both units, a fundamental approach is being taken into problems common to groups of materials so that the results of the work can be shared with manufacturers.

Housing research continues in the DBR program, service to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation being one of its prime responsibilities. Visits to almost all the prefabricating plants throughout Canada have been made in the past, continuing study of non-traditional some building methods. This work is in close co-operation with the National House Builders Association.

The use of plastics in building, d in house building in particular, is under study, and experiments work in this field in other countries is being watched. The division is keenly aware of the potential presented by plastics in buildings and will be devoting increasing attention to them and to other new materials.

School Class Visits Community Press

The grade five class of Mr. R. Kruchten visited the Community Press office last week to see for themselves the "workings" of a newspaper plant. About fifteen strong the young students marched into the plant and saw first-hand the operating of a Linotype machine, the make-up of pages and the actual printing of a paper on the newspaper press.

MERNA 4-H BEEF CLUB NEWS

The Merna 4-H Club made a trip to Edmonton by bus recently, and made a tour of Riverwood's Dairy, Swift's Packing Plant, the Thaster Inn and Bonnie Doon Shopping Centre, as well as Al Oenning's Game Farm. It was an enjoyable and educational day. The following night many of the members and their leader took in the public speaking in Sedgewick for all the clubs in the Flagstaff M. D. Gail Bowman represented the Merna Club and made a very good showing, and was commended for her fine work.

One very successful and enjoyable tour and grooming day was held on April 19th. The members all looked on that the results of their work can be viewed with manufacturers.

Members of the Merna Club met at the home of Mrs. Ernest Cootes for a judging and grooming. Mr. A. Edwards, D.A., also assisting in these proceedings. Later on everyone joined in a coffee party with soft drinks and ice cream for the youngsters.

At the last regular meeting May 13th it was decided to order new shirts and ties for Achievement Day and Sale.

HARDISTY HI-L ITES

A number of Hardisty golfers attended the tournament held at Hughenden last Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Ron Anderson and baby are visited with their grandmother Mrs. Marie Anderson.

The Royal Crumbian Legion and Auxiliary met in the Rec Thursday night. Plans were finalized for it's Auxiliary building paint sale & tea; also for catering to a wedding reception. At the June meeting will be the final one of the season it is being planned to have a social evening after the business session.

Mrs Hans O'Riordan of Cameron and Mrs Ruth Shelton of Edmonton visited their mother Mrs. Boag in hospital on Monday Day.

The Cancer Crusade sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary received a very generous response. Canvas and tagging yielded $160.66, and a donation of $100 from I. P. L., made a total of $260.66. The Sunshine Club of South Hardisty donated $10. Our thanks to all.

Gary Salmon was at home for the long week end.

Pte. L. C. L. Matthews, son of Mr and Mrs H. Matthews, has been awarded the Canadian Armed Forces decoration for 12 years of meritorious service. He is serving with the RCAF recruiting unit in Regina.

The sympathy of all is extended to the Dreger families on the death on Friday of their mother, Mrs. Dreger in an Edmonton hospital. She had suffered a lengthy illness.

Good Crowd Sees Teen Town Play

HARDISTY — Over ninety people attended Teen Town's first play entitled "Et." The cast for the play was as follows: Mary, Beth Hilen; Louise, Sandra Gregory; Bud, Larry Sather; Van Slyke, Allen Nelson; Mr. Davison, Evan Bell. The M. C. was Darlyne Freeman, and the play was directed by Esther Heffernan.

The comedy of the play centered around deafness and cures along with causes.

Darlyne Freeman opened with a musical number entitled Golden Band. At the conclusion of the evening Mrs. Marna Lehr and Pr. Heffernan were presented with gifts on behalf of the organization.

The entire cast was invited to the Lon Golka home for lunch.

Dorothy Armitage Feted at Shower

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick United Church hall was decorated on May 18th in grand western ranch style, complete with an artificial moon shining overhead to honor Miss Dorothy Armitage at a miscellaneous shower. The guest book was in charge of Dorothy's cousin, Joan Armitage, while several ranch 'girls' received the guests. Just before the guest of honor and her mother arrived, a group of "cow girls" and ranch hands entered and arranged themselves in a semi-circle on the floor, with Miss Joan Odegard heading the guitar.

When the guest of honor arrived, Mrs. Arthur Edwards as M. C., opened the program with a western reading, followed by a number of western songs and duets by the western friends.

Dorothy, assisted by her sister Patsy, cousin Gail Swainson, and Joann Odegaard, opened the many beautiful and useful gifts which had been brought in a covered wagon by several little girls singing "Roll Along Covered Wagon." Dorothy thanked everyone for the most lovely evening, and invited them to visit teen in their future home.

Hereford Tops Price At Hardisty Bull Sale

HARDISTY — A Hereford Bull from the Henderson Ranch at Forestburg topped the 1963 Bull Sale at Hardisty on May 10th. The 3rd annual Bull Sale was sponsored by the Hardisty Livestock Assn.

The Henderson Bull sold for $650, and went to P. Mailer of Cadogan. In th Hereford class there were 39 bulls, averaging $412 with the top bringing $550.

There were 10 in the Angus class, averaging $287 with the top at $450, a bull from the D. M. Wilson ranch at Killam, and purchased by Dempsey of Irma.

There were only two Shorthorns, and they averaged $375 with the top of $420 purchased by C. Hopworth of Lougheed.

Animals topping the $300 mark were contributed by John Cress of Vermilion, R. B. Peterson, Ohaton; N. Wold and Son, Alliance; Harry and Art Long, Irma and E. A. Henderson of Forestburg.

Buyers present came from an area of 100 miles around, and the Auctioneers were Archie MacDonald & A. Fleming.

A luncheon was held at noon for contributors, buyers and officials. Stu Penton of Irma was speaker.

Would you rather have your electric utilities collect
TAXES
... or pay them?

Last year Alberta's free enterprise electric utilities paid over six million dollars in federal taxes. Almost 50% of this came back to Alberta for roads, schools, hospitals and other services.

It is important to remember that although government-owned utilities do not pay federal taxes, someone has to pay them.

Wouldn't you rather have your electric utilities pay taxes? – while serving you at rates carefully controlled by the provincial government.

ANOTHER FEATHER IN HIS CAP. Bruce Kidd, Canada's world famous distance runner, receives an Iroquois headdress from Chief Howard Skye of the Iroquois Indians. Presentation was in Hamilton, Ont., in memory of Tom Longboat, a Canadian Iroquois who became a champion distance runner of another day.—

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Canton, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE HUNGRY THIRTIES

After a few years of fairly good crops, just good enough that we "Were eating daylight," the depression was on us, and I'm sure there are a great many of those oldtimers of the 30's who will never forget those grim years.

The only thing that seemed to thrive (and I do mean thrive) were the tumbling weed and the Russian Thistle. When fall came, and these weeds became dried out, one could see them coming, sailing across the fields, scattering their seeds along the way finally piling up against the fences where the seed from fields had packed amongst them, completely obliterating not only the wire, but the posts as well. There wasn't a thing we could do about it either, but hope and pray that it wouldn't last too long.

But that was all wishful thinking. Seven years went by, each one worse if possible than the previous one. We had to resort to unbelievable strategies to feed and clothe our children and keep them in school.

Then the tide turned and in the spring of '37 rains came, and parcels of ground drank it up. Here rain fell until by pooling time the ground was in splendid shape. After seven years with scarcely no crops, the farmers had very little seed, so the bank came forward offering loans, knowing that now there should be the good crops of former years, and they were safe in making loans.

The summer came and went; fall drew on and the fields were a picture. We were all so happy and lighthearted, planning for future improvements; replacement of worn-out floor coverings, furniture, and clothes, etc. But fate decreed otherwise. There were still more disappointments and heart-breaks.

It happened on a Saturday evening, July 31st, 1937. I shall never forget that date. The day had been hot, right from early morning. The men had spent the forenoon fixing up and repainting the grain bins, as from all indications, there would be a really bumper crop. Some of the family went to town in the afternoon, including myself and dad, to do the weekly shopping, purchasing groceries for the threshing for the next week.

There wasn't breath of air moving. It seemed the whole world was holding its breath for some spectacular event. So we hurried with the shopping and started home, as by this time we had become quite alarmed at the looks of the sky that had taken on an ugly, dark-gray look, the storm clouds edged with white, banking up in the south-west.

The storm struck just as we turned into our lane, nearly upsetting the car, as the wind hit it broad-side with terrific force. When we drove up to the door the youngsters came running out, terrified at the looks of the on-coming storm.

Next week I shall endeavor to describe that storm.

The RED X Means TIME TO RENEW

1908 — FIFTY-FIFTH YEAR — 1963 SEDGEWICK, Alberta, THURSDAY, MAY 30TH, 1963 Volume 54 — Number 8

Contract Awarded For School Construction

SEDGEWICK — Advance crews of Briden Construction Ltd. pulled into town last week and commenced preliminary work on the new school construction here. The plans call for construction of the new building at once with renovations to the present high school to start just as soon as school is out. Crews also commenced activities at Dayaland, Heisler and Alliance, thus making a start on the entire program of building planned for this year by the School Division.

The heavy detailed agenda of the Board is indicated by the minutes of meetings which follow below.

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of Killam School Division No. 22 was held, with the following trustees present: Nielsen, Pelekoyko, Clouston, Grant & Bunz, along with Supt. Bruce.

Mr. Grewa attended the meeting and opened tenders at 10.10 a.m. on the construction and remodelling of buildings at Sedgewick, Daysland, Heisler and Alliance. Tenders were received.

It was moved that the combined bid of Briden Construction be tentatively accepted pending further investigation by the Architect relative to reduction of costs in line with the Foundation Program:

(a) Installation of propane heating unit at Daysland and Sedgewick.

(c) Relocation of sewer line to N. E. manhole at Alliance plus any other feasible structural and material changes that might come to the Architect's attention. Official acceptance to be postponed to later.

The budget estimates of revenue and expenditures for 1963 were approved, and it was passed that the collecting authorities of the Killam School Division be requisitioned for the additional sums as listed hereunder: M. D. Flagstaff $13,986.60; Daysland $774; Sedgewick $666; Hesketty $622; Killam (public school share) $594; Alliance $342; Strome $324; Lougheed $270; Heisler $234. Total of $18,920.00, which is approximately 1.5 mills on equalized assessment.

The bid of Beaver Lumber, Killam to supply 8100 square feet of asphalt strip shingles at $864.00, was accepted; Tender received for ten purchase of 1963 GMC bus by Jens Lindseth for $350 was accepted. Five tender bids were opened for purchase of two new 54 passenger buses on Ford chassis. The lowest tender of $6007.80 per bus FOB Killam, from Blue Bird Bus Sales at Clover Bar, was accepted.

Mrs. Ann Petersen was granted a leave of absence from her teaching duties without pay from May7th to June 30, 1963; Mrs. Leona Roggenbuck was granted leave of absence without pay the 1st week in June in order to attend a convention. Mr. Wiese's resignation from the Principalship and staff of Alliance School was accepted, effective June 30th. Resignation of Clara Hoek and Betty Carrel were accepted.

John William Parry was hired as a temporary teacher at Alliance Hi from May 7 to June 28. Mrs. Edith Lemay was engaged as temporary teacher at Morso during the absence of Mrs. Rich.

Dr. Sebastian's resignation from vice-principalship & staff of Heisler School was accepted. Dr. St. Holm was hired for the staff at Heisler.

Miss Taylor of Halkirk was offered a position at Home Ec. teacher at Alliance, Galahad and Provincial circuit. Keith Robson was appointed as Supervisor of Instruction, with the understanding that his duties & salary be shared proportionately with Provincial, Galahad and Killam R. C. S. S.

A rental agreement was entered into with F. E. Compton of Canada to rent 20 sets of Compton's Canadian Pictured Encyclopedia for a period of 4 years at a rental of $34 per set per annum, with 4 additional sets to be sent as a bonus.

Wm. Johnson was requested to proceed with renovations to Sedgewick Shop as outlined in sketch plan drawn up by him and approved by the Board.

Prov. Supervisor of Industrial Art.

In accordance with Part D and Part F (1) (b) of the Foundation regulations, transportation and tuition agreements be entered into with Forestburg, Galahad, Beaver County, and Camrose County. Said agreements to provide those students to borderline students mutually agreed upon and at no cost to either party.

It was passed that the accident reports received on Gail Lemay from Daysland, Maurice Bruneau of Daysland, Linda Little of Daysland, Doris Yeomanski of Daysland and Gordon Thorp of Hardisty, be filed as no negligence is apparent.

Since the last offer of the Board on a new salary schedule was rejected by the local A.T.A., secretary is to arrange to have the teachers' negotiating committee again meet with the Board.

ADJOURNED MEETING

The following was passed: That Calgary Power be requested to remove power meters at Morso; Accounts on Vouchers 1698 to 1742 be authorized to be paid; that resignation of Donald Geddes from teaching staff of Killam School Division be accepted, effective June 30th, 1963; that Mrs. Leona Roggenbuck be engaged as travelling music teacher, serving those schools on Highway 13 that may be best arranged into a beneficial daily schedule. Duties are to commence Sept. 3, 1963; that the chairman, Mr. Nielsen be appointed representative of the Division to the Executive of Zone 3; that grants of $255 and $425 respectively be made to the Winnifred Stewart School for Retarded Children and the Camrose School for Retarded Children.

It was moved and passed that the provisions of Sec. 16 (A,5) (c) of the Public Service Vehicles Regulations re: semi-annual bus inspections of Divisional buses be adopted and that the divisional mechanic arrange a schedule of the semi-annual inspection of all divisional-owned buses.

It was passed, that subject to approval of the Minister, the combined tender bid of Briden Construction in Edmonton in the amount of $364,000 be accepted for remodelling the new construction at Sedgewick, Daysland Heisler and Alliance. Contract includes supply and installation of 30 pre-cast type desks at Sedgewick, 16 at Daysland, 14 at Heisler and 18 at Alliance. Total cost will be $416,515, no broken down as follows: Briden Construction $364,000, Architect Fee $22,000; Business Education Equip. $14,395, Science Equipment $6,620, Furniture (Estimated) $4000.

Approved costs to be picked up by the Government under the Foundation Program regulations estimated at $367,500. Ineligible costs $48,513 to be met from capital and general fund surpluses of $33,000 and a further debenture issue of $18,000.

Matter of installing bathroom fixtures in the Strome Tuncherage during the summer, was tabled. Permission was granted Sedgewick Cadet Corps to relocate the old Parkhill School on Sedgewick School grounds. All Janitors of the division will be given a 5 percent increase in salary effective May 1st, 1963.

Due to the transfer of the present Sec.-Treas. pension to the Public Pension Board, authorization was given the School Secretaries' Superannuation Board to transfer all the Division's contributions in the School Secretary Superannuation Fund to the credit of Edward Berth in the Public Service Pension Board.

Resignation of Sharon Robson was accepted from the teaching staff; an extension of time was granted Elva Geddes on her nursery commitment to enable her to return to University for another year; Sec. and one trustee were authorized to attend a short course in school administration at Banff June 3, 4 and 5.

The teacher salary committee met the Board at 4.15 p.m. Board made the following offer: Raise the maximum in the first year of training to $4600 and to changes in the other years, from March 26, 1963.

300 Boys Playing In Organized Baseball

The 1963 Little League Baseball schedule, including Lougheed, Sedgewick, Killam, Strome, Daysland and Heisler, kicked off on Friday, May 24th, with action on all fronts, according to Brian Lee, League Statistician.

In Little League play Killam defeated Heisler 9-1, Lougheed licked Strome 20-3 and Sedgewick stopped Daysland by 19-3.

In Pony League Killam over Heisler 14-3 and Lougheed over Strome 3-2. Daysland and Sedgewick did not play. With only three teams entered in the Pony Grad League, Sedgewick squeezed by Killam 2-1.

The league has been considerably improved this year with the addition of Heisler who have two teams. This gives a more even schedule with five games on the road and five at home with each team. Neither Lougheed or Strome have been able to field a Pony Grad team. Killam is unable to accomodate this team due to a shortage of playing fields so home games will be played in either Days land or Sedgewick.

The coaches and managers of the teams urge parents of the boys to take more interest. Over 300 boys are playing on the various teams. Each Little League coach has to try to keep 35 to 40 ambitious youngsters under control and come up with a ball team. Some towns have started farm clubs to look after all the boys who can't make the first team. These teams require a lot of help, so please help make your sons better ball players and better citizens.

WINS AWARD

(By Donna Cookson)

SEDGEWICK — David Grymolecky of Killam, a student at Sedgewick Central High School, has been awarded first prize in the grade 11 division of an annual province-wide spring essay competition, sponsored by the Canadian Petroleum Association, Alberta Division.

David's essay, entitled "What the Oil and Gas Industry Means to My Province" was selected as the best from among over 1200 entries which came from all parts of Alberta. This victory has earned David a prize of one hundred dollars.

The presentation to David of an engraved silver cup commemorating his achievement, will be made by an official of the Canadian Petroleum Assn. at the annual Shop and Home Ec. Achievement Day to be held on June 19 in Central High School.

David's win marks the second occasion on which Central High has been successful in this particular contest. Last year Dennis Cookson gained first prize with her essay in the grade 10 division.

LIBERALS NOMINATE LEE SIMMS

Mr. Lee Simms, Vetaviva, was nominated by the Liberal Party, in convention on May 24th at Coronation, to contest the provincial seat in the Sedgewick-Coronation Constituency in the June 17th election.

Mr. Simms won the seat in Coronation in 1955, defeating the then Hon. Mr. Gerhart. In 1960 he lost out to Mr. Kolbe.

During the meeting an Executive Board was elected as follows: Chairman, Eugene Price of Consort; Vice Chairman, Paul Dreger, Hardisty; Sec.-Treas., A. Orr, Consort.

Nine New Records At Annual Track Meet

The Annual A. T. A. Highway 13 Track and Field Meet was held last Friday with grades one to six competing at Sedgewick and grades seven to twelve taking to the field at Daysland.

This year's Meet featured two new events, the one mile open medley relay race for the boys and a half mile open medley relay for the girls. Both of these new events were won by the Central High school this year.

Several new records went into the books out of this Meet:

GRADE 7 TO 12 BOYS—

Shotput: Alden Broenling of Daysland, 49 ft. 8 in.;

220 Dash: Roy Wilson, Central, 27"

Shotput (12 & 13): Dale Grieve of Lougheed, 33 ft. 11 in.;

High Jump (14 & 15): Larry Brinker, Daysland, 5 ft 1 in.

GRADE 7 TO 12 GIRLS—

75 Dash (12 & 13): Theresa Peterson, Sedgewick, 10.4 sec;

Softball Throw: Sandra Pederson, Central, 176 feet;

Relay (12 & 13): Daysland, 45.3 Sec.

Hugh Jump (12 & 13): Sharon Fast Sedgewick, 4 ft 1 in.

The school standings for the Meet computed by comparing the points won to the school population, are:

GRADES 7 TO 12—

1st, Strome; 2nd, Central High; 3rd Daysland High; 4th, Sedgewick Public; 5th, Lougheed; 6th, Killam Public; 7th, Hardisty.

GRADES 1 TO 6—

BISHOP OFFICIATES AT SERVICE

KILLAM — On Thursday evening, May 16th, the service of Baptism and Confirmation was conducted by the Bishop of Edmonton, the Rt. Rev. Burch, in St. George's Anglican Church, Killam. This was the first joint service at which all five points in the parish took part.

Those who took upon themselves full church membership were, Bob Lougford, Margaret Paulsen, Beverly Paulsen, all of Holy Trinity Church, Hughendan. Gordon Lehr, Sandra Thorp, of St. Mark's, Hardisty; Dinah Flanagan of St. John's mission; and Norman Matthews, Mrs. Constance Matthews of St. George's, Killam. Mrs. Maureen Collins, also a member of St. George's, was received from the Church of Rome.

Represented by host Confirmants, Mr. Peter McCalman, who is presently in his third year of Theology at the Anglican College in Saskatoon, and Mrs. Phyllis Bloom, Miss. Ann Bloom was baptized by the Bishop.

Acting as Bishop's Chaplain was Mr. Tony Steele, a former resident of Killam and now a student at the Anglican College in Saskatoon. Canon Crowley, Priest in Charge, and Mr. W. Peake the Lay Reader, assisted in the service. John Chapman was the Bishop's server.

Mr. E. Beairsto was at the organ and also accompanied the Sedgewick Choir in the singing of an anthem, under direction of Mr. T. Chapman.

Following the service, a fellowship hour was held in the Church Hall at which St. George's W. A. served a delicious lunch.

"NEW EARLY MATURING WHEAT"

The Federal Department of Agriculture has licensed for sale in Canada a new early maturing hard red spring wheat called "Park". It is reported to outyield Saunders but ripen about the same time. Park was developed at La combe, Alberta and has been tested for seven years. About 800 bushels of seed will be available this fall.

"STUDENTS ASSISTANCE ACT"

Hon. A. O. Aalborg, Minister of Education, announced this week that the maximum borrowings under the Students Assistance Act have been increased by $100 per year to a $500 limit, and by $600 for the complete course. During 1962-63 found year more than 7500 students obtained help under the Act to continue their University or Technical education. Enquiries should be sent to the Students Assistance Board, Department of Education, Administration Building in Edmonton.

"FROM BAD TO WORSE"

Things keep getting worse in the Cuban economy. Just over a year ago Castro started a system of rationing on almost every conceivable item. Now it is being reliably reported that Cubans aren't even buy the amounts specified in their ration books, because the commodities just aren't available. Clothing is now considered priceless, and a lively black market is selling food, etc. People now go to bed with the sun because there isn't enough electricity to operate lights in most parts of Cuba.

"SIXTH HART FOR HOWE"

Gordie Howe, 35-year-old right winger with Detroit Red Wings, has won the Hart Trophy for an unprecedented sixth time. The Hart Trophy is given to the man who is voted the most valuable player in National Hockey.

"DRIVER TRAINING COURSE"

Applications are now being accepted for the Driver Training Course which will be held on the University of Alberta Campus in Edmonton from August 12th to 23rd. The course is designed primarily for high school teachers, but others may be accepted. Financial assistance is available for those living in this area in the amount of $180 to help cover expenses.

LEADERS IN 4-H CLUBS DESERVE PRAISE!

That leaders, parents and others who sponsor and assist with the 4-H movement in Canada deserve full credit for their efforts was indicated recently by the president, J. R. Racine of Brampton, Ontario. In his opening remarks to the 32nd annual meeting of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs in Winnipeg, Mr. Racine said of the 56th anniversary, "Fifty years young not fifty years old would seem more appropriate to describe the present station of life in Canada's 4-H movement, as we enter a stage when expansion and growth in 4-H was never more alive.". Mr. Racine, who is a branch manager for the Mutual Life Assurance Company, paid high tribute, and rightly so, to extension workers, community leaders, parents and 4-H Club members who fostered and developed club work to the high point of achievement it now enjoys, especially those who pioneered the various phases of youth activity before the year 1913 when the first clubin Canada was formed. In years gone by activities, the president observed that the Golden Anniversary Year celebrations were exceeding all expectations. Such events yet to come are the tribute and grant of patronage from Gov.-General and Madame Vanier; the receiving of the 1963 National Citizenship Award; the active participation by Canada's 4-H members in the World Freedom from Hunger Campaign. These events are sharing places of particular merit in 1963, a Golden Anniversary Year. In looking into the future, Canada's young people are looking for guidance and direction as they prepare for the future. To keep in step with the changing times in a world that keeps moving at an ever increasing pace, the 4-H Council must do its part to keep healthy, vigorous and ever alert to the need to adjust to the requirements of the day. Greater liason with the departments of government, business and agriculture, a sustained public relations program and the ever present need to develop financial support, are very important elements that need constant attention. We join with many others, in this Golden Anniversary Year, to wish 4-H Clubs across Canada a healthy future.

A University of Toronto professor believes that Canadian teachers are going to have to take over the family training of children because parents have given up on their job. He says they cannot be trusted to prepare children for a happy married life, and indicates that parents and children alike need help, which can only be provided by specially trained teachers in our schools. This must be started early in their academic life, he says, because of the inadequacy of proper training for married life in the home, and the low percentage of youngsters who finish their high school.

CRANES VS MAN IN A FAST WORLD!

A news release the other day caught my attention. It was to the effect that 12 whooping cranes have been lost. Only 20 of the 88 left, are accounted for. It seemed rather odd to me that so much is being made over whooping cranes and so little over the survival of man. Of course there are a lot of us, and maybe we're expendable. For instance take a look at the delight some people get in watching two humans get into a ring a beat each other into the meanest heaps of bloody pulp; even killing each other in the process — and under the name of sport. Take a look at the annual traffic toll, mostly caused by carelessness, the use of strong drink and the desire for the thrills of speed. Ponder the unnecessary deaths through accidents the just because somebody failed to take precautions to meet rules of safety. Really, we don't have a very high regard for human life, but we must preserve whooping cranes.

A FORK IN THE ROAD

OTTAWA — No one was unduly startled when the new Government of Lester Pearson pledged itself in the Speech from the throne to "seek out new paths." The phrase, when it was noticed at all, was skipped over as one of those inevitable exercises in bombast which are the delight of Governments, particularly when they are writing Throne Speeches. It is now becoming clear however, that the Pearson Government may have meant what it said. In the days since it came to office, and in the Speech from the Throne read at the opening of Parliament, there is a blueprint which could produce structural and deeply significant changes in Canadian life.

These changes, if they come, and if the minority Government successfully initiates its program, will delight some Canadians and horrify others. They will, in the economic field, a greater degree of Government direction and intervention than has ever been known in Canada.

They involve, in the social field, a determined effort to give a new direction to relations between English speaking and French speaking Canada, between the Federal Government and the provinces — replacing less than re-making of the historic Confederation which in 1967 will celebrate its centenary.

The intentions of the Liberals in these two fields were explored during the election campaign. There may have been some listeners who wrote it off as if off to electioneering, and others who failed to note the full import of what was meant. That full import is now being felt in Ottawa through questioning in the House of Commons and through preliminary explanations of the legislation which is being presented. Economic legislation, for example, is based on the premise that unemployment is the most serious domestic problem. Nothing much new about that sentiment. Many a politician has said it.

What is new is the Liberal economic gospel behind this statement. In other words the provision of jobs for Canadians has become the most important objective in more than sense only — more important than outworn free enterprising concepts, more important than supply and demand in the market, more important than balanced budgets.

The sharpness of this turn, a left turn it must be said, towards a planned economy, is apparent in the first four economic measures introduced by the new Government.

Perhaps most important is the Canada Development Corporation to direct Canadian savings into investment in Canadian industry. This is also aimed at diluting the effect of the massive foreign ownership of Canadian industry and is a most determined effort in that direction.

This will be achieved by the sale of stocks and bonds in the corporation to the public at favorable interest rates. The proceeds will be invested in Canada.

A Municipal Development & Loan Board, with a bankroll of $400,000,000 of Government funds will make capital available to Municipalities for public works. Again its imaginative scheme involving a large degree of intervention by a federal agency into the type and amount of money to be provided in a selective manner to bodies which are the creatures of the Provinces.

Another planning body is envisaged in an Economic Council of Canada which will assist the Government, Industry and Labor to ensure the highest possible levels of employment, of efficient production, and sustained economic growth.

"AND SOMEBODY'S BEEN SLEEPING IN MY BED . . . !"

And the fourth measure calls for strengthening of the Atlantic Development Board, increasing its members, and giving it a capital fund of $100 million for promotion of basic projects in the Atlantic region.

This program, which has already been attacked by opposition leader Diefenbaker as a move towards "bur eaucratic autocracy", accurately reflects the attitudes of the new Government. It is a left wing program, but in a new sense. The Liberal forward thinkers, and Mr. Pearson himself is among them, have been influenced by European economic developments. The previous Government, with export insurance, small busin-

TEEN CAMP!

The PU and CDA are sponsoring a Teen Camp at their Gold Eye Lake Camp on July 7th to 13th. Young adults between the ages of 16 and 21 years may attend. The cost is nominal, $22, including transportation from Wetaskiwin. An extensive educational program is planned. If you are interested or know of anyone who would be interested, you can pick up application forms from the D. A. office in Sedgewick, or phone 60, Sedgewick, and we will forward the forms to you.

42ND ANNUAL FEEDERS' DAY!

The results of 18 projects studied during the last year by the Department of Animal Science at the U. of A. and current livestock discases will be discussed at this year's annual Feeders' Day being held in the University Livestock Pavilion, Sat., June 1st. Dr. J. G. O'Donoghue, Extension Veterinarian, will be the authority on animal disease questions.

Information from research specialists on cattle breeding and feeding experiments will include reports on the beef cattle breeding project at Kinsella; feeding bulls, and finishing steers on vitamin A, zinc supplements and stilbesterol.

The dairy cattle section will cover such subjects as night pasturing; high concentrate rations, effects of supplements on heifer consumption of oat straw and feeding dairy calves.

The seven reports on pig experiments will include the following topics: Lister size and pig survival in purebred and crossbred sows; the influence of nutrition on reproduction; antibiotic and copper sulphate supplements; the relationship of grade to carcass cut-out; indoor versus outdoor feeding during the summer, rations for market pigs, and excess calcium in pig rations.

Feeders' Day will start at 10 a.m. in the University of Alberta Livestock Pavilion, 116 St. and 84 Ave., Edmonton. Lunch will be available on the grounds. Make this one of your annual events to attend.

FARM WEATHER FORECAST!

Don't forget to listen for the Alberta Farm Weather Forecast starting May 27th. The Dept. of Agriculture and the Public Farmers Office of the Dept. of Transport decided to start this service two weeks earlier this year because so many farmers depended upon it for planning last summer's farming operations.

The daily forecast, especially aimed for the farmer, will be available to all radio and TV stations from Monday to Saturday inclusive. Reports will cover a two-day period with an outlook for a third. When conditions permit a fourth day will be added.

A survey conducted last fall shew ed that approximately 70 percent of the third-day forecasts were rated as very useful by farmers in Alberta. This means they could be completely relied upon from the point of view of accuracy. The same survey also showed that 74 percent of the farmers contacted made a definite effort to see that some mention of the forecast was made before they planned their work particularly during haying and harvesting time.

This is the third year the Dept. of Agriculture has conducted the Farm Weather Forecast Service which is prepared by R. J. Godwin and the Edmonton Meteorological Office.

You'd never know it to look at me but I will observe my 43rd birthday this week. What I mean is, if you are six, you'll think I'm at least 60, and if you're 66, you'll think I'm only about 29.

Each year, at birthday time, I like to make a brief analysis of my character, my success in life, my likes and dislikes, and anything else that happens to crop up.

As far as character goes, I am confident that there is a steady improvement. Some people deteriorate morally as they grow older. I get better and better. Really.

Take smoking for example. I used to smoke like a chimney. I even smoked inside. One day I put my razor in my mouth and took a drag on it, and tried to take off my whisk ers with a hot butt. It was because I was reading at the time, of course. Now, I never read, smoke and shave at the same time. It's pretty boring, just reading and shaving, or smoking and shaving, but I've stuck to it.

I also received an object lesson about smoking in bed. One night my wife came home from a meeting, walked into the bedroom and was confronted by a pillar of smoke. I have never smoked in bed since, except when I was reading.

I've pretty well conquered drink too. I used to take a drink at the drop of a hat. Then late went out of fashion among men, for a few years so I took a drink just to prove that I didn't have a single-track mind. Hats are back now, but it doesn't bother me. When I take a wee, I stick to it. And a few years ago, I swore a solemn oath that I'd never take another drink unless we had company, or were alone.

I've given up playing around, too. This occurred last New Year's Eve when my wife caught a lady kissing me with gay abandon. She didn't mind as Auld Lang Syne been on much. It was the gay abandon that got her. She claimed it was natural.

I haven't kicked a dog in years. Except Playboy, our spaniel, when he helped me out with the garbage the other day. I haven't shouted at a child since I don't know when except when Kim arrived home Thursday afternoon with a b by squirrel that had fallen out of a tree, and wanted to adopt it.

Well, then, the morals are on the upswing. As for success in life, I think things are going well there too. When I was married I didn't have a thing. Now I have three mortgages. My name is a Household word. What more could one ask of success?

With regard to my likes and dislikes, that's easy. I like summer. Today I was out in a swamp, and I saw a rabbit, three partridge, a deer and a wild duck, all within easy range. I had a fishing rod. That's why I like swamps.

I like lean-cuts. From July 1st to September 4th, I find them the most fascinating, lively, offer-to-meet, intriguing group I ever had nothing to do with.

I like gin (scrambled) and legs (chicken). I like May and September. I like individuals as long as they are being individual with somebody else. I enjoy crowds, when they are somewhere else.

I don't like: humorless people; those who try to impose their morals on others; dirty jokes that are not funny; waking up in the morning; going to bed at night; phonies; work; cats. I also don't like people with more money than I, people who are smarter than I, people who are better looking than I. In fact, I don't like many people.

Now for the ebbs and ends of my birthday analysis. If everyone following my rules, few would live past 30. And I would never have been right.

You are old, Father William. Oh, trust so!

How come, then, my daughter would rather play catch with me than anyone?

How come my son says "Dad, when are you gonna grow up!"

How come my wife says, "Stop acting like a child!"

Well, all I can say, in the face of all that evidence, is "Happy Birthday to you!" And I do mean me.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE STORM BREAKS

It had become so dark by 6 o'clock that we had to light the lamps (no electric lights on the farms in those days). We were all sitting around the kitchen table eating, with a tall coal oil lamp lit, sitting in the centre, when there was a deafening roar, a flash of lightning, a crash of glass, then darkness. The glass from one of the windows near the table, as well as the lamp glass, had crashed onto the table, into the fruit, the butter, into everything on the table.

Then the hail came, driven by a terrific wind. Of course it came in through the broken window like stones hurled by a gigantic hand. We ran upstairs. There we found two windows in the big bedroom and one in the boys' room broken, and rain being driven clear across the room, into the clothes closets.

The younger children were terrified with flashes of lightning (the truthful). Everyone was running around, trying to plug up the holes where the windows had been blown in, wiping up floors, lighting more lamps, etc., all the time doing their best to be heard above the roar of the storm, also above the noise of hailstones hitting the galvanized roof of the kitchen shed. Some of the stones were as big as pullet's eggs, and being driven by such terrific winds the noise was ear-splitting.

The hail storm itself just lasted a matter of minutes, but it was a real heavy down-pour of rain lasted all night.

It was heartbreaking to see the stricken faces of the older members of the family. They realized, to a certain extent, the enormity of the damage done in those few minutes. They knew, too, that we, as well as several of our neighbors had dropped our hail insurance (after carrying it all through those years of depression). We saw our dreams of better, easier, more carefree times literally "gone with the wind", and hail, of course.

At daylight the men put on their high rubber boots and waded out to the back of the place where their best wheat had been. The grits and I went out to see the remains of our beautiful garden. We walked ankle deep in leaves which had been blown from the trees. The garden? Where yesterday there had been bushels of vegetables, now there were only stems and sticks. The hard part was to see the farmers who had escaped the storm, threshing bumper crops the next week, while we stacked the naked stocks and broken straw. The one or two small fields which had not been cut before the storm, we cut as best we could with the mower and stacked it for winter feed.

Although this was a severe blow, we HAD to keep on, and by selling two pigs of 75 to 80 pounds each, at 3c a pound, and our surplus cattle, we managed even to help two of the children attend Normal School and College, later.

Sure, we felt discouraged at the time, but we all kept "plugging ahead," as after all where would the world be today if the farmer quit when adversity struck? Remember, always, the farmer is the "Hub of the Wheel".

Cards Of Thanks

The families of the late Mrs. Elisabeth Dreger wish to express their sincere thanks to all who sent cards, floral tributes, donations and messages of sympathy. To the ladies who brought or sent the delicious cakes, cookies, buns, sandwiches and cream to the house, and anyone who helped serve and make coffee, a special thank you. To the Rebekahs, Rev. Magee and Kirkman's Funeral Home, a thank you. It was certainly all appreciated very much, in our sorrow in the loss of our dear mother. — The Dreger Families. 1 p

HARDISTY FLAKES

(By Postie)

Now that it appears we have spring, out come the wild oats, Postie and the weeds. I've actually had lots of time to park out a column but being a somewhat moody writer, I only do it when the spirit moves me, and it would appear that I've had very little spirit. Methinks I should induce the mood by injecting a little of Uncle Earl's bottled variety.

The Town is humming these days with preparations for the Annual Stampede June 7th and 8th, and the site and chuck wagon race track, is fast taking shape. I said that it just couldn't be done, but if current progress continues the new grounds will be ready in time. I'm the first to admit I was wrong, and am happy to do so. We can use help though, and this is an appeal for help of any kind. Even a few hours of your time helps make it that much easier for somebody else. How about it?

Old three-hole is happy to report that the new golf course is much in operation. We have reminded & oiled the greens and have some fencing done. By the way the fairways are greening up and the mower will have to be run over them during the next week. We do need your support both actively and financially. Please help us improve the layout by doing your share. We of the executive gallantly thank Mrs. Mildred Redmon for the most generous donation of a tractor to the Club. We certainly needed one of our own, and the gift is most welcome. Thank you again, Mrs. Redmon.

The long weekend resulted in visits from the Hal Gaetz of Rimby Plain, and Ralph Daw of Manville, both former Hardisty residents. Hal and Millie are both well, and like the town of Rimby Plain. Ralph Daw also is enjoying good health and asked to be remembered to all.

I always like to sound off about something, and the subject this go-round is the hike in the price of our sugar. It would appear to yours truly that it's high time our provincial government got up off their fat fannies and started asking a few questions of a sugar refinery right here in this wonderful province, as to why the price of sugar has climbed from around $10 to $18 in about 8 months. They, the government, prater at us to buy Alberta made products, then allow a product that is grown and manufactured right in this fair province to be priced right out of the reach of some people of modest means. I fail to see how the world market conditions can effect us. If these in power would look after the interests of us who reside in Alberta. I always have a smoking suspicion that a lot of these so-called shortages are created. Maybe you recall the coffee racket of a few years back. I do wonder how many lavish swimming pools and Caddies were purchased with the profits of coffee. It would appear this time the morals are setting their goals on an ocean-going cruiser, or country estate.I would like to see the governor-to-be getting a little concerned about the wages of life which should grace the tables of recipients of the family allowances and old age pensions, and have about increases. The ever increasing spiret of the cost of living is never met by increases which are only vain bait anyway. Maybe some party with enough guts to peg the concening of life for those people would help a great deal more. Here's hoping that your coffee isn't too bitter.

Well, after that outburst I'll get myself down town and snitch a few spoons of sugar, I must have the gold on my cereal.

F.U.A. Newsletter

● The Farmers' Union and Co-operative Development have will hold a Consumer and Credit Management Camp from June 23-28 at Gull Eye Lake, the camp of Junior FUA. Forty to fifty persons are expected to attend this camp.

● The Ontario Hog Marketing Board sells more than 2 million hogs a year for a gross of some $100 million. Collective marketing makes it possible for the farmer, however small he may be, to have a measure of bargaining power in the market. Alone, his influence on price and other terms of sale is insignificant; with others his influence is quite great.

Collective Marketing also makes it possible for him to benefit from the knowledge and experience of a professional marketing organization. When his hogs reach market weight and finish, he need not worry about finding a buyer. His marketing organization exists to relieve him of this responsibility. This all involves compulsory direction, but only such as is found today in many areas of our social and economic life. It helps him to save money on his marketing costs. On top of that he has at his disposal a modern selling agency which he could not afford to maintain on his own.

● Though President Kennedy has promised that the U. S. will refrain from dumping surplus wheat on the world market, it will be only a partial compensation for the potential results of unrestricted grain production in the U. S. next year. The rejection by the U. S. wheat farmers of the U. S. government proposals for acreage control and delivery quotas may result in a bumper crop. The substantial U. S. surpluses are already a threat to world market prices. They will become more so if the surpluses increase. In 1965 the International Wheat Agreement will have to be renewed. Every consumer country will know exactly how many millions of bushels are at that time in storage in the producer countries and will act accordingly. However, even before this International Agreement is renewed, the decision of the U. S. wheat farmers could very well bring the world market price for wheat down from the present level. The results for Canada can be very serious, and it's safe to say that Canadian agriculture is holding its breath,anxiously awaiting to see how the situation will develop.

OBITUARY

KILLAM — On May 25th Killam's oldest citizen passed away in the Killam Hospital after three weeks of illness.

Mr. Ralph Hedges Shoup was born on April 23rd, 1870 in Haddimond County, Ontario, of an United Empire Loyalist family. He married Caroline Mattice Buck in 1908 at Oak River, Man. They resided at Rapid City and Brandon before coming to Killam in 1920, where he farmed until his retirement in 1940.

He was the second eldest in a family of 11 children, and is survived by his only daughter (Florida) Mrs. L. Nowlan of Calgary, one step-son Ken Buck of White Rock, B. C., three grandchildren, Jacqueline Nolin Dunkel and Charles Nowlin of Calgary, Dellis W. Buck of Winnipeg, and seven great grand children, one brother Edgar of Port Dover, one sister Mrs. George Brown (Annie) of Merritt Island, Florida, and a host of friends. His wife predeceased him in 1962.

The funeral service was held in the Knox United Church on Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. Ken Mowday conducting the service. The choir rendered "As Evening Time." He was laid to rest beside his wife. Pallbearers were, Grant Murray, Bob McGowan, Jim Creighton, Doug Wilson, George Hawker and Bill Bed dick. Fee and Sons were in charge of arrangements.

A TOUGH JOB. Alan Messenger, M.P. for Montreal's Mount Royal, will likely find being new Speaker of the House no easy job. It will be his duty to keep order in the House of Common, in what could become the stormiest session of Parliament in Canada's history.-

see loans, and planning agencies, lumped slightly in Lib direction. But the new Government's approach is more of a leap. It leaves behind entrenched Canadian economic practices and assumptions.

The same leap into the future characterizes Mr. Pearson's plans for giving a new direction to the Canadian Confederation.

The dissatisfaction in Quebec with the present form of Confederation is all too apparent. What Mr. Pearson calls "a truly equal partnership" of French speaking and English speaking Canadians requires a truly great effort. Thus the new Liberal Government is apparently ready to give.

It will establish a Royal Commission of Bicultuvalism to see objective will be reached. Having done a study of how every Canadian can be given the opportunity to be bilingual.

There is also set since Mr. Pearson is prepared to use a lesser measure of the present Federal-Provincial relations, which the Federal Government retains from certain areas of jurisdiction and providing the provinces with the taxing authorities required for them to serve those jurisdictions.

The new Confederation would emphasize diversity within unity. For Mr. Pearson says, "Quebec to be Quebec must be in Canada." The only concrete part of the speech for a national Canadian identity.

There is no questioning the seriousness or the sincerity of the new Government's voyage along these new paths. But it is given a fair start to establish its program, the chances are it will begin to succeed in those areas last Friday.

Canada of 1967 may be vastly different not only from the Canada of 1867 but also from the Canada of 1963.

Whether the Pearson Government is given this time may depend a good deal less on what the opposition parties in Ottawa do than on how Premier Jean Lesage controls the present strong demands of the revolutionary Quebec for a new deal. His task is to achieve from his dealings with the new Pearson Government the essential ingredients to enable his Government to satisfy the strong current of nationalistic feeling in Quebec in a constructive way and without asserting demands in his relations with Ottawa which go beyond what can be accepted by the rest of Canada.

Just as a major task for Pearson is not simply to assert Canada's demands in the world but then timely to embarked on an exciting destiny— and the needs of its leadership could then well fall upon Jean Lesage.

JULY 1st SPORTS PLANS UNDERWAY

SEDGEWICK — The committees in charge of the annual Sports Day at Sedgewick on July 1st are starting to get things into high gear.

As this is the last year for activities at the old sports grounds, many added features are being planned. A new wrinkle this year will be the big Outdoor Barbecue on the grounds. We understand the Kinsmen have a big new Sprinkler System to keep us posted through the day. Of course the big parade starts at 10:30 a.m. and the weather man has promised an all clear.

Mr. L. Johnsgaard spent several days visiting in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Warren and daughter Tennis of Grand Prairie received on Friday to spend a week with Mrs. Warren's parents Mr. and Mrs. C. Upshall. Miss Shirley Upshall of Edmonton accompanied them, returning to the city on Sunday.

Albert Eckstrand suffered severe bruises to his arm the other day. He explained it to me but I still don't get it. He was playing ball, and ran into a plow. That's his story anyway and he says he's sticking to it. Must have been playing on the back 40. I've played a lot of ball in my day. I've run into backstops, opposing players, double-plays and even into trouble, but never, never, a plow.

AROUND SEDGEWICK

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nygaard, in Killam Hospital on Friday, May 24th, a son. Congratulations.

Mr. Jim London of Clarushelun visited Ralph Kosnick here on Monday.

We are indeed sorry to report the passing of Charles Chilvers in Killam Hospital on May 20th.

The funeral was held on Thursday explained it to me but I still don't in the United Church, Sedgewick, with Capt. Bloof officiating.

Mr. Ron Tanton was taken to the University Hospital last Friday after he was injured while working on a piece of machinery. Ron was jockey up a rod washer when the jack slipped and the handle flew up and caught him in the face. We wish Ron a fast recovery from his facial injuries.

Mrs. A. E. Johnsson, who has been visiting her sister Mrs. Louis Johnsgaard for several weeks, has returned to her home in Vancouver.

Mrs. Stuart Galletly and Mrs. F. Hooper were Camrose visitors last Friday after the truck meet.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Clarken, Pat and Maureen were week end visitors here. Johnny has been staying with Grannie Isnes to finish the term.

Mrs. Pat Gessler was a recent visitor with her brother Wayne Shumpenyer and family.

Mrs. Blake Green and Mr. & Mrs. George Tanton of Edmonton were in town on Sunday and visited their Dad, Mr. R. McBride in Hospital.

Mrs. Ruby Befus went to Edmonton over the weekend.

Rev. and Mrs. Pat and Mrs. Jas. Walsh were in Edmonton Sunday to attend the Ordination Service at St. Stephen's Clegg.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Johnson were hosts on Sunday at a horseshoe tournament in aid of the church fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hughes and Sharon of Edmonton were Sunday visitors with the E. Johnsons.

The Jr. Anglican Group staged a miniature Carnival on Saturday afternoon which proved to be a prosperous venture.

Brian Redrobe from Red Deer was in town last Saturday.

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Frank Harding.

The Sedgewick Offers were hosts to the Lougheed Wildcats on Sunday afternoon in a 9-inning ball game. The Wildcats were winners 8-6.

A number of ladies attended the golf tournament held in Daysland on Saturday.

MAY THEME FEATURES CENTRAL SPRING PROM

(By Gail Thorp)

SEDGEWICK — A May theme entertained the guests of C. H. S.'s 62-63 graduates at the Spring Prom held in Sedgewick Community Hall on May 10th. The semi-formal dance featured a huge Maypole from which pastel streamers were extend ed to the walls. A bend, on which the name of a graduate was written, held each streamer. Trellises adorned with flowers lent a summery atmosphere to the program.

The Irma Pletsema provided the twisting music for the crowd.

The Prom replaced the Graduation Dance formerly held in May. It is held to honor the graduating class of the school year.

138 Calves Sold At Flagstaff 4-H Sale

KILLAM — A total of 138 calves were sold at the annual Flagstaff 4-H Beef Club Sale on Thursday, May 30th, with the average price of $0.35 cents per pound.

Jane Leslie's Grand Champion from the Merna Club, was sold for 41c a pound to the Killam Sports Hotel, and Craig Grant's Reserve Grand Champion from the Killam Club went to Weiller and Williams for 37 cents.

This year's very successful sale was held at the Killam Arena, with the Killam and District Board of Trade handling the book-keeping & money for the Clubs. Auctioneers were Bob Saunder, Elmer Pederson and Warren Henderson.

There were buyers from Burns, Swift Canadian, Canada Packers, as well as a large number of local residents who combined to make sure that none of the calves were sold below market price.

The 4-H Club members thank all the bidders for making the sale such a good one.

Contributors to the sale were:

Hastings Coulee	20 Calves
Killam 4-H	19 Calves
Wavy Lake	21 Calves
Merna Club	15 Calves
Daysland	23 Calves
Sedgewick	14 Calves
Valley	22 Calves

DRAMA CLUB HONORS THE BAPTIES

Some thirty-five members and friends of the Sedgewick Drama Club gathered at the Legion Hut on Thursday night to honor Mr. & Mrs. Adnan Baptie who are soon leaving Sedgewick. Games, contests, vocal & instrumental music made up the entertainment for the evening, after which the group presented the Baptiers with a No. 3 Iron for Adam and Corning Ware for Jean. A supper was served by the hostesses.

RED CROSS BRANCH COMPLETES CANVAS

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has completed its annual campaign for funds, and the sum of $503.75 has been forwarded to the head office in Calgary.

The executive sincerely thanks all those who gave so generously to this worthy cause. Special thanks to the canvassers for a big job well done.

F.U.A. Newsletter

The main instigator of the "No" vote in the May 21st U. S. wheat referendum, the American Farm Bureau Federation, are getting exercised (imagine). The result of the voting shook the whole world. Now the Farm Bureau, belatedly begins to start shaking. It is beginning to dawn that the "freezing" of the farmers to produce wheat at a probable price of $1.40 to $1.50 can have very serious effect for wheat farmers and also for the producers of other farm products. In the battle to get farmers to vote "for the Farm Bureau Federation used the slogan, "Freedom From Tyranny." The tyranny, of course, came from the government, the "freedom" from the Bureau. Expect these fighters for freedom to be among the first to look for government action and help to hell U. S. agriculture out of the mess created by the Bureau itself. It follows exactly the footsteps of former U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who never had the guts to say that he wanted the smaller farmer to be put in front of a firing squad. The Farm Bureau Federation had the same lack of guts. It is high time to say, Beware of those who claim to be "Fighters for Freedom."

Sedgewick H. and S.

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Home and School Assn. rounded up their year's activities with a very enjoyable variety program featuring students from public and high schools, and with Mr. H. Steve serving as M. C.

High-light of the evening was a first prize award to John Chapman, and second prize award to Gwen Armitage, grade 9 students, who won the essay contest and a trip to the Alebrta legislature, sponsored and presented by Mr. Jack Hillman.

A brief business meeting followed with Mrs. J. Harris in the chair. Mr. C. Upshall, treasurer, reported a profit of $27 from the booth at the A. T. A. track meet.

Plans were made to cater to the graduation banquet in September.

The election of officers will be held at the regular Sept. meeting.

A committee was set up to prepare the annual awards to grade 9 and grade 10 students.

After the meeting was adjourned lunch was served.

Kinsmen Donate New P. A. System

SEDGEWICK — The Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick has donated a Public Address System to the new Recreation Centre. The system includes a large capacity amplifier, microphones, and several players, with speakers installed in the arena, waiting room and curling rink. Controls on the amplifier permit the use of the system in any or all of the three sections of the Centre. Sound volume can be separately adjusted for each set of speakers, and the microphones can be used at several locations in the buildings.

The Kinsmen have also made provision for using the system at other functions by mounting the amplifier in a portable carrier so it can be used at the Community Hall or at the sports grounds. An unmounted speaker is available and the system is also equipped for use in a car as a mobile speaker system.

B. of T. To Sponsor Ladies Night

SEDGEWICK — On the evening of Thursday, June 13th the Sedgewick District Board of Trade will sponsor its annual Ladies Night. The dinner will be held in the United Church Hall at 7.00 P. M.

Guest Speaker

Following the dinner a short social evening will be held, which will also include the annual meeting of the Sedgewick Board of Trade.

Mr. Rasmussen, Mr. Rasmussen is the manager of the Edmonton Carsboro and the new Sportex Building. In view of the upcoming activities at Sedgewick's new Recreation Centre, Mr. Rasmussen will speak on "Recreation and Management," a timely topic for the citizens of the district. Laurie has a wealth of experience in recreation and has valuable information on management of such Centres as Sedgewick's.

Those who cannot make it out for the dinner at 7.00 p.m., are cordially invited to hear Mr. Rasmussen at 8.00 p.m. in the church basement. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

ADVANCE POLL JUNE 13-14-15 AT SEDGEWICK

SEDGEWICK— For the convenience of those electors of the Sedgewick - Coronation Provincial Electoral Division who will necessarily be absent from their homes on Polling Day, or who are invalids, two advance polls will be open from the hour of two o'clock until five o'clock in the afternoon, and from seven o'clock until ten o'clock in the evening, of Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the 13th, 14th, and 15th of June, in the Legion Hut at Sedgewick, and in the Legion Hall at Coronation.

A GREAT WORKER FOR PEACE DIES. On Monday June 3rd at 7:49 Rome time Pope John 23rd. Died after four days of tears and prayers from millions of people around the world. Pope John is being proclaimed as the greatest Pope in recent history by religous leaders of all faiths.

NEW HOME FOR THE STAMPEDE

HARDISTY— The 16th annual Hardisty Stampede will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week at the brand new stampede grounds located on the old baseball diamond at Hardisty Lake. The grounds have been completely rebuilt at the new location and features a new race track and grandstand seating for 2,000 spectators.

New Future

For the first time in the sixteen years of the stampede, a very special attraction has been added. This is the Chuck Wagon Races and the Chariot Races. These races will be held each evening from 6.30 to 9.30 p.m., with $1000 in prizes.

The Hardisty Stampede & Chuck Wagon Races are C.P.A. approved, and offer $1325 in prize money for those who gave us generously to this worthy cause. Special thanks to the canvassers for a big job well done.

A WEEK WORTH WHILE?????

Not too many years ago a bright Public Relations expert hit upon the idea of the "special week" gimmick ... this was to set aside one week in which to highlight and saturate publicity on his pet product in an effort to stimulate sales. His idea produced overwhelming results ..... and ever since there have been enough "special weeks" designed for miscellaneous causes each year to fill the pges of a five-year calendar. So many in fact that some receive no attention at all. People have become so used to "special weeks" that they slip by without heed. Thus, the ones that deserve attention are sidelined in the rush.

But now we come to "National Water Safety Week" June 2nd to 8th. It is another week in which to promote a product. Yes, our country's most priceless commodity, human life. Under auspices of the Canadian Red Cross Society, National Water Safety Week is set each year for the week nearest the first long holiday weekend of summer. It's purpose is to spotlight the need for water safety knowledge in an effort to reduce the annual toll of deaths from drowning. Statistics compiled by Red Cross, and similar safety groups, show that the majority of drowning fatalities are the result of ignorance or carelessness. They also reveal that 75 percent of all drownings occur within 10 feet from safety. These figures prove the oft-repeated statement, that most drownings could easily be prevented through knowledge and practise of basic safety rules.

Life saving tips on water safety regulations can be obtained in a wide range of educational materials available free of charge from your local Red Cross. In addition to providing such public information, the Red Cross Water Safety program conducts training courses for Safety Instructors and Senior Leaders; operates a free film loan service on water safety; provides an incentive for safety training through presentation of awards; supplies trained examiners for water safety courses and provides technical assistance and public demonstrations on request.

There is no need to be unaware of the dangers, or ignorant of the precautions to take. Water Safety Week is a worthwhile promotion, but its full potential will only be realized when everyone takes a personal interest in preventing loss of life from drowning through becoming better informed on safety methods and procedures. You should learn to be water wise, for your life's sake.

SECRET SOCIETY IN QUEBEC EXPOSED!

According to Jean David in Maclean's magazine, virtually all leads of the new nationalism in French Canada belong to a society which is so secret its members are forbidden from telling even their wives about it. David, Montreal journalist, says his article owes much of its detail to the published account by another French-Canadian journalist of his experiences as a member of the society. The organization is called l'Ordre de Jacques-Cartier. It has roughly 10,000 members and it is both religious and and nationalistic but, mostly nationalistic. It was founded in 1926 to counteract the influence of Orangemen and Freemasons in top civil service posts.

David quotes Senator Bouchard who, almost 20 years ago described OJC members as "agents of destruction" and Jean-Charles Harvey, a journalist who in 1941 called the OJC "the Klux Klan of Canada ..... a conspiracy against intelligence, tolerance, liberty and progress." Since then nobody has had much to say in public about the OJC.

CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES NEED 13,000 PROFS!

Freelance writer Jim Knight reports in Maclean's that Canada has only 11,500 university teachers and by 1970 it will need 25,000. Knight says that the number of young Canadians attending universities will jump from 141,000 this year to 312,000 in 1970 and that the cost of the jump can't be anything less than staggering. Canada is now spawning universities at an unprecedented rate. "But when those 312,000 students are sitting in their scores of shiny new classrooms and laboratory buildings across the country, will the professors be there to teach them?

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Russian Roulette

OTTAWA — "They have learned nothing and they have forgotten nothing," Talleyrand is reputed to have once said of France's Bourbons. The same thing might be said with equal force about Canada's Conservative Party.

If there was any issue in the last Federal election beyond that of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's capacity to govern, it was the issue of accepting nuclear arms for Canadian forces at home and abroad.

Mr. Diefenbaker grabbled the entire outcome of the election on his judgement that the people were opposed to the acceptance of nuclear warheads for the $700,000,000 worth of nuclear weapons carriers which his Government had acquired or was in the process of acquiring. It was his judgement that it constituted an abuse of fulfilling this commitment. Liberal Leader Pearson had fallen into a fatal trap.

With the defeat of his own administration and the return of a Liberal Government, even in a minority position, Mr. Diefenbaker's political judgement was proved wrong. He made a basic and fundamental error in his assessment of public opinion. Thus far however, neither Mr. Diefenbaker or his party have displayed any indication they learned anything whatever from the election outcome.

With the election over and a new Government installed in office there seems to have been a general feeling abroad in the Country that the politicians should, for the time being, lay aside their partisan quarrels and concentrate instead on the business of dealing with the problems facing the Nation.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his colleagues apparently have sensed nothing of this feeling. At the first opportunity, the debate on the speech from the throne settling in the most general terms the program the Government intends to put before Parliament this session, the Conservatives jumped into the fray with niggling and carping criticism. It was of much the same kind as that of which Lester Pearson was guilty when he first took over the Liberal leadership early in 1958.

The debate on the Speech from the Throne provides a traditional opportunity for the Opposition to move a motion of want-of-confidence in a Government. Since the Government has yet had no opportunity to lay its program before Parliament the Conservatives might have been well advised under the circumstances to forego the opportunity and wait until they had a specific program before them to criticize.

Mr. Diefenbaker chose not to follow this course. Instead he presented a motion in which by indirection he took full credit for the economic growth of 1962, and expressed regret that the new Government had not incorporated all of its election promises in the Throne Speech and also that it had failed to provide full opportunity for continuation of the social advances and economic expansion of the previous year.

It may well be that the expansion of the economy in 1963 will not match that of 1962. The growth of national production last year was the greatest there has been in any year since 1944 and far surpassed anything seen in other years when the Conservatives were in power. This rapid upturn was no mere illusion to be sustained whatever party was in power.

When New Democrate Party Leader Douglas moved a further amendment condemning the Liberal Government for its decision to acquire nuclear warheads for Canadian forces, Mr. Diefenbaker moved back into the fray with a re-hash of all the election speeches he made across the country prior to April 8, condemning the Liberal party for its decision to support the acquisition of the warheads for weapons already acquired by his Government. Before the election campaign began, Mr. Diefenbaker disclosed that his Government had initiating negotiations with the U. S. to have nuclear warheads accessible north of the border for Bomarc missiles in Canada in the event of an emergency. At the same time he indicated he would leave to the decision of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which met in Ottawa recently whether nuclear carriers in Europe should continue to be retained for that role.

When the roll call was taken, the House witnessed the incredible sight of the Conservative leader and his colleagues rising to support an NDP want of confidence motion condemning the Liberal Government for intending to acquire warheads for the nuclear carriers purchased on the decision of the Conservative Government.

The suggestion from Gordon Churchill that the Conservatives were supporting the motion because they considered it was directed primarily against the Liberal decision to acquire warheads without prior parliamentary approval was an insult to Liberal explanation last session about its support for the famous Social Credit debt-free money motion. Moreover, the Conservatives never at any time promised to obtain parliamentary approval before taking similar action.

Although there is one thing virtually certain ... that the electorate does not want to be faced with yet another election — the opposition as a whole engaged in a dangerous game of Russian roulette on the N. D. P. motion. Only the absence of a number of Conservatives and the support of four Socreds and 2 Conservatives gave the Liberals a narrow 11-vote edge. Had the six opposition members not supported the Government it would have been defeated. The consequences for the opposition if it had resulted in a third election over a year are terrifying to contemplate.

Not content with this breath with disaster, the Conservatives rushed on to new folly within the pace of another week when Mr. Churchill went into the record of the House a letter alleged to have been written by U. S. Ambassador Walton Butterworth to the Liberal leader last January congratulating him on his nuclear weapons stand and contending the Conservative party was

By Bill Smiley

June is back in town, busting up all over. She busts up those dream castles of young love, picks up the pieces and turns them into the meringued bungalows of marriage.

Every woman's magazine in the land is loaded with articles giving advice to the same bride. This is ridiculous. As though there were a woman alive who needed advice on running a marriage!

It seems to be an effortless translation for the damsels who forsake the wail of the jukebox for the roar of the vacuum cleaner, the Saturday night dance for the Monday morning wash.

But my heart goes out to the youth who is deserting the delights of the poolhall for the drudgery of bringing home the bacon and beer, who is bidding farewell to the fascination of the street-corner for any hobo to the horrors of changing loaded diapers.

First of all, see, what made you do it? You were in clover. There you were: living at home cheaply; eating Mom's cooking; spending your own money on something sensible like the '48 Dodge; getting slicked up and wowing the chicks every Saturday night; and having a good rout with the boys now and then.

However, it's too late now, and I wouldn't try to turn you from your course even if I could. In fact I wouldn't want to see any young fellow miss the character-building institution of marriage. Welcome to the club.

But just as I hate to see our dopy little spaniel tossed into a pit with a bad tempered mastiff, I don't like to see you going into a battle that's going to last your whole life, with no weapons but your own dim wits.

Therefore, and in view of the propaganda pouring out of those women's magazines, I think you could use a few tips to even the odds.

Think of yourself as a young, untried soldier. Think of me as a scarred veteran of many a matrimonial skirmish, but having been proudly.

Heady?

First thing to do after the ceremony is over and all those dumb relatives of hers have been shaken hands with, is to let her know who's boss. When you start on the wedding trip, have a quiet talk with her. Don't get nasty; just be firm. When she stops crying and stop apologizing, it will be all settled who is the boss. But don't allow a little setback like that to get you down.

When the baby comes along, don't let her pull that "little mother needs her sleep" routine. Stand on your rights. Demand that she get up every second night and walk with the little monster. She won't but you'll feel better because you have stood on your rights. It's good practise. After all, when you haven't a leg to stand on, you can always stand on your rights.

Another important thing in marriage is to be able to tie wife looking her straight in the eye. Practise on the bathroom mirror. Any old husband will tell you it can be mastered in no time. From then on, every time you look her straight in the eye, she will know you're lying, but you can't win them all.

Something else that will come to you automatically, in a short time, is the ability to change the subject without seeming to. There's no particular set of rules about this. Just observe closely how your wife does it, and you'll soon find yourself equally adroit when you don't like the direction of the conversation.

Make it a point to hang up your clothes every night. In fact, it's not a bad idea to tuck them up. Never, never get the idea that your wife is above such a thing as going through your pockets. And never, never leave in them such items as a book of matches with "Murphy's Tavern" printed on it. You know you haven't the matches from a fellow at work. She knows you've been out restoring, and will never believe anything else.

Most important of all, perhaps, is this. Never admit anything, my boy, unless you are caught redhanded. If you are, of course, throw yourself first upon your mercy, then on her mercy. Tell her you're weak and sinful. Tell her you need the support of her strong and lofty character, if you are to be saved from evil companions, such as poker, drink, women, or whatever you've been up to.

Suddenly, I feel better. With these few pointers deepened, I can look with more equanimity on the procession of lambs to the slaughter house this month.

A. P. CROP REPORT

Showers starting on 1 4 to 1 2 inches have maintained good moisture conditions. Wheat seeding is completed and seeding of oats and barley is about 75 percent finished. General prospects remain good

SMALL WET BEHIND THE EARS. This one-hour-old white-tailed Virginia deer discovers a wobbly world. And although mamma doe will be coming back to nurse, she won't stay behind your ears. This young one seems to be all legs and isn't sure what they're for. Deer foal in Canada at the end of May and beginning of June. —

Field-tested last year on the prairies, this remarkable new, flexible harvesting comb for combine and baler pick-ups has proven to be superior to conventional teeth. Flexi Tooth can be lowered closer to the ground. As a result Flexi Tooth harvests more crop per acre.

It picks up fewer stones — meaning less remarket-loss damage to expensive equipment. Mounted in rubber strips Flexi Tooth is quieter to run than a wheat field. When a bushwheat is thrown off and doesn't thresh as it does with conventional teeth.

HARDISTY HI-LITES

The old spirit of neighborliness prevailed in the Science Hill district one week-end of Hardisty, when 8 men gathered to send 160 acres for Mrs. Pyle and Alex McRobbie. Alex has been sick and unable to complete his seeding in time. Those giving of their time and machinery were, William Renshaw, Andy Gibson, Ivan Devine, Lee Rittenhouse, Emil Klinger, John Mitrey, Kelk Holmberg, and H. Stoner. Gas Johnson gave assistance with the summerfallowing.

A retinol of Town Town executive members motored to Wetaskiwin on Wed. to meet the Town Town there.

Visitors at the Mrs. M. Vanderwart home were, Mr and Mrs Jim Vanderwart of Bevsin, Ont. Also calling to see them were Mr and Mrs Bill Putnam and family of Lougheed, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Archbold of Alliance.

Mr and Mrs Roland Wandewark and Orville and Mr and Mrs Ole Elsley of Mirror.

Six members of St. Mark's W. A., Mrs. B. Matthews, deanery president, Mrs. K. Kelly, deanery secretary, Mrs. Geo. Mills, Mrs. Jack Thorp, Mrs. C. Drever and Mrs. M. Lowe attended the Anglican W. A. Deanery meeting in Kilkam on Tuesday. They report a fine turn-out.

A birthday party at the home of Mrs. Castles on Thursday honored Mrs. Castles and Mrs. R. Matthews. Bingo was played and the usual delicious lunch enjoyed. Mrs. Edworthy and Mrs Marjon Draper presented money gifts to Mrs. Castles and Mrs. Matthews, on behalf of friends present and others.

Mr and Mrs Red Frasier and daughter were week-end visitors at the Fred Frasier home.

Mr and Mrs Robt. White have returned from a trip to Vancouver and the western U. S.

Mr and Mrs G. Bebee are visiting their daughter Gwen and husband in Philadelphia. Enroute home they plan to visit relatives in Ontario. They will also attend the 50th wedding anniversary of Mrs Beebe's sister for whom she was bridesmaid 50 years ago.

Mrs A. Redman has gone to visit her daughter Mrs. Morgan and family in Calgary, and from there plans to travel to Alsask.

Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Edworthy and Mrs Sharpal motored to Camrose on Sat., urday to attend a meeting of the U. C. W. executive.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

Things began to look up by 1926-28, so far as crops were concerned, so we decided we could afford inside help, as well as an extra man. Therefore in the early spring of '27, we sent to the unemployment agency at Winnipeg for a young, healthy couple, nationality immaterial. At the middle of Feb. or first of March, we received word to meet the afternoon train as the agency had sent a German couple, newly out from Hamburg, Germany. He, Emma and Rudolf arriving long and baggage, just as we were ready to sit in for supper. We showed them their room, & after they had washed up, they had their first of a good many meals with us.

There were 11 of us now; quite a few to cook and "do" for, but Emma proved equal to any and all tasks assigned her. The biggest difficulty was the language problem. Neither Rudolf nor Emma could speak English, nor could we speak German.

One day as Emma was ironing a shirt, she suddenly asked, "Vass iss, Kenglish?" "Shirt," I informed her. "Shirt, shirt, shirt," intoned Emma, all the time she was ironing it. The thought came to me that this could work both ways, so I asked her, "Vass iss Dullek"? "Hemf," answered Emma. So just for a laugh I kept repeating, "Hemf, hemf, hemf" at the same time Emma was saying shirt, shirt, shirt. However, the idea stuck and Emma and I taught each other our respective languages as we went about our work. In no time, Emma, who was exceptionally clever, learned to carry on a conversation with very few mistakes, while I was a bit slower learning her tongue. Although when her mother came out from Germany 2 years later, she & I had many an hour's visit in German. She didn't seem to want to learn to speak English. "I'm too Alt" she would say

Emma was not so slow copying the Canadian styles either. She had sent for a hat for her mother before the latter arrived, to have when Mrs Kupp arrived in Cartwright. The day Mr. Kupp did arrive, naturally Emma and Rudolf went to town with Dad to meet the train, Emma taking the new hat with her. Dad told me later that the train had barely stopped, when Emma rushed up to her mother, and, while they were greeting each other, Emma was untieing the black "Babooshe" from her mother's head and putting the new hat on in its place. Emma was quite sensitive to all real or imaginary ridicule, and figured the hat was more Canadian than the babooshe.

As long as I knew Mrs. Kupp (6 or 7 years) I can remember her ALWAYS replacing that hat in the paper bag in which it came, actually sewing up the top of the bag after each wearing. Emma said it was the first hat her mother had ever owned, therefore it was a priceless possession. (More about Emma and Rudolf next week).

Russian Cattle Mission Buys Local Stock

Nine Hereford Raisers Visited

SEDGEWICK — Headed by Mr. Nikolia D. Tarrassov, Commercial Councillor and Representative of the U.S.S.R. at Ottawa, a cattle buying commission from the Soviet Union visited local Hereford breeders last Saturday. Included in the party were two Technicians, two Vets, a business manager and an interpreter. The party was also accompanied by Mr. Tom Hughes, Chief Selector and Field Repdesentative for the Alberta Hereford Breeders Assn., and Mike Syrotuck, of the Production Marketing Service of the Federal Department of Agriculture, who also acted as an assistant to the group.

Press Photo

The Commission is looking for 820 Hereford bulls and Heifers from the Province of Alberta this year. Since 1960 they have purchased 660 animals across Canada, but have found that cattle raised in Alberta do far better in Russia due to the similarity of climate and farming methods.

The animals are being purchased to improve the purebred herds in Russia, in a cross-breeding program instituted there in recent years, and the party informed that they would return to Alberta next year.

Mr. Larry Williams, D.A. of Camrose accompanied the party to the local area, introducing them to the various breeders and generally making himself useful wherever the need arose.

First stop of the party was at the Lennie Berg farm north of Lougheed where three choice animals were selected and agreements made for purchase. From there the group went south to the Tommy Leslie farm where four animals were chosen from Tommy's fine herd.

The buyers were very particular as to age, quality and size of the animals, explaining that after a three week boat trip to Russia a lot is taken out of the animals. If they appear too "rough" concern is created in the homeland and the buyers may be subjected to criticism.

Amongst the breeders visited other than the Berg and Leslie ranches, were, Norman Vold and John Kiese of Alliance; Eddie Fossen, A. Link, Doug Evans and R. A. Henderson of Forestburg, and D. Dyhe, Daysland.

Aside from the strict business of buying good breeding stock, the party was extremely interested in farming methods in Alberta, and the new members of the group expressed amazement that one or two men should be farming upwards of 800 acres of land. In Russia, they stated, such a large holding would be accommodating from 20 to 40 people. They were of the opinion that Russia had a lot to learn from Western Canada and particularly the methods of farming in Alberta.

The Community Press photographer accompanied the party to the L. Berg and T. Leslie farms, snapping a picture or two. In return the head of the group presented the Press with a lapel pin depicting the Dove of Peace, the Kremlin and the word Moscow across the bottom. Of this they made a very dignified ceremony, with all of us bowing in respect and appreciation.

The group was entertained in the dining room of the Pioneer Hotel, and after visiting the herds at Alliance and Forestburg, will leave for southern Alberta.

Lady of Fatima H.S.

A good attendance at the June meeting of Our Lady of Fatima H. and S. finalized plans for the annual picnic at the camp grounds at Meredith Lake on June 28th. Cars are to meet and leave from the school at 12.30 p.m. Students are asked to bring a picnic lunch, knot-aid, Mom and Dad and their school spirit.

The bicycle racks have been completed and installed on the grounds. The men are to erect an additional bicycle and Smocher benches before the ball diamond backstop.

Rev. Fr. Donald Kroetch, a former teacher at Our Lady of Fatima will be remembered with a gift on the occasion of his ordination, and farewell gifts will be presented to retiring teachers.

Elected to standing committees were: Hospitality, Mrs. M. Fowler and Mrs. Sorkes; Past Histories, Mrs. A. Schaffler; Progress, Mr. A. Schaffler; Grounds, Mrs. M. Denkiw; Press, Mrs. D. Hayes; Lunch, Mrs. J. Kosher, Mrs. G. Bergel; Membership, R. Kinzer.

CGIT Graduation

The Killam CGIT group held their Mother-Daughter banquet and Graduation Service in the Knox United Church on May 21st. The banquet opened with Wendy Saunders as the toastmistress, proposing a toast to the Queen.

Following a turkey supper served by the KUC, Diane Simmons proposed a toast to the mothers which was responded to by Mrs. June Letsch. May York proposed a toast to the leaders and Rev. Morris replied. The toast to the CGIT was given by Mrs. G. (Auntie Ben) Murray and was answered by Bonnie James. Bev Larson gave the toast to the Lord's Day which one of the senior leaders, Mrs. Berth, replied. Mrs. Berth and Mrs. Lewis then presented Bev Larson and Joan York with CGIT pins for wearing their uniforms the most, during the past year. Mrs. Stainthorpe presented the senior group with a Chevron Certificate, the first in five years.

Following this all went upstairs for the graduation service, conducted by three of the leaders and the Rev. Morris. The five graduates, Bonnie James, Diane Stainthorpe, Diane Simmons, Wendy Saunders and May York, were called forward and were presented with CGIT graduation pins. These girls repeated their purpose and sang their hymn. After this representatives from the various groups of the church presented to them a burning candle which represented the light of life. The evening closed with the congregation congratulating the graduates.

CUTHBERT — ARMITAGE

The United Church at Sedgewick was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Saturday, June 1st at 1:00 p.m., when Miss Dorothy Ellen Armitage became the bride of Mr. Lloyd Morton Cuthbert, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cuthbert of Hughenden. Rev. John Platt performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with a huge arrow-head and the traditional white ribbons. The vows were exchanged at the bend while beneath a pleated canopy, "Grade of 63". Ten silver stars, each inscribed with the name of a graduand, hung on the wall behind them.

The 100 guests were ushered to their tables for the luncheon, by members of the students union.

The program opened by singing O Canada, followed by a toast to the Queen, proposed by Jane Leslie Rev. W. D. Annette of the United Missionary Church, Galahad, asked the Blessing.

Wayne Wagenaar as M. C., called on Mr. W. Sparks, principal, who congratulated the students and urged them to use the formation gained to the best of their ability in securing gainful employ, to go on to further education in those lines which seem to increase its need. Everyone joined in a toast to the graduands.

Mrs. A. Anderson replied to the toast to the parents, presented by her daughter Jane Dwayne Sedgewick expressed thanks to the Killam S. D. for their part in helping the students by building newer schools and supplying equipment etc. Mrs. Lees Swan responded. The Morris Home and School Assn. was toasted by Warren Rek and the president Mr. H. Anderson replied. Betty Prodruck in her toast to the teachers, thanked them for their help and encouragement through the year. Mr. M. Shover accepted, and stressed the importance of the part the Student Union may plays in the development of the social graces of the individual to help them in taking their part in the community. Ellen Rick in a toast to the Student Union, Ellen Rick replied.

Elaine Simpson entertained with a piano solo.

The tables were cleared to prepare for the Grand March in which the graduands, in pairs, marched from the back of the gym to take their places on the stage.

The students of grades 7 and 8 sang three appropriate songs accompanied by Miss J. Anderson. Norma Wetmore toured the students' activities through their nine years at Merna, and related several humorous incidents as well as the serious ones together, which the graduands "Think Of Some Days" and "Farewell To You." Neil Lemay, with the aid of a crystal ball, looked into the future to see his classmates in 1973 which proved very interesting.

Gwen Armitage was chosen to deliver the Valedictory Address, after which Mr. Sparks presented each student with a scroll & wished them success in the examinations.

Mr. R. Chandler, former principal at Merna, was guest speaker. He stressed the importance of education today and also the need to search for a field of endeavor in which the individual finds satisfaction and happiness as well as monetary returns.

A piano duet by Nellie and Patsy Anderson, followed by God Save the Queen brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

The students of grades 7, 8 and 9, assisted by the teachers, planned and executed the entire program, for which they are to be commended.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

The High Cost Of Flying!

OTTAWA — A mark of distinction in Ottawa these days is to be able to boast of having beaten the Gisasco report to the punch. The Royal Commission on Government organization recommended so many changes in so many fields it could hoarsely expect to be original through out the piece. For one thing, it believed departments ought to look the future sag chart their course and re quirements for some years ahead.

Some of them, very notably the Dept. of Transport, has been doing this for a long time. Its trouble is not failure to know where it is going and what it needs to get there, but to convince the Treasury Board that has a habit of trimming everyone's sails each year with an eye to balancing budgets.

In 1954 DOT put out its first ten-year projection. It was not too happy about it. This year it has made a second projection of 1962-72 under the title "Canada and the Jet Age". It is described as a report on the Department's air service needs. This is misleading since it is confined that air services go far beyond the field of civil aviation. They include the entire meteorological service that will be the big spender of the next decade.

Among other things, it will be joining with the U. S. in another air skills program Nimbus, this time for a series of weather satellites. Capital cost of the Canadian readout station in Cape Breton Highlands Na tional Park, $6 million, will be borne by the U. S. but annual operating costs will be more than $1 million.

Frontier weather information is now centralized only for aviation, agriculture and shipping but for lumbering, hydro electric operations and a score of other industries. To project air service costs 10 years ahead re quires answers to a lot of questions.

At Canada' eight international air ports and the 21 mainline trunk air ports the real impact of the jet age has already been felt. Capital expenditure has averaged $25.7 million annually for international, trunk and feeder runways. In the next 10 years this annual expenditure should drop to $18.8 million.

The only thing that might interfere with this reduced program is the introduction for commercial use of supersonic jet aircraft. According to the aircraft industry development of economic supersonic commercial flying is still far distant and their use of Canadian airports by 19 72 unlikely. The largest part of the capital cost in the next 10 years will be additions to the mainline of about 20 feeder airports to meet increasing needs of short trip services.

Airport terminal buildings have been constructing with the idea that they will take care of traffic requirements for the next 10 years at least, in some cases 20 years. Most of them are shond of their time, a fact that has brought criticism of extravagance. The next ten years will tall whether this is justified. In any event capital expenditures on terminal construction will drop very substantially from now on.

Air traffic control in Canada is exercised along 17,000 nautical miles of high level airways (above 22,000 feet) and 28,000 miles of low level airways. By 1972 this will be increa ed to 20000 miles and 34000 miles respectively. High and low level tr contes, not now under air traffic control, will be included.

At the same time the quality of air traffic control will be improved by installation of new specialised radars. It will be necessary very soon to complement direct control-to-pil ot communication with secondary radar to be installed at 20 sites across Canada. A secondary radar network to be completed by 1972, will give coverage up to 100,000 feet above sea level. It will be able to identify aircraft without pilot communication.

Another development of the next 10 years will be replacement of manual control by computer. In split seconds the computer will be able to give altitude, speed and a forecast of flight plans, including time of landings, etc. In all, airways and traffic control which is costing Can ada today about $36 million a year, will jump to $58 million by 1972.

Capital expenditures on meteorological services are relatively small, amounting in 1961-62 to $1.3 million out of total air service capital costs of $73.5 million. By 1972 this will increase to $4 million. Operation of meteorological services on the other hand will increase from the present level of $17 million to $25 million.

This is the pattern that will be followed throughout the air services picture. The gush of capital costs has been reached in 1961-62. In the 10 subsequent years, including of course the current year, they should decline from $73.5 million to $37.1 million. Operating costs, on the other hand will rise steeply from $75 million to $125 million. While these figures allow for increases in staff they do not take salary increases into account. This is a deliberate omission.

In the 10 years it is estimated the revenues will increase from $15.5 to $30.8 million. This estimate is based, however, on the assumption that the charges all stay at the same level & that new sources of revenue do not develop. It is expected that these unproducted new sources and new charges will be sufficient to balance off salary increases.

W. I. Conference Held at Sedgewick

The annual Constituency Conference of the W. I. was held in the Legion Hut at Sedgewick on May 27th with 25 members registered from Lougheed, Alliance and Sedgewick, as well as several visitors. The conference was presided over by the constituency convener Mrs. A. Hine, who opened with greetings, and introduced the District 3 Director Mrs Quail of Round Hill. Reports were read from the 3 W. I. Branches, and also reports of standing committees. At noon a banquet was served in the United Church basement.

The afternoon session opening with community singing with Mrs. Dora Smith at the piano. Mrs. A. Edwards of Sedgwick gave the address of welcome, and Mrs. Probst of Lougheed replied. This was followed by a roll call of the branches, and then Mrs. Quail addressed the conference. She urged branches to attend the Provincial Conference, which was to be held the following week.

The guest speaker was Mrs. H. Lafarof of Viking, who gave an interesting talk on safety rules, illustrated by a display of hats showing safety hints. A handicraft and Home Making display was judged by the District Home Economist. At close of the conference, Sedgwick W. I. served tea.

SPECIAL COURSES OFFERED AT COLLEGES!

For the first time next fall Alberta Agricultural and Vocational College programs will include required high school subjects in grades 11 and 12, in addition to their regular Home Economics courses, the Colleges will also be offering special courses to fit young women grad uates for employment outside the Home Economics field.

Those innovations and the change in name from Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics to Alberta Agricultural and Vocational Colleges were among the recommendations made by the Board of Agricultural Education, which were recently approved by the provincial government. The new title covers the vocational courses related to agriculture, the new vocational courses for girls and the courses in vocational agriculture itself.

J. E. Hawker, Secretary of the Board of Agricultural Education and Director of the Colleges, reports the following courses will be offered at Olds and Vermilion when the Colleges open again in September:

(a) Vocational agricultural courses for those intending to make farming their career.

(b) Broadly based specialized vocational agricultural courses for those interested in specialized types of farming.

(c) Vocational courses designed to train students for occupations related to the agricultural industry.

Other courses will be added as the need arises.

The Board of Agricultural Education's recommendation concerning the continued operation of the Colleges on a regional basis was also approved, providing attendance is sufficient to justify the expenditure.

The actual curriculum of courses for next fall can be obtained from the principals of the Colleges at Olds, Vermilion and Fairview, or the Director of Colleges of Agriculture, Legislative Building, Edmonton.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Surely Father's Day is the most insignificant occasion on the calendar. Everybody knows which Sunday in May is Mother's Day, but there's a great deal of confusion in the minds of most people about the other one, and were it not for our good friends the merchants who urge us not to forget "Dear Old Dad," it would probably slip by as quietly as Whit Sunday.

It's not difficult to understand the vagueness. Not too many years ago, every day was father's day. But in the symphony of today's family, father is the lost chord. The family circle no longer centres on father. It has become an arc, the pendulum swinging between Mom and the kids.

From the time we are six lisp "momma," we are fed a lot of pap about motherhood. Mother can do no wrong; Mother is a brave little soul; Mummy knows best; Mom works too hard; Mother is always there when she's needed; nobody can cook like Mom; Mother's nerves are bad; what could we do without Mummy; and so on. There's a certain amount of truth in it all, but what I object to is hanging Mother into a basket basket under which father's once-bright light is well hidden.

Oh, for the good old days when Father was head of the house, and everybody knew it. When he sat down at the head of the table there was a respectful, if not fearful silence. The kids sat in rows at each side, silent until spoken to. The room on scurried around with proper hush fility, fetching the steaming dishes, holding their breaths while Father tested the carving knife, sighing in relief when he waxed benevolent under the storm of food.

In those golden days, Father's comfort, well-being and peace of mind were the prime requisites of a happy home. His lightest opinion was gospel. His wrath was awful to contemplate. You didn't need household gods; you had Father.

If father said women shouldn't be allowed behind the wheel of a car, they shouldn't, and that's all there was to it. If he declared there were no fish in that "crick," there were no more. It he believed that the Grits (or Tories) were "a pack of damned thieves,"they were. If he told you to get to bed, you got.

By what subtle and fiendish alchemy has Father been transformed from a giant into a figure of fun, a national joke, a stooge on television family television series? By what foul trick of the fates has that magnificent man been turned into the cringing creature who can be seen wiping the dishes while his wife is out at the bingo?

How hath the mighty fallen, is all I can say, and I say it not in scorn but in sorrow. Bullied by his spouse, relentlessly heckled by his children, his only places of refuge are the garden, the golf course or the trout stream.

Not for him the mighty roast to carve, the head to spear and eat the most hails covered with mushroom sauce, or the macaroni and cheese. Not for him the hushed silence as he voices an opinion with ringing authority. The only opinion he voices is, "Well, I'm inclined to agree with you, dear."

Where Father used to have a fine paunch, an acknowledged symbol of his success in life, Dad has a mean little pot belly that merely suggests he doesn't get enough exercise. Where Father kept the children in line with one hard look, and the occasional clout on the ear, Dad whines that he'll cut off their allowance if they don't do what their mother tells them.

Where Father used to doze out the housekeeping money, with demands for stringent economy, Dad turns over the pay envelope, intact, and without a murmur accepts that glad tidings that mother has planned the fourth blow-out on a forty-mill trip, Dad grumbles complaints because he has to buy a new set of tires after 30,000 miles.

Oh, it's bitter, but we've brought it on ourselves. Just an example of the awe in which the ex-head of the house is held these days. This week I suggested to my wife that very subtly that some new fishing tackle would be highly acceptable Father's Day. She looked at me coldly. "You are not my father," she said.

Anyone care to join me in a move next in convert dithering Dad boys into firm Fathers?

Now he's got rid of the blubber; take away the wife's set of ear keys, cut the kids down to size, do we believe we could rescue the house?

What's that Mac? You're sorry, but you have to go out and bring in the chickens?

Well, I'm a little busy myself. I have to take the kids for a swim, the dog for a walk, and the storm windows off.

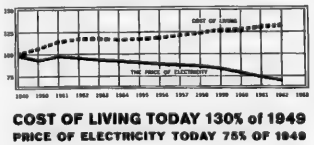
THE COST OF LIVING AND THE PRICE OF ELECTRICITY

Many things have contributed to the rise in our cost of living, but electricity is the exception.



COST OF LIVING TODAY 130% of 1949
PRICE OF ELECTRICITY TODAY 75% OF 1949

Electricity is 'cheaper by the dozen'. Because you're using more electricity today to save time, labour and money, the average cost per KWhr is 25% less than in 1949.

EMMA AND RUDOLF

When Emma and Rudolf had been with us for about 5 1/2 years, they had saved enough money from wages to start up on their own in a small way to be sure, but nevertheless, a beginning.

We thought we knew most of the answers to making things do, in the way of improvising ways and means of doing with what was close at hand and seeking whatever was probably could ourselves out of any material on hand at the time, but we had some nothing until we saw Emma and Rudolf furnishing their farm with some of the essentials.

For one thing they needed a watering trough for their stock. Dad ed his with the rivets three times a day she was surely puzzled.

Dad asked Rudolf, that first day, if he would help put on the hay rack to the wagon as they could haul feed. Poor Rudolf. He simply didn't know what to do. He went outside, and emerged one of the racks on one of the wagons, he straightway went to work trying to take it off the wagon. Later we found that in their language "take-off" meant "lay on". No wonder the poor fellow was mystified. However, as I said before, they did learn quickly, and in no time at all we understood each other well enough to get on fine.

One vegetable which neither we had seen was rhubarb or pie cob. The first time I had it for dinner, I noticed them eyeing it rather dubiously. When it was passed to Rudolf he immediately put one end of it into it all into his mouth trying to get off a bite. Glancing at some of the others who were eating it he did as he be eaten, he at once caught on, and did likewise. They both really liked it, and always planted some in their own garden every year after.

LOCAL COUPLE WED IN CALGARY

The Chapel of Central United Church in Calgary was the setting for a wedding of local interest recently when Shirley Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Scrogel, Hardisty, exchanged vows with Donald Block, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Block of Daysland, Rev. J. T. Lowery, formerly of Hardisty, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and the best man was Mr. Edward Stack of Daysland.

Bridesmaid was Susan Rempel, a sister of the bride, who wore an aqua chiffon dress, carrying white carnations tipped with blue. Donna Scheuer sister of the bride, was the flower girl. The bride's mother wore a navy jersey dress with white accessories, and the groom's mother chose a blue jersey sheat dress with white accessories. Both carried pink corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride's sister Mrs. Harry Scheuer. M. C. was the best man Mr. Stack, who proposed the toast and read a number of telegrams from relatives and friends.

The young couple motored to points south and west so far as to Near D' Alene, Idaho, on their honey moon and upon their return are making their home at Daysland.

HARDISTY HI-L ITES

Born, to Mr and Mrs Geo. Mills of Winnipeg (nee Joan Frasier) June 2nd, a son, Timothy George.

St. Mark's W. A. met at home of Mrs. Trupp with Mrs Mills as hostess. A stafactory return was reported on the Mother's Day tea and bazaar. Mrs. Thorp reported on the Deanery meeting held in Killam. As this was the last meeting before the summer holiday, all business was finalized.

A farewell party was held in the United Church basement on Wednesday night in honor of Mrs. Elsie Brondgeest. A resident of Hardisty for nearly 40 years, she has sold her home and will be living in Sherwood Park Lodge, Edmonton. A sing song and musical numbers by Rev. Craig, Mrs Doris Powell and Mrs Doreen Bell provided entertainment for the many friends who had gathered. A lovely lunch was served. On behalf of the UCW Mrs. Bert Hill presented the guest of honor with a plaque, spotting of her years of service with the Ladies Aid, W. A. and U.C. W. Mrs. Craiten then presented a purse of money on behalf of all her friends, both in the church and out, accompanied by a reading in her own inimitable style. The evening ended with "God Be With You."

Social Credit Government Returned To Power With 60 of 63 Seats

Premier Manning and his Social Credit Government made a near clean sweep of the Province in Monday's election, winning 60 of the 63 seats in the Legislature. The Liberal Party won a seat in Calgary and retained the one in Lac La Biche. An Independent won Banff-Cochrane.

JACK HILLMAN EASY WINNER

In Sedgewick-Coronation, incumbant Jack Hillman had no trouble holding his seat for the government, winning easily better than 2 to 1. Results show Hillman with 3855, Peterson (NDP) 526 and Sims (Lib.) 1352 (two small polls to be heard from)..

Out of 8143 eligible voters in Sedgewick-Coronation only 1631 turned out at the polls, less than one-eighth. Only 3 votes were cast in advance polls.

The two polls to be heard from in the south-east end of the constituency, contain only 60 to 70 votes and so will not change the picture locally. It is likely that final results will show Hillman with close to 4000, or more than double that of the other two candidates.

6,000 Enthusiasts Watch Two Day Stampede

Close to 6000 stampede enthusiasts passed through the gates for the annual showing of the popular Hardisty Stampede and Chuck Wagon Races. Weather favored the affair, and the new location of the grounds near the lake gave the crowds more opportunity for entertainment.

Along with the award went a cheque for $100. David was the winner in an essay contest which drew over 1300 entries. He is a student at Central High School in Sedgewick. Mr. Iveson was accompanied by Mr. Joe Marks Director of Public Information (Alta. Division) of Canadian Petroleum Association.

KILLAM C.W.L.

KILLAM — The C. W. L. met in the parish hall on June 12th with Mrs. Robertson as hostess and with 21 ladies present. Gift were presented to 2 departing members, Mrs. Krause and Miss Slawik, and to Sister Thomasine and Miss Brown, in appreciation of their work with the confirmation class.

Circle 1 had entered to a wedding dinner. Circle 3 had sponsored a bridal shower and entered to a consumous breakfast. A breakfast was planned at which Fr. D. Kwetch will be honored, following his first mass celebrated in our parish, June 17.

The president displayed the new gavel made and given to the CWL by Mr. H. George. It was noted that the Piere Berton column had been dropped from McLean's magazine, following protests over an offensive article written by him. Five ladies attended the CWL convention held at Stettler. Our delegate Mrs. Schnetzler gave a report.

Mrs. Slavik read the thought-provoking article given by Mr. McNeil of the Edmonton Separate Schools.

Mrs. E. Moser won the attendance prize. The hostess was assisted in serving lunch by Mrs. G. Pee & Mrs. Loyd George.

COLORFUL HOBOS!

On May 31st the Explorer Group of St. Andrew's United Church in Lougheed enjoyed a peppy and eventful Hobo Hike on the Joint Black farm. Seventeen Explorers dressed in rags and patches, with a lunch tied to a stick held over the shoulder, were brought to the farm by Mrs. D. Black in a truck, that stalled in the wheat field and refused to go. It was pushed by the Hobos and left on a good spot.

The hike was up and down hills until a good spot was decided upon to build a fire. Tins of beans and spaghetti were heated and marshmallows roasted on sticks. A most delightful lunch was soon devoured. Time and threatening rain drove the Hobos homeward, and the truck started but a bomb. A flat tire on the Green Valley road added to the excitement, however thanks to Mr. and Mrs. J. Butcher and family, David Black was finally notified and came "4-tourin" to his little women's rescue, changed the tire and brought some of the Hobos back to town. The bigger. Hobo? Ida M. Black.

KNOX U.C.W.

KILLAM — A worship period and study from The Word and the Way, opening the June meeting of Knox U. C. W. at home of Mrs. Wegenast. Since the last meeting the Bible from the pulpit had been repaired. Spoons for departure gifts were purchased and engraved. Observer subscriptions were sent. A Tyvetec; the UCW operated the concessions at the Calf Sale. A donation was made to the cemetery fund, and a small donation for school hits and curtains was voted for the John Neil Hospital at Cold Lake.

The women were asked to arrange for dinner for the men who work at the church bee on June 17th. Used clothing brought to the church will be packed and shipped June 19. The Knox Church will work with the Baptist Church Vacation School, by providing cold drinks for the children and by sending two helpers during the week of July 22nd. A $10.00 donation was voted to help finance Mr. Morris' tuition at the Counseling Course at Banff in August. A committee will make plans for catering for a July wedding.

CEMENT FLOOR FOR CURLING RINK

SEDGEWICK — Crews have finished pouring the cement floor in the new curling rink at the Sedgewick Recreational Centre, and it is to be ready for use soon. The cement floor was put in so that the building could be used during the summer for various events instead of standing idle when the curling is finished. First expected use of the new floor will be to accommodate bingo players at the Ratchman's Bingo to be held in August.

Besides making the curling rink available for year-round use, the floor is expected to make even better curling ice than would have been possible with a dirt floor. The new rink is lighted with mercury vapor lights which give the same effect as daylight, and the building will be insulated with white stars-dusa so the temperature can be maintained at a constant 32 degrees.

Official opening of the new Centre will be held this fall and will feature a name rink bonspiel among other opening events.

Merna Pathfinders Cycle 50 Miles

It was with a great enthusiasm June 15th that twenty Pathfinders of the Merna District commenced their 50-mile bicycle ride down Highway 13 to earn their cycling honor. They left Ernie's Esso Service with a speed of 15 mph, but soon leveled off to 8 or 10. After a delicious picnic dinner near Hardisty they coasted on to the half-way mark East of Rosyth. Some were beginning to tire but their spirits revived as they marched on chocolate bars, and they headed back toward home.

At 7.30 the group of tired but happy boys and girls, aged 10 to 14 completed their ride and won their Cycling Honor.

★MACDUFF REPORT
TIRESOME REHASH

OTTAWA — The general feeling here in the Chamber public must be getting awfully tired of hearing the politicians at Ottawa talk about nuclear warheads. During the recent general election the voter heard defence policy of the political parties discussed at length. Some politicians kept insisting that nuclear weapons were not a major issue in the campaign and then proceeded to devote half of their speeches to the subject.

Since the election the Liberals in Parliament have declared repeatedly they want to get on with the business of governing the country. But on each and every occasion that an opportunity occurs the Conservatives and the N.D.P. have raised the question of nuclear weapons.

During the Throne Speech debate the NDP seized the occasion to introduce a vote of confidence motion based on nuclear weapons. This brought about a prolonged debate on the subject and when the vote was finally taken it almost resulted in the defeat of the Liberal minority Government. But the Liberals survived that crucial test, with the assistance of a few Tories and some Social Credders who rallied to their support. Then the Liberal Government announced the resolution to set up a committee on defence. Prime Minister Pearson, during the election campaign, had promised to set up the Committee at the first opportunity. He was carrying out that promise. Once again the opposition, primarily the Conservatives, seized the opportunity to go back over old ground and launch a debate on the acquisition of nuclear weapons for our forces.

Earlier the House had passed a motion introduced by Stanley Knowles (NDP for Winnipeg) asking the Government to produce any document that would prove that the former P.C. Government committed Canada to acquire nuclear weapons for its armed forces. External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said such documents existed but it might endanger National security to make them public. He promised to go over them and see whether it would be possible to bring down in the House extracts from the documents.

This promise got along a heated exchange with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. It was a revival once again of the hot issue of the election campaign. Mr. Diefenbaker insisted — as he had during the campaign — that his Government never made any such commitment. He said no such documents existed. He insisted that if anything was to be produced the entire documents should be produced not just a summary of extracts as Mr. Martin proposed. But the House overruled him & his Tory colleagues and voted to have Mr. Martin look at the documents and decide whether they could be brought down in whole, or in part, or not at all.

Then came the debate on the move to set up a defence committee. Once again, Mr. Diefenbaker who of on a favorite subject for him the discussion of Government policy in regard to nuclear weapons. He has been harping on this question so much in the past four or five months that many questioned whether the public is not getting weary of it.

The debate saw Mr. Diefenbaker attacking the Liberal administration and Prime Minister Pearson in particular on the subject of the acquisition of nuclear weapons. Mr. Pearson responded with a speech in reply that was one of his best efforts in the House of Commons.

The Prime Minister in bolster his arguments cited statements made by two previous defence ministers in the P. C. Government. They were Hon. George Pearkes and Hon. Doug Harkness. Mr. Pearson went back to the records of a previous defence committee to read into the record what Mr. Pearkes had to say about the Government requiring nuclear weapons. And, he quoted a recent interview Mr. Harkness had given in which the former Defence Minister said that documents did exist setting out Canada's obligations to acquire nuclear weapons.

The debate ended, the House voted to set up the defence committee, and in that committee the 24 members will have ample opportunity to get into defence policy. The battle over nuclear policy will therefore be now transferred from the floor of the Commons to the confines of a committee room on Parliament Hill.

There are 12 Liberals on the committee, eight Conservatives, two S. C's., and two members of the N.D.P. The Liberals will presumably pick a chairman from their members.

Prime Minister Pearson during his major speech spoke appreciatively of the knowledge possessed of defence problems by Mr. Harkness. As a former Minister of Defence in the Diefenbaker Government, Mr. Pearson said he was confident that Mr. Harkness would be able to make a valuable contribution to the committee. But when the Conservatives came to select their members to sit on the committee, they left Mr. Hark ness off the list. Mr. Harkness was naturally disappointed that he had been barred from the committee by his own party. He told newsmen that he found it very strange.

However, it is likely that the Liberals will have Mr. Harkness summoned as a witness to appear before the committee. He will thus be in a position to put his views on record. Mr. Harkness' views in the nuclear weapons field conflict with the position adopted by Mr. Diefenbaker. It was for this reason that Harkness found it necessary during the last days of the Diefenbaker regime to resign from the Government.

The defence committee should produce some interesting material. Prime Minister Pearson has made it clear that the committee will be empowered to examine issues in the field of policy. This is unusual as "in the past the defence committee has been prevented by the Government from delving into policy.

The Parliament committee on defence in the past were frustrating exercises in futility. They had to cut their their discussions to a few superficialities and whenever they strayed of over into policy they were called up short.

However, the committee unlike the practice in the U. S., will not be allowed to call and question serving officers about matters that fall into the realm of policy. The Minister of Defence will handle those questions. It may be that at this point the committee will break down and once again the old tiresome rehash of nuclear weapons develops. If it does the public will quickly lose interest and the committee will end up by making no real contribution.

It rests with the 24 members to make sure that the committee does not fall flat on its face. Unfortunately, the committee membership is short on experts, talking even Mr. Harkness. The members will have to do their homework if they are going to study all aspects of the Country's defence establishment.

FORAGE FIELD DAY, JUNE 25 —
A Forage Field Day will be held on the farm of Jim Gordon, 4 miles West of Strome, or 4 East and 1 1/2 South of Dalmead) on Tuesday, the 25th of June at 2.00 p.m. The different types of forage harvesting machinery will be present and the advantages and weakness of each will be discussed. Everyone who is interested is invited to attend and have the Agricultural Engineer, Alex Fulton, answer your questions.

AN INDICATOR OF POOR SOIL OR MANAGEMENT!

To most farmers foxtail or wild barley is just another weed with which he must contend. This weed, however, is more than just a nuisance; it is an indication of either poor soil conditions or poor management practices, both of which can be largely overcome.

Wild barley is very alkali tolerant and as a result is often the only type of vegetation found in alkali areas. Its presence, therefore often indicates an alkali problem. Because most cultivated grasses do not thrive on salty soils the wild barley is free to flourish without competition.

In a situation of this kind, two courses of action are suggested by O. G. Bentvold, Supervisor of the Alberta Dept. of Ag. Crop Improvement Service. In some cases the alkalinity may be remedied by application of barnyard manure or by drainage or both. If this approach is not practical, and very often it is not, the alternative is to sow an alkali tolerant grass such as tall wheatgrass. This species will usually thrive on alkali soils equally as well or better than wild barley and the results are more profitable.

Wild barley over-running a pasture may indicate over grazing. Wild barley is not relished by livestock, in fact they almost completely reject it. Consequently when a pasture is over grazed, cultivated acreage is reduced to the point where it offers no competition at all. Since the animals refuse to eat wild barley it can flourish unhampered by competitive growth. Over grazing is a management problem and when wild barley indicates that this condition exists, remedial action should be taken.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL NEXT FALL

W. C. Gordon, Livestock Supervisor advises entlemen to deborn their cattle now instead of waiting until next fall. This job is far simpler and the calver receive little or no setback when it is done early. Nowadays caustic paste, available from firms carrying veterinary supplies is commonly used for this purpose. If carefully applied when animals are from three days to three weeks old it will destroy the horn growth cells. The paste comes in plastic containers with self-applicators which makes deborning an easy job.

It is a good idea to clip the long hair over the horn before applying caustic paste. Some cattlemen say it pays to rub the horn-button with sand paper before applying the stick to eliminate possible misses in the young stock. By deborning calves at the right age you will avoid the serious situation which arises when this job has to be done at the same time as weaning. At weaning time the calves are already under a stress & should not be subjected to any additional stress.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Twelve years ago last September, their mothers watched with a mingling of smiles and tears as a million children set off for their first day at school. The little girls were curled and ribboned and starched and adorable. The little boys were scrubbed and slicked and scared.

This month, the remnants of the 140 tots, and thousands like them, will graduate from grade 12, their school days just a nostalgic echo. Fewer than half of the original 140 are still together; some have failed and been left behind. Others have quit school and gone to work, some because they wanted to, some because they had to. One is in reform school. Another was killed in an accident. Two are married.

Seven of the original hundred will go on to university. Five of these will graduate. The remaining thirty or forty will be swallowed up by banking, nursing, industry, business. Within a few years they will be parents, citizens, taxpayers.

Perhaps one will be an alcoholic. Three will be divorced. One boy will enter politics. One girl will enter a mental institution. But most of them will be up to their ears in life as you and I.

What kind of people are they right now, as they prepare to break out of the shell of school and home and stand on the windswept plains of adult living? What do they think about? What do they feel? Are they better than we were, or worse?

Far be it from me to boast that I can see clearly into their maze of emotion and imagination that makes up the teen-age mind. But as their English teacher, reading their last essays, I learn a lot about them. One thing they are is pretty honest. Thus, I get a peek into that murky area occasionally. Join me.

On "going steady." An amazing number of both sexes, agree that it's stupid. One lad says it's great at first, because you always have a date and never feel left out. But, he adds, after a spell of the same routine with the same girl, week after week, you always have a date and it's as boring as being married.

A girl points out that "going steady" is a prestige deal at first, but inevitably lends to a feeling of being left out of normal fun, because you're regressed. It ends, she warns, in one of two things: a too-early tragic marriage; or bitter arguments and recriminations, just like being married. You can't win, it seems.

On cooking friends. One young lady, with a mind like a cold chisel, observes that we never really look for friends only for love and security. The same girl suggests wryly that, "Some old friends should be severed; others should be severed."

On noise in daily life. They like it. Joined to a noisier society than the one in which we grew up, they thrive on the squeal of tires, squawk of the transistor, the shrilling of the telephone and the thump of the juke box. Although one lad remarks, "Those signs at the street corners which could spell STOP don't necessarily mean Squeal Tires On Pavement."

On manners. Good manners are a must, the mainte of society. They are based not merely on politeness, but on consideration for others.

On teachers. Pretty nice things, not so bad, on looking back. They detest the grouch, the sarcasm bitter, and the person who can't control a class. They like the teacher who combines courtesy, common sense, firmness, a sense of humor, and professional competence.

On leaving school. Even the dunks and the recreants of boys feel an overwhelming, almost indescribable sense of loss and sadness. But it's mingled with a certain eagerness to take on the big world.

Are these young people different from their parents at the same age? Yes, on the surface. They seem more confident, better adjusted, tougher. They are definitely less inhibited, in thought, word and deed. Which is not a bad thing. They respect casual, careless and callous. They are more knowledgeable. They are less disciplined, but just as conventional, in an unconventional way.

Remember, they were born into a different world. While they haven't known the desperate, frightened time of the great depression, so we did, they know the era of uneasiness, the loosening of family ties, changing morals and standards of living, and the great mushrooming cloud.

Personally, I have a lot of respect and a great deal of hope for them. Probably more than I had for my own generation. Beneath the teen-age facade of coolness, they are just as troubled and bewildered and scared and uncertain as you and I were, Maggie, when we were young.

They are just as eager to do the right thing, as rebellious against what seems wrong. They are just as good, in the moral sense, as we were. And just as bad, with a lot more opportunity.

All I can say, as they exchange the mantras of the teen-ager for the bog of the adult is, "Welcome to the human race. And may you be fleet of foot."

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

WASH DAY ON THE EARLY FARM IN THE EARLY DAYS

In 1920 when we first arrived at the farm, there was no washing machine on the place. Granma C. used to take the few dirty clothes at her's and Grandpa's over to one of the neighbor's place once a month, doing them all together. This neighbor had a sisters of soft water, which seemed to be always full, and Granma C. was much luxury. Thus this neighbor got help with her wash, and Granma got her's done too.

Therefore when we arrived with three babies and found there was no water, except a well of alkali water which no amount of lye would soften, also no washing machine, well, I had to buy a tub and wash-board, then pray for rain in the summer, and melt ice and snow in the winter. When two or three weeks would go by in the summer with no rain, and I had used all the soft water I had on hand, one of the neighbors would take pity on me, and come with her horse and buggy, load up the children, myself and always a huge bundle of dirty clothes, and take us to her home where I'd do my washing, and help with her's too. She also had a sisters, which like the other never ran dry (she also had a machine). I did appreciate such thoughtfulness, because she had a big family, and it must have upset her schedule a bit, to have me, with the three children, coming in to wash clothes. But that was just one example of the old pioneer spirit in those days. Wherever would I have been if she had not been so kind and thoughtful!

However, in time Dad mended our old cistern, installed a new sink with a cistern pump — then one day he surprised me by bringing a gas engine and washing machine. I could not have been more delighted.

Next morning, bright and early, the boiler was put on the stove, a chunk of home-made lye soap cut up in it, then while that was heating I sorted the clothes, ready to use just how everything would work.

Things went along fine for weeks and weeks. Then the gas pump engine in the barn went haywire, so Dad "borrowed" my wash engine, saying it was "just for the time it would take to repair the old one." This went on for weeks on end. Every week-day the men would turn the engine down and roll it up to the house on its wheels, returning it in the same way. Naturally, no engine could stand that sort of abuse for very long, so I wasn't too surprised when it quit. It was summertime, so I had decided to wash outside that day. The machine was taken down, the engine duly rolled up from the barn, lined up, and I got at the washing. Suddenly the engine gave a queer sort of shudder, then with pieces of cast-iron from the drive wheel falling all around, the belt broke, throwing the machine, full of hot, sudsy water & clothes to the ground. Seems that the governor had stuck. Needless to say it gave me such a fright that I refused to use it again, even after it was fixed, so back to the corn meal-ed on dragging it back and forth to the house. So, back to the old tub & board, with no wringer either.

In the winter, with Dad and Bill (the hired man) both wearing pure wool combination underwear, the 3 boys fleece-lined underwear, as well as bedding from 3 or 4 beds, along with mountains of men's, dresses, etc, the weekly washing always took me two days to do from around nine in the morning to close to supper time, on each of the two days.

However, that's a long time that has no turning," and I did have a good machine, with wringer (hand power) the last few years that we were on the farm.

SEVICK — SLAVIK

On Wednesday, June 12th in St. Joseph's Church, Killam, May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Slavik of Killam became the bride of Mr. Frank Sevick, son of the late Ernest and Mrs. Sevick of Viking, in a double-ring ceremony. Fr. McCarthy officiated and said the nuptial mass. Fr. T. Rammabel of Trochu was in the sanctuary.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her floor-length dress of net over satin with a bouffant skirt. It had lily-point sleeves and was lightly embroidered with seed pearls. Her shoulder length veil of illusion net was held in place by a tiple crown, and she carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaids, sisters of the bride, were identical pale green attire with matching headdresses of net, white hats and white accessories and carried bouquets of white carnations. They were Myrgaret Slavik of Camrose, Mrs. Ray Heller of Berkley, Cal., and Sharon Slavik, Killam.

The groom's attendants were his two brothers, Charles and Joe from Red Deer, and Wilf Slavik, Killam.

The petite flower girls, Therese Slavik of Viking and Sharon Slavik of Killam were attired in pale green dresses of ruffled net with tiny white hats. They carried baskets of white carnations and daisies.

Mr. Leo Slavik and Mr. Stan Sevick were ushers.

Mrs. Sevick, mother of the groom chose a dress of rose lace with rose accessories. The bride's mother selected a pale blue sheath and white hat. Both were yellow roses corsages.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. R. Kinzer, and room 2 of Killam R.C.S.S. sang during the mass.

The wedding dinner was served by the C.W.L. in St. Joseph's Hall. The bride's table was centered by a 3-tier wedding cake which had been decorated by Mrs. S. Bunch. Father McCarthy's table was the one was responded to by the groom. The M. C. was Mr. C. Sevick, Fr. Hickey of Heisler and Fr. Rammabel, Trochu, offering their felicitations. Following the dinner a reception for 200 guests was held at the bride's home.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Slavik of Red Deer and Mrs. Gerald Gau of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. L. Gau of Lacombe; Miss Audrey Dorris of Stettler; Miss Terry Donnelly, Marie Clair and Miss Cermin of Tofield, and Miss Merylin Bowes of Lougheed. The children and teachers of Killam R.C.S.S. were special guests at the nuptial mass.

In the evening a dance was held at Prague Hall, followed by a dance.

F.U.A. Newsletter

● The American Farm Bureau had hinted at some stopgap wheat legislation before the wheat referendum on May 21st. Now their leaders say that they didn't promise new legislation. They now claim to have pointed out that some Democrats could "fall over themselves" to do something if the referendum didn't get the required majority. Up until now no Democrats have "fallen over themselves." The Farm Bureau says "maybe the results of the referendum should stand." However, added to that is the suggestion that the government should come up with "an expanded land retirement or soil bank program to get supply and demand back into balance." It is becoming clear to many U. S. wheat farmers that the Farm Bureau Federation has been playing politic ally along. A land retirement or soil bank program will be under government control. The slogan "Freedom from Tyranny" was and has been nothing else than misleading. The U. S. administration is looking over the possibility of greatly expanding the crop land conversion program. This plan would retire lands for as long as 10 years instead of for shorter periods.

● Farm Women's Week will be held at this year from July 8 to 11 at Olds School of Agriculture. The program is planned to include lectures and demonstrations in practical Home Economics as well as other topics of interest to women. Provision is also made for recreation and relaxation from the routine of home duties.

● Friday, June 14th is Farmers' Day. FUA and FWUA locals have arranged picnics, etc. for that day all over the province.

Legion Cemetery Com. Activities

The Sedgewick Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion No. 56, has been responsible for the care and maintenance of the Sedgewick Cemetery for several years. Cleanup & grass mowing work parties have been organized every year. Although response has been excellent, the committee felt that a caretaker must be hired for the mowing schedule to do a lot of the jobs which could not be done by a work party. Mr. Joe Harding has been hired as such.

The committee has made plans to purchase a graveside canopy for the use of mourners at funerals; a large power mower; blueprints are being drawn up for the construction of a suitable building to accomodate the equipment. These accomplishments are possible through the liberal donations to the Cemetery Fund.

The Legion wishes to thank all those who have made donations, who have attended work parties or who have served lunch to workers. With co-operation like this our cemetery can become a piece of beauty and a credit to the Sedgewick district.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our husband and father, Maurice L. B. Miller who passed away a year ago to-day, June 24th, 1962.
This day comes with deep regret,
Brings back a day we'll never forget.
He fell asleep without good-bye,
But memories of you will never die.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by Elsie, Lorne and Marlee. 11 1c

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother who passed away on June 24th, 1962.
A year has passed and gone,
Since we said our last good-bye,
When without a farewell word
You silently passed away.
Time may heal the broken hearted,
Years may make the wound less sore,
But it cannot fill the longing
For the loved one gone before.
If we had all the world to give
We'd give it to you and more.
To hear your voice and see your smile
And greet you at the door.
A smile for all, a heart of gold,
One of the best this world could lend.
Never selfish, always kind,
Those are the memories you left behind.
Lovingly remembered by your Mother, Edith, Verda, Louis and Families. 11 1 c

IN MEMORIAM

SIMONS — In loving memory of our dear mother and wife, Lydia Hamilton, who passed away on June 17th, 1958.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by Loving Husband, William O. Simons and Family. 11 1 p

F. U. A. Sports Com. Gives Report

President Tom Bruce, for the supporting committee of the F.U.A., reported that the Community Centre at Sedgewick was rapidly nearing completion. The three bowling lanes are installed, and pouring of cement in the four-foot artificial ice curling rink is finished. No date has as yet been announced for the Centre's official opening, which, when complet ed, will be the focal point for a multiplicity of recreational activities, both indoors and out.

The committee reported that tickets in support of Junior Queen contestant Evelyn Arntzen, had been quite satisfactory. All tickets have been sent in to Central office.

Councillor Koehli advised that there was some consideration was being given to purchasing rural fire fighting equipment, and asked that the matter be discussed.

The RED X Means TIME TO RENEW

District 8 F.U.A 15th Annual Convention

The 15th annual convention of the District 8 Farmers' Union of Alberta, was held in the school auditorium at Forestburg on June 19th. Delegates were welcomed by Mayor Mr. T. Kaufman, and the Rev. Bob Neal gave the invocation. There were over 100 delegates, officials, guests and visitors present.

During the morning reports from board officials were given. Fraternal delegates of United Grain Growers, Alberta Wheat Pool and U.F.A. Co-ops brought greetings from their organizations. Mr. Irvin Herbs of the Co-op Fire and Casualty Co. reported upon the progress of the F. U. A. Insurance Unit.

Guest speakers were Mr. Cleve Anderson, Vice-Pres. of the FUA; Mrs. Florence Hallum, 2nd Vice-Pres. of the FWUA; Mr. Eugene Elm, Vice-Pres. of the Junior FUA, and Mr. J. W. McKay, Director of Safety, Highway Traffic Board, who spoke on highway safety and the responsibilities of drivers.

Mr. W. R. Hamel of Gadsby, was re-elected as Director, and Mr. C. Jorgensen of Irma as Alternate Director. Mrs. W. H. Frederick of Killam is the new FWUA Director to replace Mrs. Rosenberg of Rosalind in the new Alternate FWUA Director.

Under the new district set-up District 8 now consists of four sub-districts and the sub-directors for the new sub-districts are: Flagstaff, Thos. Bruce of Sedgewick; Camrose, Ian Holdaway, Bawlf; Stettler, John Ross, Gadsby; Painsterth (to be elected later).

A number of resolutions were passed.

Blood Donor Clinic At Killam July 17th

KILLAM — A Blood Donor Clinic for the towns of Lougheed, Sedgewick Killam & Strome will be held in the Killam School Auditorium on Wednesday, July 17th. Clinic hours are 2.00-3.30 and 7-9 p.m.

An average of one bottle of blood must be collected every 15 seconds every working day to maintain an adequate supply of whole blood and blood products. More than 800,000 bottles are required for transfusion therapy for patients in Canadian Hospitals during the year.

Those in charge of this Clinic kindly ask your support.

Ray Pottage To Lead Young S. C's.

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick-Coronation Young Social Creditors held their first annual meeting June 19th in the Legion Hut. The young people looked back on an interesting and eventful year. There is a membership of 24, and the group meets the 3rd Tuesday each month.

The treasurer gave the financial report and the president gave a report on the year's activities.

Election of officers followed, and was chaired by Mr. Garnet Peterson, group organizer from Edmonton. Raymond Pottage was re-elected as president and Daniel Lewis as vice. The secretary-treas. and reporter to be appointed.

Plans for the coming year were discussed and the name of the group was changed to include "Coronation" now part of the executive.

After all business was concluded, Mr. Peterson spoke. His address included a speech by Robert Thompson. He noted that it was the young people who had the honor to hold the first Social Credit activity since the June 17th election. A question period and talk followed.

G B. Palmers Hold 55th Anniversary

KILLAM — Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Palmer of Killam reached their 55th wedding anniversary on June 16th. The Palmers, residents of the Strome - Killam district since 1914, were both born near Fredericton, N. B. They moved west and settled on a farm, subsequently retiring to Killam in 1950 where they now reside.

Both have always been very active in community and church affairs. Mr. Palmer was the "fiddler" of the district, and many are the folk who tripped the light fantastic to his music.

Four children were born to the couple, Leslie and Lloyd of Killam; Helen (Mrs. E. J. Pyde tte) of Edmonton and Willard (Bill) of Opse. They have 9 grandchildren and one great grandson.

Clandfield - Wilder Wedding Held At St Paul's United

HARDISTY — On Saturday, June 1st at 3.00 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Hardisty, a very pretty wedding was performed when Miss Alma Cruiz united in a double-ring ceremony, Lynda Darlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wilder of Hardisty, and Cameron Hannis Clandfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clandfield of Calgary.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and was wearing a floor-length gown of white organza featuring appliqued alencon lace, and hand sewn sequins and pearls, lily-point sleeves, a large organza bow, topped by coiled organza rose giving the back of the gown a bustle effect. A double tiered shoulder-length veil was held in place by a pearl and sequin trimmed crown and she carried a cascade of red sweetheart roses. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the groom.

The bride was attended by her sister Mrs. Virginia Nichol as matron of honor. Miss Wanda Wilder and Miss Sandra Gregory, bridesmaids, were identical street length gowns of mauve organza over taffets. The matron of honor wore a gown of slightly darker mauve trimmed with lace. Their accessories were white, and they carried nosegays of yellow and white baby mums.

The groom was attended by his brother Michael of Calgary, Mr. Neil Crawford of Calgary and Mr. Calvin Cavanagh of Hardisty acted as the ushers. Mrs. Fred Drager played the wedding music, and Miss Sheri Drager sang the beautiful "You'll Never Walk Alone" during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wilder chose a beige linen dress with lace jacket. Her corsage of talisman rosebuds had accessories. Mrs. Clandfield, groom's mother, wore a pink dress and jacket with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the IOOF hall, which was beautifully decorated by ladies of the Royal Purple and Auxiliary to the Legion. The bride's table was laid with a hand-crocheted cloth centered by a 3-tier cake decorated by the bride's mother. It was flanked by tall tapers. Rev. Craig asked the blessing. Toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Bill Gregory and was ably replied to by the groom. The bride's father Mr. Wilder, and Mr. Harvey Stave of Sedgewick made brief comments. Miss Sherry Crone, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book. Mrs. George Wilder and Mrs. M. Vandewark poured tea for the open house which was held after the reception.

For her going away ensemble the bride chose a two-piece tan dress, the jacket having a furred effect, with white accessories and an orchid corsage. After a brief honeymoon to Jasper, Banff and Calgary, the happy couple will be residing in Hardisty.

Explorers Camp At Hardisty Lake

SEDGEWICK — On June 14 and 15, thirteen Explorers from Sedgewick and Camrose Explorers and CGIT girls from Lougheed enjoyed two days of camping at the United Church camp site at Hardisty Lake. Mr. J. Pust, Mrs. N. Colbert transported the Sedgewick group, while Mrs. N. Bax and Mrs. D. Black took the Lougheed group. After registration, leader and cabin assignments were made and the first dip in the lake enjoyed. Following lunch a lively sing-song and then a rest period were enjoyed. The water was the big attraction, as swimming was next on the program. A period of Bible study was interesting and brought out much discussion. A softball game was enjoyed. A scavenger hunt made the groups disappear, to return with their treasures. It was a good way to gather the sticks for a wiener roast that followed. Later the big circle was formed and the campfire lit. Singing, skits, pantomimes, etc. were enjoyed.

Vesper service was held at the outdoor chapel by the lakeshore. After a hot drink of cocoa, and cookies, the boys were escorted to their cabins for the night.

Saturday morning's 7 a.m. whistle brought big and small to the front of the lodge where "jerks" was tops of the morning. A short swim was in order and worship service conducted by the counselors. After breakfast followed by cabin clean-up and Bible study, another dip was enjoyed. A lunch followed by a sing-song, and speeches by Explorers and leaders on how much the holidays and cooperation of everyone was so successful, came next. After a rest period a handicraft session and the girls making flowers from various colors of foam rubber. After a last session and frolic in the lake, the girl ready for home whistle sounded.

Thanks go out to Mrs. H. Shoberg, Mrs B. Sax, Mrs. I. Black, Mrs. M. Culbert, Mrs. B. Forster, Mrs. K. Pust, also to Mr. Pust for doing so many odd jobs.

School Board Holds Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of Killam School Division was held with the Flowing present: Supt. Bruce, Trustees Nicholson, Polehopke, Clouston, Grant, Swan.

Minutes of the last meeting and an adjourned meeting were adopted.

The matter of installing a bathroom and fixtures in the teacherage at Strome, was tabled.

Sister Sebastian was granted leave of absence without pay from June 14th to 24th.

Miss Irene Carlson was placed on temporary staff of the Hardisty School from May 6 to June 30.

The following resignations from the teaching staff were accepted: Miss Judy Anderson, Morris; Mrs. Shirley Kassian, Killam; Robert Kuenster, Sedgewick; Mrs. Cyr, Killam; Karl Petersen and Mrs. Anne Paterson, Alliance.

Hiring of the following new staff was approved: N. Dawson, principal and teacher at Alliance; Mr. Marvin Fytas, Vice Principal, Hardisty and Stan Zaveleschuk, grade five, Sedgewick.

Matter of transferring Woodgate and Norwood school Districts to the Forestburg Consolidated School District, was tabled.

The holding of track meets at Sedgewick and Daysland on May 24 and Alliance on May 27 were approved and the regular cash grant made to help meet expenses.

The accident report on Judy Krueger of Heisler was filed as no negligence was apparent.

A new two way Newell Specialist Autofeed 16mm sound projector is to be purchased for Lougheed.

It was moved that negotiations be made with Mr. Pealey of Alliance to purchase the house presently occupied by him.

It was passed that the wilful damage to the boys' washroom at the Alliance School be repaired and 4 ball of $71.32 plus police costs of $60.12 be prorated for payment to parents of the boys involved.

Arrangements will be made with Blue Bird Bus Sales to sponsor a program, banquet and presentation of wing emblems and shoulder patches to all bus drivers of the Division with one or more years of clean, safe driving records.

Salary of the Secretary was increased by $100 retroactive to January 1st, and the Stenographer's salary increased by $300 retroactive to January 1st. Expenses of $70 each be allowed the secretary and a trustee to attend Banff Short Course.

Secretary was instructed to investigate the cost of building a 2-bedroom teacherage at Killam.

A heavy gauge chain link wire is to be purchased for a backstop for the Hardisty school playground.

Grade 9 Graduation

LOUGHEED — A very pleasant evening was held in the Lougheed School on June 13th, when the Staff and School held their annual social evening to honor grade 9 students. A very interesting and presented, consisting of songs and comedy numbers by grades 7 and 8, and musical numbers by Mrs. G. Boggesmeh and J. Heron.

The guest speaker was Mr. Harvey Stave, principal of Sedgewick High, whose talk, directed to grade nine, was on the topic, "Your Future." This was received with keen attention by everyone, students and parents alike. On behalf of the H. & S., Miss Cuba presented each of the grade 9 students with a crest in the school colors. Mrs. Boggesmeh, by the class, presented Miss Cade with a lovely bouquet of spring flowers, while the staff presented her with a corsage of red rosebuds.

Congratulations to the House and School for a very pleasant evening, and best wishes to grade 9 students.

Church Foundation Stone Laid

SEDGEWICK — The service of Laying the Foundation Stone of St. John's Anglican Church was held on Sunday evening June 17th, 1963.

The foundation stone which had been prepared by Elmer Johnson, Capt. David Brown and Len Roubough, and suitably inscribed, was laid by The Right Rev. Gerald W. Burch, Bishop of Edmonton Diocese, assisted by Canon G. A. Crawley of Viking, Rev. Walter Hammett from Tofield, Capt. David Brown and Mr. William Pooka of Forestburg.

The service was conducted at the building site Psalms, Lessons and some foundations had already been laid, and with experienced help under Stan Bowyer and some capable volunteers, the building will soon begin to rise. The Kinsmen kindly operated the public address system which helped materially in the service and was much appreciated.

The service was impressive in its simplicity and the singing of the hymn The Church's One Foundation, seemed somehow prophetic.

Flagstaff Scout Council Holds Annual Meeting

SEDGEWICK — The annual meeting of the Flagstaff District Council of Cubs and Scouts was held in the Sedgewick United Church basement with a great attendance. The District president Norman Nickerson introduced the head table guests and they were Mrs Ilene Bird, D.C. of Camrose, Denny May, Field Commissioner, and Al Stein D. C. The president welcomed those present and thanked them for their co-operation and support over the past four years. The treasurer Paul Tomlinson gave his report showing $154.13 balance.

The nominating committee tabled their slate of officers, namely: Rev. Bob Neal for president; Arnold Fredlund, Vice, and Norman Nickerson as Sec.-Treas. With Ilene Bird, D.C. Mrs. Neal was introduced to the chair. Bob thanked the retiring pres ident for work done.

D. C. Val Stein gave his report & reports were heard from the group committees. P.C. Denny May gave a report on weekend at Bar Harbor. Mr. Alex Hirch D.C. of the Wild Rose district spoke briefly, as did Mr. Hillman.

The tents will be kept at the Ken Millar home south of Forestburg. Sedgewick is using the tent starting on the 14th. Flagstaff District signs will be judged at next meeting to be held at Lougheed June 28th.

Denny May introduced the guest speaker, Mr. George Lovins, who has 36 years of Scouting to his credit. Mr. Val Stein was presented with a 25-year Pin and Medal by Provincial President Lovins. Val spoke a few words of appreciation, stating that he would continue to give service, and that he hoped to build up the Scout Movement in the district. Mr. Lovins gave an interesting address dealing with the many aspects of Scouting. He suggested that encouragement should be given to send big boys out of the district to visit for awhile. He also mentioned the Boys Magazine. Bob Neal expressed the appreciation of the district to Mr. Lovins for his address. Rev. J. Fast was paid tribute by the president for his work on the committee in his district.

NOTICE OF HOLIDAYS

There will be no issues of the Community Press for the weeks of July 4th and 11th. This year we will suspend publication for two weeks only instead of the usual four. Publication will resume July 18th.

While the Press will not be printed for two weeks, there will still be some activity around the plant, to look after commercial printing. Besides that it will take two weeks to get things back in order after the busy past twelve months.

SHOW THIS TO THE KIDS!

Somebody is always coming up with statistics tending to prove a point. For the most part they prove very dry reading. However Dr. Malcolm Taylor of the University of Alberta, at the annual sessions of the Canadian Welfare Council, came up with some facts, which, according to the Financial Post, go a long way indeed in explaining why Canada's unemployment rate hasn't been below 5% seasonal factors discounted, in the last six years. Here is what Dr. Malcolm had to say:

"More than 200,000 adult Canadians have never been to school. Some 870,000 didn't get past grade 4. Of not quite 400,000 Canadian youngsters who enter grade two every year, 76,000 drop out before grade 8 and 132,000 (1 out of every 3) don't go past grade 8. This is in a labor market where, since 1955, 70% of the unemployed have been those with no more than grade 8 and where, the National Employment Service says, men with no more than grade 8 are ineligible for 70% of the jobs."

In commenting on the above the Financial Post has this to say: "Plainly the work world has undergone far-reaching changes in the postwar years. This has been a period of rapid innovation, of quickening technological progress, and the work force has failed to adjust fast enough to avoid chronically high unemployment. This is bad for the economy. Lagging adjustment in the work force aggravates a lagging growth rate in business and this, as the Senate Manpower Committee pointed out, creates a vicious circle. But even more important, the upgrading of industry's requirements makes it infinitely harder for the undereducated teenager to get a job. Note this statement from a study done by Ottawa's Department of Labor: 'Boys with minimal education had only one chance in five of finding continuous employment; for girls, chances are even dimmer.' Schools will soon be over for this year and many parents will again be under pressure to let their offspring quit for all time. But these facts and figures provide potent arguments for getting the youngsters to go back again next fall for further development of their minds and skills."

EDUCATION SAVING CANCER PATIENTS!

Hardly a week goes by without somebody fingering us for a handout to some "worthy" cause. This has become so common today that many people grumble that most of the money is misdirected and that little of it really goes for the purposes intended. However this may be, the fact remains that a portion must go for administration and education. This is not all bad, for again statistics show the value of education. There is concrete evidence, for instance, that the education program of the Canadian Cancer Society is saving the lives of many Canadians. Of course the objective of all cancer education is early reporting, or seeing a doctor as soon as possible after noticing an unusual physical symptom. Figures show that more and more cases of cancer are being treated at early rather than late stages. They also show a steady rise in the rate of five-year survivals (people still alive and well five years after the start of treatment). A recent Canadian study showed that over a 17 year period the number of cases of lip cancer reported at an early stage went up from 83 to 95 percent; the number of skin cancers reported early rose from 80 to 98 percent; cancers of the cervix on which treatment started early rose from 55 to 71 percent; and early breast cancers went up from 67 to 82 p.c.

There is a significant parallel between early reporting and five-year survival figures. Five-year survival figures are going up steadily, due mainly to the educational work of the Canadian Cancer Society. Survival figures for early as compared to late cases, further emphasizes the importance of early reporting. In breast Cancer, for instance, 75 percent of women treated early survive for at least five years; but women who do not report their disease until it has reached a late stage have a survivral rate of only five percent. The overall survival rate for cancer today is 85 percent, and that includes both early and late cases. With more education it should be possible to raise that figure. And the potential with regard to the other types of cancer is similar.

The education program of the Society involves more people than its research or welfare work. About 20,000 volunteers in all parts of Canada are involved in cancer education throughout the year, and educators in Alberta are doing a good job. The more that is done, the more the number of lives that will be saved.

Mastery of languages is certainly a serious problem for English Canadians. This may be seen clearly on reading the following from a newspaper, "Pyrolized fibres dispersed in fluoroelastomers are producing new elastomeric materials which provide greatly improved high temperature tensile properties."

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Split - Level Taxation

OTTAWA — The 3 most powerful provincial Premiers in Canada are now standing side by side to try to work a minor revolution in Government financial affairs. Premier Roberts of Ont., has associated himself with Premier Lesage of Quebec in demanding for a greater provincial share of the tax dollar. Other premiers may soon join them. This means a large-size job-ladle for Ottawa. But it's not the kind of headache that can be cured with an aspirin. Surgery is indicated in the arrangements now in effect for sharing the tax dollar between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

Unfortunately the new Liberal Government at Ottawa, in spite of campaign promises of "co-operative federalism" shows some disturbing signs that it too, like many of its predecessors, may be addicted to the aspirin. This revolutionary battle that the Provincial Premiers are pressing may send sound revolutionary to most Canadians. They pay their taxes to all levels of Government & without much difference. This is a deadly serious battle, one which will preoccupy both levels of Government for the next year or more. It is a battle whose results may affect every one of us through the political institutions enjoyed by all Canadians.

Per the ordinary Canadian it could also have many influence on the kind and quality of service he gets in future from his three levels of Government.

The position taken by the Provincial Premiers is that they require a larger share of the tax dollar, and that the Federal Government has been taking too large a share. The provinces have been given constitutional jurisdiction to perform certain services for their citizens. But they have not the financial resources to perform these services.

In his budget speech on June 13, Finance Minister Gordon gave little indication that his Government considered the needs of the provinces to have any priority over those of the Federal Government. He said he is prepared to oversee the sort of basic revisions of tax structures which the provinces are asking for in detail.

Mr. Gordon gave no important indication that he recognizes the serious imbalance between the revenues available to the provinces and the services they are expected to provide.

His emphasis on national financial control seemed partly based on the 1930's when a terrible depression paralyzed national spending and anti-cost taxation, or perhaps in the 1940's when a terrible war required national control and national financing to forge a fighting machine. But many now feel that in the 1960's the needs of Canadians in the fields of education, health and welfare, and urban services are of major, if not paramount importance. These are provincial matters, and the provinces and their municipalities are expected to build schools, roads, hospitals, streets, sewage systems and street subways.

Yet they do not have the financial resources to do this on their own. The Federal Government meets this problem more by hand-outs and joint programs. This is exactly what the major provinces do not want. There are too many strings attached, too many conditions.

A recent report by the Canadian Tax Foundation showed the deep & dangerous gap between the revenues and expenditures of provincial and municipal governments. Federal Government revenues were 17.1 per cent of the gross national product in 1962, while its expenditures were only 14.4 percent of the gnp; Provincial Governments' revenues were 8.1 percents of GNP while expenditures were 8 percent; municipal government (the poorest though closest to their people) had revenues of 4.0 percent of the GNP against expenditures of 6.6 percent. In the past 22 years the Federal Government has vastly increased its share of revenue while the municipalities' share has actually declined.

It appears that many people in Canada do not want this highly-centralized, all-powerful type of Government. Yet this has been the trend, a trend that Mr. Gordon and his Government have yet to show they view with any concern.

What the Provincial Premiers do want is to reverse that trend, quickly and emphatically, revise the entire tax structure, and let the tax money be collected by the Government that spends it, the Government that knows, or should know, what its people need.

This will take some imaginative thinking, some generous concessions, some break with the past. These are exactly the qualities however that the Liberals promised to display in seeking election. Nowhere are those qualities more urgent than in the sharing of the tax dollar among all three levels of Government. And, this problem is clearly urgent for the Lesage Government in to be given the tools to finish its job of creating a new Quebec that is interested in making Confederation work.

GREEN ACRES

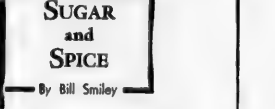
LEAVE HIGH GRASS STUBBLE!

It is false economy to cut grasses too short, suggests Ross Ashford of the Federal Experimental Farm at Swift Current, Sask. Research has shown that stands will generally persist longer and give higher yield of weed-free fodder when cut with a stubble height of not less than three inches (or even higher for rosi creasy grass). Short grazing and, to a lesser extent, wheat grass, is likely to winterkill if cut too close.

At Swift Current, tests were conducted on irrigated, second-year stands of intermediate wheat grass, brome, and rosi creasy grass. These were cut at the vegetative, boot, flower and seed states of growth & at a stubble height of 1 1/2, three and six inches. Brome was the only grass not adversely affected when cut at a stubble height of 1 1/2 inches, but its performance was no better in plots cut at three inches. The rosi creasy grass cut at 1 1/2 inches, and, to a lesser extent, at three inches, suffered stand reductions in the winter of 1961-62. As a result only the plots cut at six inches gave satisfactory yields in 1962.

A considerable amount of winterkilling occurred in intermediate wheat grass stands when the grass had been cut at a stubble height of 1 1/2 inches, especially when cut at the vegetative and boot stages, reports Mr. Ashford.



Dominion Day is on the way!

Let's have a celebration.

It may be our last chance they say To mark it as a nation.

Yep, according to the gloomposts, this may be our last opportunity to celebrate with our customary fervor that glorious national holiday conceived by all Canadians, July 1st.

Such sentient hysterians as Pierre Berton are sounding the tocsin, raising the storm signals, and making like Cassandra. Quebec, they ooh, is gonna pull outa the confederation. All will be lost. Canada will become a banana republic.

It is rather a paradox that the gnomes of anguish emerge, for the most part, from the very people who devote a great deal of time, and a vast number of words, towards convincing everybody that Canada is already little more than a banana republic. They are the people who unselfishly volunteered to act as the conscience of this country. They are the people who blat endlessly that we are the people who lang, with embarrassing obsequiousness, on one every word of every foreigner who speaks of this country, its habits & its people.

They are the people who, via Dawson City or Glace Bay or Heyfield Ont., descend upon our cities and set themselves up as arbiters of our taste, our opinions, our morals, our manners. Armed with incredible gall and a facility with words, they are happiest when they are revealing their ineffable scorn for Canadian custom, cooking and culture.

A plague upon them all. In the line of their duties & insinuations, their sneers and their sniping, I remain a cool, happy reactionary. I still believe that the 20th century belongs to Canada, even with an 11 percent sales tax on building materials. And furthermore I fearlessly predict that Quebec will never leave the confederation.

There are a number of good reasons for my opinions. They are not just a lot of off-the-cuff ideas based on a pile of statistical evidence. Neither they have a solid base of pure emotions and prejudices.

First of all, our politicians, while comparatively green compared to those of older nations, are internationally recognized as masters of the compromise. Canada, as a nation, has a reputation for horse-trading. She is not one to let any foolish ideas stand in the way of an honest buck. And this, I feel, will present the greatest obstacle to the secessionists of Quebec.

Second, our French-Canadian friends, bomb-planting to the contrary, simply are not wild-eyed Latins, forever cherishing cobblestones to hurl at authority. They are a little more volatile than our British elements, perhaps, but don't forget that they're descended from the shrewd, tough, logical, phlegmatic folk of Northern France, for the most part. They are practically obsessed compared to some of the exotic strain in our population. The Irish for example.

Third, they already have as much independence as they can possibly use. Don't tell me that a fellow in Riviere du Loup, for example, has any less freedom than I have. Especially if he's married. And I'll never forget a Canadienne I took out in Montreal one night. Boy, was she independent.

Fourth, the people of Quebec, should they pull out of confederation would have to give up one of their primary pleasures in life: blaming everything from the hat two ware to the low pensions on the sacred Anglais.

As for my other opinion, that the 20th century belongs to Canada, this too is based on a bedrock of hope, not a lot of silly facts and figures. The most precious thing we have is that the 20th century is becoming more & more expensive. Pretty soon, nobody will want it, at any price. But Canadians will buy anything, if the down payment is low enough.

Leaving you with these comforting predictions, I wish you a happy First of July, secure in the knowledge that you will spend it as usual: Reverently exploining to your children the meaning of confederation; listening to fiery orations of our great Canadian mystique; dancing in the streets with your neighbors to express your joy; and darking out your house or store with flags.

And if you have to don water-skis to catch your kids for this reverent explanation, don't worry. If the only fiery session you can find is Eric Cameron with the CBC nave, don't worry. If your neighbors have all bogged off to the beach, don't worry. If the only flags you can find is a couple of Union Jacks, an old Red Ensign, and a tattered Stars and Stripes, don't worry. It will be a good, savage, typical Canadian celebration of the birth of our glorious nation.

CANADA'S CHOICE. Jane Kmiza, 24, a registered nurse from Regina, was crowned Miss Dominion of Canada for 1963 at Niagara Falls. She will represent Canada in the Miss Universe and Miss World contests.

OBITUARY

KILLAM — This community is poorer in the passing of one of its earliest pioneers, Mr. Martin Jacobs, who had been a resident of the district for sixty years.

Born at Elm Creek, Buffalo County, South Dakota, on August 26th, 1883, Mr. Jacobs emigrated to Alberta in 1903, homesteading eight miles north of where the Village of Killam later was located. Mr. Jacobs played no small part in the development of his community, having served for many years as Municipal Councillor, and member of the Poplar Park S.D. Board, the U.F.A. and F.U.A.

Passing away on June 15th, 1963, he leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, Edith, one son Elmer of Killam, a daughter Winnie (Mrs. Ourcelf) of Calgary, and nine grand children.

Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian Church at Killam, with Rev. Ian McBreen officiating. Burial was in the Killam Cemetery. Pallbearers were Ivan Pierson, Louis Anderson, Aubert Heyghe, H. Breslin, Douglas Wilson and F. Wilson.

FRANK EDWARD HARDING

Frank Edward Harding passed away at St. Anne's Hospital, Hardisty, in the early morning hours of Friday, May 24th, 1963. He was born the eldest of a family of seven, at Paris, Ontario, on May 2nd, 1887.

He moved with his parents, brothers and sisters to Olds, Alberta in 1902 and from there to the farm in the Mellowe district south-east of Lougheed in 1906. Previous to the First World War he engaged in farming and community activities, including being the organist for his father's choir, a group formed from the homestead folk. Early in the war he enlisted with the Canadian Army 47th Battalion, was sent overseas and served two and one-half years in France with the Canadian Corps of Signals. He was decorated with the Military Cross and Bar, and also won a Commission in the Field, the latter not being confirmed due to the cessation of hostilities.

Mr. Harding returned to the farm in 1919 after which he said his brothers Abel formed a partnership to operate both their own and their father's holdings.

He was the first Scoutmaster of the original Meigewallay Troop that was formed in 1926. Under his leadership a large group of youth from Mellowe, Groveland and Valley School Districts took extensive Scout training including the well-remembered summer camps at Hardisty Lake, where he taught swimming and water safety, as well as handling the camp routine. There are many men of the district today who still remember their days in the Scout Troop with Frank as Scoutmaster.

He was organist for religious services held at the family farm in the early years, and continued to be when these services were moved to Mellowe School. His musical talents were also extensively employed at social gatherings for many miles around, and until the local school closed he also played a large part in training children for the Christmas Concert.

He was the first secretary of the Mellowe P.U.A. and held that post until failing health forced his retirement. Mr. Harding will be long remembered by those who knew him for his contributions to the youth of the district and his work in church, Cultural and social activities.

One sister and three brothers predeceased him. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. J. Dougherty of Edmonton and one brother Charles of Sedgewick.

Funeral services were held from the Sedgewick United Church, with interment in the Hardisty Cemetery. Rev. John Flint officiated. Members of Hardisty, Lougheed and Sedgewick Branches of the Canadian Legion were in attendance and performed graveside ceremonies. Also attending were a detachment of Boy Scouts, some of men whom Mr. Harding had trained.

Pallbearers were, Rene Hinkley, Nelson Tweezy, David Barnes, Jas. McClymont, Jr., William Paterson and Angus Grieve. Gordon Kirkham was in charge.

The long list of donations, not complete at this writing, attest to the liking and respect in which the late Frank Harding was held.

Down Memory's Lane

BERRY PICKING

Directly north of our district, possibly 10 or 12 miles, was what was known as "The Neelon Valley." This valley was blest with several lakes as well as an abundance of bush, which is almost always found surrounding most lakes. Neelon Valley, due to an abundance of rainfall each year along with wonderfully fertile soil, never had a complete crop failure, even in the 30's. The nearest to a failure as they termed it, would be an odd year when there would be too much rain, then some of those farmers completed of root-rot. Even then their crops averaged 15 to 20 bushels per acre.

We were well acquainted with several of these farmers, who would get in touch with us every fall, and round berry-picking time (about the middle of July) and invite us to go sort to their place and pick all the berries we wanted. These berries consisted of Saskatoons, Chokecherries and Wild Plums. Some years there were wild raspberries and strawberries; also loads of pincherries. An odd year a frost would take the blossoms out in a sheltered spot and this lessened the berry crop considerably, also it didn't hurt the crops as it came too early in the season. However this seldom happened and we looked forward every year to berry picking time; and of course to the "feast" we would enjoy of these delicious fruit eaten with oodles of rich cream. After the guests and myself were laid down for winter eating. The wild plums were never too plentiful, but what we did get we made into jam, just by splitting each plum, removing the stone then soaking the pulp overnight in cold water and baking pails (the ends removed that bitter taste). This jam was delicious. Seems now yet I can smell that wonderful odor of wild plums.

During the "hungry thirties" when there was no money with which to buy the store fruit or entre sugar, either for that matter, we women got the idea of pinching the saskatoons in sterilized sealers (and I do mean pinch), crushing them down with a big spoon until it's worn juice over-flowed the top, then clamp the lids on, and "cook them for an hour to each lot. By using the wash boiler to process them in we could put so many more sealers in at a time, thus saving fuel and time. And doing them this way sugar was not necessary.

With the big families which were common in those days, especially in our district, we took advantage of being able to get all the free fruit we could pick. I remember so well, our own beautiful loading up the old Model "T" Ford with a boiler, 2 or 3 big milk pails and 2 or 3 four sacks (there generally were 4 pickers, Dad and 3 boys), arriving home by dark and by our standards a meager all full but their tummies as well, of this lovely, tasty wild fruit. We were indeed fortunate in that we could get so much of this fruit free, and were humbly thankful.

With so much of this fruit, one would think we would tire of it, but such was not the case. When our supply of sealers gave out, we women resorted to the well known fashion method of drying the fashion by cutting about a pound of fruit in shoot, tying the corners to the four tops of chairs, covering them with a sheet of cheesecloth, then setting it outside in the sun to dry, tossing them up every so often until they were as dry and hard as pellets. When we were sure they were completely dry, we stored them in flour sacks to be used as currents in our baking by soaking a cup or 2 overnight. When they were swelled back to normal size they tasted great.

Wh ras it that coined the phrase "Necessity is the mother of invention?" But isn't it true?

Mrs Dan Tunney, old timer of Hardisty, visited at the Lee Tennis home last Thursday. With her was her eldest son Victor of Vancouver, youngest daughter Jannie, and two grandchildren. Mr. Tunney will be remembered as a butcher and had a shop in Hardisty for a number of years. They also visited at the Mercer Cree farm which originally was the Dan Tunney homestead. The Dan Tunneys now make their home in Edmonton, having lived there for a number of years.

The final meeting of the season for the Royal Canadian Legion and Auxiliary was held on Thursday in the Hut. It was decided to discontinue the joint meetings and return to the former meeting dates ie first Thursday for the Legion and first Monday for the Auxiliary. Following the business a social was spent. Mr. Don Wilder showed films of the Hardisty Stampede, Alberta Game Farm and others, then music & dancing filled out the evening.

HARDISTY FLAKES

(By Postie)

Here I am once again, slowly meeting out of the stampede daze. Personally I found the actual Stampede festivities after all the mad rush to get the new plant in operational shape. I will assure you people who patronized the show this year that we will have the general store switched down by next year. We had to do so much brushing to make room for the enlarged plant, that we just ran out of time. Thanks for your support and we plan even a better show for next year. Now for a few comments.

I would suggest that the executive consider a different gate admission for the evening performance, ie $1 for adults. When we set up the gate until this year we did not make per visitor for a third set of tickets for the evening, and I think that a rock and a half is too much. The parking set-up would be a general admission to the grounds of 50c at any time, and have the two gates shut off, but that would require a large capital outlay to move Matchers would have to be built, and a board fence erected. Those are all suggestions only. I intend them to be constructive, so I would ask you Hardisty people to mail them over and come to the next stampede meeting with your ideas. Let's not forget the Stampede until next year comes and finds us short of time.

Well, the new, or I should say revised dog by-law is now in effect, and how some of our dog fanciers are howling. They are even sodding the poor canines who are now tethered out. I would advise that I like dogs, so much so that I would never have one in town under the best of conditions. I am certain that your dog does not live a happy life. On the other side of the ledger is the fact that some of you dog fanciers do not give two hoots in hades what your dogs do or where they go. I am well aware that our kids want to come into your yards or buildings, shooting and sprinkling flowers and door posts, you would be moved to comment, yet some f you think it is O. K. that our kids will have to play in our own yards under dirty conditions created by dogs. I had to install a door-closing assist on the P. O. door, mainly to keep dogs from doing their chores in the front vestibule, and sometimes while their owners were being waited on. I know that these comments will not be popular with some of you, but at least I come right out and express my opinions on the matter; and I would ask that before you join in the general howl you take a long & hard look at the other side of the story.

Having had my shot at one topic, I'll sign thirty and leave space for

Hardisty H. and S.

HARDISTY - Aimee Moody was re-elected president of the Hardisty and District Home and School, as the June meeting. Other officers for the 1963-64 term are: Vice, Bob Wood; Miss Hilt; Treas., Charlotte Gobin; Program Conv., Gerry Miller, Rosalie Wood and Frances Bodgrar; Membership, Audry Cibert, Pixi Meaure, Mary Reid; Lunch, Anna Kohlmeir, Bessie Maurer; Press and Publicity, June Crone.

The program for the meeting consisted of the convention reports by the two delegates Aimee Moody and Anna Kohlmeir. The report dealt with the province-wide look of Home and School members and the accomplishments of H. and S. in the past. These are today and worthwhile. Each one present was given copies of four resolutions, giving a very clear example of things done.

The president's address from the convention was also read, and told of the challenging times we now experience. History was described as a race between catastrophe and education. Mrs. Kohlzach's report was on the new Tech School in Edmonton, the courses available and the requirements for and cost of those courses.

Lunch concluded the evening and the 1963-64 year.

Mr and Mrs Gus Qenish & Terry of Vegreville were visiting in town.

Boys and Girls, start planning to attend Vacation Bible School from July 22 to 26. We will be travelling God's Highway from 9 to 3, having exciting stories, learning new choruses, studying Bible verses, making Bible-book projects and having fun together. This school sponsored by the Baptist and United Churches, welcome boys and girls from 3 to 12 years to join us for these days.

Mr and Mrs Wilf Forster & family have been holidaying in B. C. for two weeks. They are now home.

Mr. Nagel of Edmonton has been visiting Fred and family.

Mr and Mrs K. Schryver of Jasper Place were guests of Mrs. C. Brewer.

Grades 6, 7 & 8 and their teacher with the co-operation of the parents, enjoyed a picnic and a visit to the Alberta Game Farm on Monday.

Mrs. McCabe enjoyed a visit with her cousin Mrs. Earl Ferguson of Edmonton on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Charlie Manning and family, Mr and Mrs Dennis Manning all of Dowton Valley were home for the week end.

Mr and Mrs W. Fonder and Janet were visiting in Bentley on Sunday.

We are sure everyone enjoyed the welcome rain, but not the wind. Reports give seven inches of rain for the week. There were a number of branches broken and perennials wind blown and numerous basements with flooding. The streets were rather dangerous to drive on because of the branches falling in.

Mr and Mrs Donald Laws, Mr and Mrs Fred Gallagher, sisters of Mrs G. McCabe, paid a short visit with the latter last week enroute home in Vancouver.

Mrs Stan Nelson has moved to her new home in the East end of town.

KILLAM — The Chapter met on June 20th at home of Mrs. Brodie. Empire and World Affairs leaflet, read by Mrs. McCabe, gave an interesting history of the Queen's Birthday, starting in 1845. May 24 was celebrated as Queen Victoria's birth day. Since her death the name and exact date has changed several times, known variously as Victoria Day, Empire Day, Commonwealth Day, Citizenship Day, but always the date hovers around May 24th.

Reports were given of the Zone Conference held the previous day, and committees appointed to arrange the tea. Semi-annual convention will be held in Banff in October.

The Chapter will not meet again until September 19th. The Library will be open during the holidays at the usual hour. Members are reminded that Decoration Day will be observed as usual on the last Sunday in June.

Cemetery Assn.

KILLAM — The regular meeting of the Killam Cemetery Assn. was held on Friday, June 21st with eight members present. It was explained gates to the dump were kept locked due to abuse, and the key could be obtained by request by those with legitimate business.

Every effort was being made to apprehend offenders dumping refuse along the roadside. Bedding plants purchased for the cemetery were doing well. Donations of $145 had been received this month from 8 organizations. Thank you. Memorial Day is June 30th, the last Sunday of the month. Steps are being taken to repair some graves as they will be seeded to grass and properly cared for.

MAINSTREET AT LOUGHEED

The Cliff Ness and James Mr-Clements families spent last Sunday visiting Al Ostmo's Game Farm.

Mr and Mrs Flanagan, nee Venalda Walmsley, of Edmonton were Lougheed callers last week.

Visiting with Mr and Mrs Nils Haugen is his sister Mrs. Carrie Anderson of Montana.

Word has been received here of the passing on June 20th of Mr. John Sheideker of Comox, B. C. Our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs J. Morrison of Edmonton has returned to her home after spending some time here with her sister Mrs. C. Rowland. We are sorry to not that Mrs. Rowland is again in hospital, this time in Hardisty.

Our congratulations are extended to former Lougheedites, Mr and Mrs J. Cawdwell of Powell River B. C., on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. A congratulatory phone call by Mrs. Cawdwell's sister here, Mrs. E. Russell, found them well and happy, and observing their special day very quietly. The big celebration will come later when the grandchildren will be out of school and all the family get together.

Mrs R. Heron reports to me on the longlivety and good health of her family. Her sister Mrs. Grant of Scotland at the ripe age of 88 is in excellent health and able to do most of her own work.

Lougheed is improving by leaps and bounds these days. The Y.W. Hotel has opened a smart coffee shop and Rod and White Store is acquiring a large addition; and of course the Ness Brew.' new shop is fast taking shape.

Mrs. H. Barton spent several days with family in the city recently.

Mrs J. Morrison of Edmonton was a visitor last Wednesday with Mr and Mrs J. Jablonski.

Mrs. A. Stadhau Sr. and Mrs Pete Serban motored to Chauvin Thurs. to visit Uncle Hans Soothun.

Mrs James Jack is a patient in the Killam Hospital.

Mr and Mrs R. Jarosch and family spent the weekend with Mrs. Jarosch's parents the E. Batchers.

Mr. Wm. Butcher of England arrived on June 22nd to spend several weeks with the Butcher Families.

Mrs G. W. Probst and Mrs Norma Probst were Camrose visitors.

M and Mrs J. Birchill motored to Stettler last week to return David Birchill to his home, and also to take in the Stettler Car Bingo. They are still driving the stone car.

On June 27th Mr and Mrs Percy Burton, accompanied by Mrs Fred Gibbons (Ada Burton) and Mrs H. Nielsen of Winnipeg (Miss Barton) left Edmonton by plane to visit for several weeks in England. Happy holiday friends.

Mr and Mrs A. Knapp and boys spent the week end at Ledue.

Mr and Mrs Gordon Marlow and Sharon and Mikie of Calgary visited family and friends here Sunday.

Mr. Emil Moller of Dunby spent Monday in town renewing acquaintances and visiting his old stamping grounds. Emil is still in hotel work underpins his new location, but misses all his Lougheed friends.

Mr. Hans Soothun is still a patient in St. Mary's Hospital at Camrose. We are pleased to know that he is improving and hope he will be at home again soon.

QUEEN INSPECTS CANADIAN GUARDS. Queen Elizabeth is seen here inspecting Canada's famous Foot Heavy Guard, of Kingston, Ont. The occasion was the opening of the Canadian Art Exhibition at the Commonwealth Institute in Kensington, London. The Fort Henry unit stood as guard of honor. They were also in England to take part in the Royal Tournament.

600,000 ALBERTANS ARE PROTECTED ... ARE YOU?

Nearly half the population—600,000 Albertans—are covered by M.S.I. pre-paid medical care. Why? Because M.S.I. has been developed by Alberta doctors specifically to meet the medical needs of every Albertan. Now, through the co-ordinated efforts of the Government of Alberta, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the C.H.L.A., and M.S.I. a program has been developed which will enable individuals of below average income to obtain M.S.I. coverage. The program, the Alberta Medical Plan, provides for government subsidy to assist those persons who have no taxable income, or whose taxable income is less than $500, to buy medical care insurance.

M.S.I. MONTHLY RATES WITH GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES

	IF NO TAXABLE INCOME			IF UNDER $500 TAXABLE INCOME
GROUP PLAN A (For groups of 2 or more)	M.S.I. Monthly Rate	Government Subsidy	Balance You Pay	M.S.I. Monthly Rate	Government Subsidy	Balance You Pay
One person	3.30	1.60	1.70	3.30	.75	2.45
Family of 2	7.20	3.50	3.70	7.20	1.75	5.45
Family of 3 or more	10.40	6.00	4.40	10.40	3.00	7.40
INDIVIDUAL PLAN C (For individuals)	M.S.I. Monthly Rate	Government Subsidy	Balance You Pay	M.S.I. Monthly Rate	Government Subsidy	Balance You Pay
One Person	4.80	1.50	3.00	4.80	.75	3.75
Family of 2	9.50	3.50	6.00	9.50	1.75	7.75
Family of 3 or more	12.00	6.00	6.00	12.00	3.00	9.00

ALL INDIVIDUAL PLAN C APPLICATIONS RECEIVED UP TO SEPT. 30, 1963 WILL GIVE AN EFFECTIVE DATE FOR COVERAGE OF OCT. 1, 1963. SUBSEQUENT APPLICATIONS MAY BE SUBJECT TO AN APPROPRIATE 90 DAY DELAYED EFFECTIVE DATE.

M.S.I. PAYS FOR:

M.S.I. covers in full and all subsequent home, office and hospital calls; consultant, specialist, anaesthetist and assisting surgeon fees for surgical procedures, including pre- and post-operative care; diagnosis of and treatment for ALL diseases and injuries; maternity benefits (after nine months); psychiatric treatment (1 year maximum period for individual plan members); polio, arthritis, cancer, when not covered by public authorities; X-ray and laboratory services.

NEW BENEFITS

- Elimination of waiting periods for elective procedures
- Annual physical examinations
- No limit on X-ray and laboratory services
- Waiver of premium due to disability (effective in group and non-group plans)

M.S.I. FEATURES

M.S.I. is a non-profit organization. There is no age limit. No medical examination required. No exclusions for chronic or pre-existing ailments. All dependents receive equal coverage. There is no red tape. No forms to complete when receiving medical care. Free choice of doctor. M.S.I. coverage is transferable to other medical plans in Canada and parts of the United States without lapse of coverage.

Kinettes Were Busy During 1962 - 63

(By Kinette)

As we come to the close of our "Kinette Year," we look back on a term of many activities. One of our first projects was to serve at the Co-O-Rama held at the Sedgewick Motors and Electric in mid-October. This was the month we all visited the Flagstaff Lodge.

In November we sponsored a Calgary Power Cooking School. This was followed by another busy month as we prepared the menus and served at the Kinsmen Ball in December. Also in early fall we served refreshments at the Kinsmen Slave Auction.

The beginning of the new year saw us with many new ideas which didn't seem to get started due to illness and bad weather, until March, when we held a curling party. We also collected clothing and sent it to the Mental Hospital at Ponoka.

April proved a busy month as we prepared for another Kinsmen dance, and at the same time were busy with a quilt raffle.

In May the girls all took to the sewing machines as we decided to make our club vests, which we wore to our Rummage Sale on June 12th. The articles of clothing not sold were sent to the Salvation Army.

The year drew to a close with a steak fry at Tindall's, at which the Kinettes presented the Kinsmen with a $200 cheque to be used to-ards improving our community.

Sedgewick W. I.

SEDGEWICK The president Mrs. H. Beamish presided at the June meeting of the Sedgewick W. I. Mrs. Cooper reported that, with memorials, the Cancer caravan had realized the sum of over $700. Mrs Blakeney said she had received thanks from the Red Cross for the parcel of sewing sent by members. Mrs. Stutz gave a report on the constituency conference. Sedgewick had gained second place in both the handicraft and baking contests.

Mrs. Edwards is to convene the caravan for the CNIB to be held during October. The W. I. representative for the committee to make arrangements for July 1st, are Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Hopkin

Mrs. Hopkin gave an interesting report on the 8-day provincial conference in Edmonton. Mrs. Edwards, badge convener, gave an interesting talk on the Nurse's Refresher course she had attended at the University of Idaho.

The Government of Alberta announces THE ALBERTA MEDICAL PLAN

WHAT IS THE ALBERTA MEDICAL PLAN?
The Alberta Medical Plan is a measure to provide a pre-payment medical plan covering the costs of medical, surgical and obstetrical services, for all residents of Alberta, regardless of health, age, or occupation. The Alberta Medical Plan provides financial contributions toward premium payments for those in defined income levels.

HOW IS IT OPERATED?
Sponsored by the Government of Alberta and endorsed by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, this coverage is made available through the approved insurance companies in Alberta, members of the Canadian Health Insurance Association and Medical Services (Alberta) Incorporated.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?
Benefits under the Alberta Medical Plan provide for the payment of medical, surgical and obstetrical services (when contracted) occurring subsequent to date of coverage; of any physician when required for preventive, diagnostic or therapeutic treatment and any specialist and consultant services as defined under regulations; anaesthetic services; and necessary laboratory services and diagnostic aids including X-ray when ordered and or provided by a medical practitioner.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?
This pre-payment plan is available in three categories on an individual basis—one person two persons
family of three or more persons
As well, it is available on a group basis through your employer.

IS THE PREMIUM FIXED?
The Alberta government has fixed a maximum premium for all insurance companies and below the maximum, premium levels may vary with the carriers of your choice, thus maintaining the regulation of the market place and the force of competition to the benefit of the insured.

IS THE PLAN LIMITED IN COVERAGE?
Enrollees under the Alberta Medical Plan are at liberty to purchase the basic benefits available under the plan with such additional benefits as they may choose in consultation with their insurance company. However, the premium charged for the standard coverage may not exceed the maximum rate established under the Alberta Medical Plan. Any extra premium for additional benefits must be the responsibility of the insured

WHO IS ELIGIBLE FOR PREMIUM SUBSIDY?
The Alberta Government will pay a portion of the premium for those residents of Alberta in the defined income levels. A subsidy recipient must be a person who has resided in Alberta for 12 months of the preceding 24 months.

IF
Alberta residents whose taxable income is below the taxable level according to federal government tax regulations, will benefit from provincial government contribution toward premium costs on the following basis—one person $10.00 a year
two persons $42.00 a year
family of three or more $72.00 a year

In most cases those already covered under a group plan will benefit by the same contributions from the provincial government.

IS
Alberta residents whose taxable income is below $500 according to federal government tax regulations, will benefit from provincial government contribution toward premium costs on the following basis—
one person $9.00 a year
two persons $21.00 a year
family of three or more $36.00 a year

In most cases those already covered under a group plan will benefit by the same contributions from the provincial government.

WHEN IS THE PLAN EFFECTIVE?
The starting date for benefits under the Alberta Medical Plan will be October 1st, 1963.
Enrolment under the Alberta Medical Plan commences July 1st, 1963.

All persons who enrol prior to October 1st, 1963, will be eligible for benefits commencing October 1st. Enrolments after this date will become insured from the first day of the fourth month after making application. No premium will be charged for this waiting period.

HOW DO I ENROLL?
Those applying for noncubsidized enrolment under the Alberta Medical Plan may enrol directly with the insurance company of their choice. Subsidized enrollees may complete both the insurance company of their choice a government contribution application form which is available through the insurance company. A list of health insurance firms is included on the Alberta government information folder available at Alberta government offices, any health insurance office, or the office of your physician.

WHAT ADDITIONAL BENEFITS DOES THE ALBERTA MEDICAL PLAN OFFER?
1. Waiver of Premium
If a person, single or the head of a family, covered continuously under the Alberta Medical Plan for at least two years becomes totally disabled prior to age 65 as the result of an accident, injury or disease so as to be prevented from engaging in any gainful occupation, he will not be required to pay his monthly premium for a period of up to six months, starting the third month after his disability.
2. Health Check-up
After a contract holder has been covered by the Alberta Medical Plan for a continuous period of two years, he and his dependents shall be entitled annually to a routine examination to ensure their continuing good health.
3. Non-Cancellability of Coverage except for gross misuse, or non-payment of premium.

ENROLLMENT PERIOD
In cases where a covered person obtains services as provided under the Alberta Medical Plan from a physician outside the Province of Alberta, the company carrying his insurance will pay the physician the same fee as if such services had been provided in Alberta or the fee charged by the physician, whichever is the lesser. The insured person will be responsible for any additional fees the attending physician may charge

ARE THERE EXCLUSIONS TO THE PLAN?
All services not rendered by, or under the supervision or direction of, a physician; standard laboratory services and diagnostic aids, including X-rays while the covered person is an in-patient in an approved hospital; preventive procedures, and treatment of diseases and conditions of a chronic nature; services and supplies which could receive the same benefits without cost, or at nominal charge by public authorities, excepting the treatment of mental disease where the said treatment is provided by a physician in the course of his private practice; any condition which is the responsibility of the Workmen's Compensation Board, similar services or losses other than health; treatment for conditions or injuries resulting from actively engaging in war or riots; drugs, medicines and appliances, the examination of eyes for the fitting of eyeglasses; eyeglasses; dental care and X-ray for dental purposes; physiotherapy and actinotherapy; hospitalization; nursing services; ambulance service; mileage or time involved by a medical practitioner in travelling, all examinations by a physician as may be required for the use of a third party. Where a covered person makes claim under the contract, and at the time the claim arises has in force any other form of medical services insurance or coverage, the liability of the approved carrier shall in no event exceed the difference between the amount of the claim and the amount payable under the other medical services insurance or coverage.

ARE THERE ANY SPECIAL REQUIREMENTS?
The head of a family who receives government contribution under the Alberta Medical Plan must cover himself and family. Any member of the family, under the age of 19 years shall be enrolled upon attaining the age of 19 years, to enroll as a covered person. Any waiting period shall be calculated from the effective date of the original family contract, provided application is made and the appropriate subscription is paid within 30 days of attaining the age of 19 years.

Farm Fire Safety Essay Winners

In the Killam School Division the best essay from grades 7 and 8 was written by David Galitsky of Sedgewick School. In grades 5 and 6 the winner was Margaret Barden of the Lougheed School.

David is a pupil of Mrs. Martin Rongvaerd of Sedgewick Public.

The prize in each case is a distinctive pin as a personal memento for the author of the Winning Essay & a hand lettered certificate mounted on a birchwood plaque for the school room.

R. D. Jorgenson, M.L.A., chairman of the newly-reactivated of the Alberta Safety Council says that more pupils wrote essays this year than in the 12 years this contest has been held. Fifty-three school divisions or counties entered, with 2120 schools represented and 5,000 pupils in grades 5, 6, 7 and 8. This includes the Indian Schools and students of the Correspondence School Branch.

In addition to the school division prizes, first prizes of $40 are given to the pupils from grades 5, 6, 7, 8 who, in the opinion of the judges have written the best essays for their grade in the whole province.

- Corn Silage

A Truly One-Man Harvesting Machine

A BETTER WAY TO MAKE HAY . . . When we see a barn full of high quality hay we should credit the owner for his work and planning to make it so. This man we call "lucky".

It wasn't "luck" that made him fertilize his fields in the fall or "luck" that he chose the right stage of growth to cut it. It wasn't just plain luck that caused him to rake and dry and haul it to the barn at the proper time. Good Management is what we call it; there is no other way to describe it.

Neither was it just "luck" that 200 Alberta farmers purchased a new Nance-McKee Grassland Harvester this year. They are the farmers who decided to change to a new system because they wanted to be independent of outside help. They wanted a machine that would give them economy, reliability, and versatility and that is exactly what they received.

Come in and see us about this amazing new machine; we have more information for you!

Alberta Wheat Pool Announcement

Herb Storvik

Lloyd O. Sand

The Alberta Wheat Pool has announced the appointment of Lloyd O. Sand as new Pool agent at Killam. He succeeds Herb Storvik, who has been transferred to Camrose.

Mr. Sands has been with the Pool for the past 12 years. He comes from Hines Creek, where he has operated the Pool elevator since 1956. A native of Elk Point, he has also operated elevators at Codner and Stobart.

He is a veteran of the RCAF and participated in the Burma campaign.

Mr. and Mrs. Sand and their two children have already taken up residence in Killam.

Mr. Storvik wishes to thank farmers of the Killam district for the support he has received, and expresses the hope that continued support will be given the local Pool elevator and Mr. Sand.

Cards Of Thanks

I wish to express my deepest appreciation to all those who visited me, sent cards, letters and gifts and for all other kindnesses shown me during my illness. A special thanks to Dr. Perversoff, Sisters and staff of Hardisty Hospital. — Mrs. T. Kenny, Lougheed. 12 1 p

The Hazelwood Good Deed Club ladies would like to say a special thank you to everyone who helped us set at our Stampede Meal Booth. The pies, coffee and salads donated were a very big help in making it a success and lessening our load at that late date. Also thank you to everyone who attended our tea, baking and serving sale. The apron draw was won by Mrs. Claire Metz. We will look forward to seeing you next year. 12 1 p

I would like to express my thanks to all my neighbors and friends who so kindly helped me with the spring work, especially Bob Jackman, Geo. Jackson and Walter Price, Jim Davidson, Harry Swainson and James Clark who generously gave of time and help at calving time and seeding time. — Mr & Mrs. Jack Butcher. p

Our sincere and grateful thanks to the many friends and relatives for the floral tributes, remembrances, kind words and expressions of sympathy on the loss of our dear husband and father, Martin Jacobs. Special thanks to Dr. Mayerle, Nurses and Sisters of the Killam Hospital, Rev. McIlveen, pallbearers, IOOF Lodge No. 74 and Sons and all others who helped in any other way. — Mrs. M. Jacobs & Family. p

VALVE TURNED AT BONANZA DAY

Waterworks System Operating

KILLAM — After a delay caused by rains, the Killam Annual Bonanza Day was held July 13th, and one of the highlights of the affair was the official turning-on of the brand new Killam Public Waterworks The honor of performing the duty of turning on the water valve was given to Ex-Mayor H. R. Lackey, with the present Mayor of Killam, Gordon Hilker an interested onlooker, besides other civic officials, etc. (see accompanying picture).

The idea of installing a public water system in Killam was first conceived in the fall of 1961, and in the spring of 1962 a survey for the system was completed. Contracts were let that year to Commerce Construction Ltd. for the installation of the water distribution system, and to Birt Construction for building the reservoir and pump house. Both the projects were supervised by Associated Engineers Ltd.

The water supply is chlorinated, and has a Calgon injector which prevents iron out of the water, thus the supply on reaching the mains is close to purity.

The water treatment plant and the necessary equipment was installed at a cost of $35,262, with the entire project over the Village coming to approximately $150,000.00.

Equipped with well pumps with a capacity of 80 to 70 gallons a minute, the village system is fed into the mains from a huge storage tank beneath the modern pump house in the south end of the townsite. The storage tank has a capacity of 50,000 gallons, filled by two highlift pumps at 80 gallons per minute against a head of 75 p.s.i. and a fire pump at 300 gallons per minute against a head of 85 psi.

Altogether the Village hoosts of 5,200 feet of 6-inch water mains and 14,004 feet of 8-inch mains, plus 20 fire hydrants situated at strategic points throughout the Village. There are approximately 220 services.

Civic officials are justly proud of the new enterprise which adds greatly to the facilities of the Village.

Annual Bonanza Day Successfully Concluded

KILLAM — Having been rained out on its original date, and with the weather man not being able to make up his mind, the citizens of Killam had their collective hands crossed on July 12th, the date of the second 1963 attempt to get the show on the road. However the fates were unfounded and fortune as well as the weatherman smiled down on the festivities, and demanding exactness in the handling of a car.

The Dick Damron Orchestra proved popular with lovers of western-style music. Playing from a platform on main street the musicians soon had the "young fry" twisting all over the place.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION

ROSYTH — On Sunday, June 23rd the Rosyth Hall was the scene of a double celebration, when Mr. & Mrs. William Kobiznech marked their 50th wedding anniversary while their daughter Helen and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ehly of Hazelton, B. C. observed their 25th anniversary.

The hall was beautifully decorated in gold and white, the head table being set with a lace cloth. Two lovely anniversary cakes were flanked by gold and white candles, while a large bouquet of yellow mums added to the effect. Presiding at the coffee pots during the open house were Mrs. Andrew Klusquet and Mrs. Marie Fladda.

Still active and interested in community affairs at the age of 89, Mr. Kobiznech came to the district in 1904 and ever since his marriage in 1913 he and his wife Marie have formed near HARMONY. Four sons and three daughters were born to them. Nels, who passed away some years ago, Heinie, Bernard and Robert; Margaret (Mrs. E. Quintal), Ann (Mrs. Buehler) and Helen (Mrs. Ehly). There are ten grand children and eight great grandchildren.

Kooking the Kobiznech guest book was their granddaughter Vertane (Mrs. Willy Olsen of Nelson B.C.), while Joanne Buehler of Edmonton kept the guest book for the aunt & uncle. Mr. Francis Blue acted as M. C. for a short program of music and songs. On behalf of the Rosyth F. U. A., Benny Fladda presented a briefcase to Mr. Kobiznech, who has been secretary of the organization since its start. The FWUA. represented by Mrs. F. Blue, presented Mrs. Kobiznech with an engraved coffee spoon. Other gifts for both the couples were made by the families and the community. Mr. Blue read congratulatory messages from Mr. Cliff Smallwood of Ottawa and Lt. Gov. Percy Page and the Premier of Alberta, Mr. Manning. (Photo by Wilson Studios).

Boag Store Sold To Camrose Buyer

HARDISTY — One of Hardisty's earlier businesses has changed hands, with the purchase by Mr. Gillespie of Camrose, of the Boag General Store.

Mr. and Mrs. Boag took over the store about 40 years ago, and following her husband's death Mrs. Boag carried on the business. A recent fall which injured her ankle made it impossible for her to carry on. We welcome Mr and Mrs. Gillespie as new members of the business community.

Shower Held For Miss Lorna Saville

HARDISTY — A shower held in the United Church basement recently honored Miss Lorna Saville a former Hardisty resident. Present as well as her Hardisty friends were a number of relatives and friends from Irma.

Mrs. Edworthy, as M. C. held a few guessing games, after which the bride-to-be, assisted by her mother, cousin and Miss Gina Drager, opened the many lovely gifts. She expressed her thanks and invited all to visit her when possible. Lunch put a fitting end to the evening.

OBITUARY

William Halsall

Mr. Halsall was born in Liverpool, England, July 25th, 1871. He started working in a Liverpool steamship office at the age of 14 and later decided to make a better living in Canada for his future bride, Margaret Smith, on Christmas Day, 1903, he sailed for this country. After working a few months on a farm in Elkhorn, Manitoba, and surveying for the C. P. R. in Cranbrook B. C., he decided to get a homestead in Alberta (then known as Youngstown). In the spring of 1906 Miss Smith came out from England and they were married in the Wetaskiwin Anglican Church on June 30th of that year & drove by horse and buggy to their new home in Killam. She predeceased him in 1950.

In 1914 Mr. Halsall was asked to form a Co-operative Assn., which became the Killam District Co-operative Store, with himself as manager for the next 25 years. This was one of the original Co-op stores in Alberta.

Over the years he became prominent in Co-operative work and gave lectures at the Schools of Agriculture. For many years he was secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada in Alberta. In 1933 he took on the management of the Alberta Co-operative Wholesale, as well as the Killam store for a few years.

He was one of the original directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool whose business he followed with keen interest up to his death.

Mr. Halsall had been plagued with poor health from early youth and was finally forced to retire in 1939 when he turned his homestead into a chicken ranch for the next 14 years. For over 35 years he had been warden and sec.-treas. of St. George's Anglican Church, Killam, which he helped build in early years.

The burial service at St. George's was taken by the Rev. Chas. Bishop of Christ Church, Edmonton, and Captain Bloom of Sedgewick. Interment was in Killam Cemetery, with Poe's Funeral Directors in charge.

July 1st Attendance Biggest Since 1959

SEDGEWICK Gate receipts at the grounds and general all-around participation in the 1963 edition of the Sedgewick July 1st Sports Day, was the best and biggest since 1950, according to figures released by the secretary of the committee. The 1962 sports was rained out, but this year the day dawned clear and remained fine till during the day.

The parade in the morning was of high standard, and was led by the Kinsmen float with the K-40 Darter shop Quartet. Prizes were awarded as follows: Commercial, Sedgewick Co-op Store; Clubs, Legion Auxiliary, Hardisty Royal Purple, Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick. Comic, The Flintstones; Best Car, Greg Richardson; Bicycles, Julie Bergum and Lee Eastly; Horses, Meryna Light Horse Assn.; Special, Terry Olsen.

At the grounds things got under way at 1.00 p.m. with a baseball and softball tournament, and all the rest of the entertainment that goes to make up a successful day. In the 1st game of baseball Killam eliminated Sedgewick by a score of 7 to 6. Gordon Backen was the losing pitcher & Sammy Senoski the winning hurler. The game was close, with Killam scoring the winner in the bottom of the final inning. Ken Grant bringing in the winning run with a towering fly to right field.

Hardisty fought hard before bowing out to Lougheed in the second encounter 3-2. Fossen was the winner while Maxsys was credited with the loss. The old pro Lars Soelhus handled the hit for the winner.

In the final game the Killam Braves, weary from a tourney the day before got slaughtered by Lougheed's Wildcats to the tune of 18-5. Killam fought hard in the early stages and forced Lougheed to use up 3 pitchers to silence the threat. The hitting of Dave Boulter featured this game, he twice hitting for homers.

For those who preferred something besides ball, there were horse races, a stage show and a fine exhibition of horsemanship by the Meryna Light Horse Assn., besides bingo, and games of skill, refreshment and soft drink stands, and display of up-to-date machinery.

While the final figures are not as yet available, we are informed that profits were sufficient to more than pay off the $800 debt on new chairs for the Community Hall. The committee is pleased with the co-operation of all concerned and expressed satisfaction with the results.

The big dance at night catered to the usual packed house.

DRAWING UP A BUDGET CAN BE TICKLISH!

Apparently time and economic conditions make little difference to human attitudes in similar situations. The trouble and distress experienced by the Hon. Mr. Gordon in presenting his 1963 federal budget, was, in some respects quite similar to that encountered by another finance minister some 66 years ago. Recently I had the pleasure of looking over a copy of the Hamilton Spectator dated 1897, in which considerable space was given to the federal budget which had just been presented to Parliament. The then Minister of Finance, Mr. Fielding, was quite apologetic of the fact that he found himself forced by existing conditions, to budget for a deficit of "almost a million dollars." In fact this disturbed him to the point where he was late in arriving at the House. The Spectator said that on arriving he was pale and drawn and somewhat nervous, from weeks of high pressure. The opposition gave him a hard time, particularly on his proposed Preferential Duty in favor of countries admitting Canadian goods on favored terms. In his speech Mr. Fielding listed the changes in the economy made necessary by the fact that expenditures had overtaken receipts, and there followed a long list of items where taxes would be increased to produce necessary revenue. As is general, the Liberal government applauded the budget and the Conservative opposition loudly shouted that the people wouldn't stand for it, and economic ruin would be the result.

All this being some years before my day, I have no way of knowing what the results were, but apparently Canada survived.

Today we find somewhat the same situation. For some years we have been living "over our heads," continually demanding that we spend more than was available. Anyone with even a smattering of knowledge in the economic field knows this simply cannot go on forever. Sooner or later the dancer has to pay the fiddler. Benefits are fine, in their place, but governments should not do for people what they can do for themselves. Too much contravention of this fact nullifies the possibility of balancing books. The plain situation is that Canada has reached the stage where assistance must be paid for by increases in taxes. Where are they to come from? Mr. Gordon tried the manufacturing and building industries and was forced to retreat due to pressure, a lot of it exaggerated. Where next? Liquor? Tobacco?? Gasoline? Air Travel, Amusement? Any of these will bring a howl of protest from one or another section of the populace. It comes down to the fact that we must pay more to receive more. But most of us want the other fellow to do the paying. Our slogan is, tax my neighbor and give me the benefits.

Whatever the outcome of past, present and future budgets may be, it is certain that Finance Ministers are always in trouble with some people. Whatever the outcome of the 1963 budget, it is certain that its results will not be as disastrous as some would have us believe. At least we have a budget, the first for some time.

30 YEARS AGO

From The Press Of July 30, 1933

A large number of people, estimated at 1,500, attended the Old Timers Reunion and Barbecue at Hardisty Lake on Wednesday. There was not enough buffalo meat to go around, although eleven quarters were provided.

"The Douglas System of Economics" was thoroughly explained by Mr. Wm. Aberhart of Calgary at a public meeting held in the Jubilee Theatre at Killam on Monday evening, July 10th.

The ban has been lifted on the 18 and under who were forbidden to attend public dances. The regulations regarding hours, however, remain in effect. Late dancing on Friday night is not forbidden.

20 YEARS AGO

From The Press Of July 30, 1943

The first 50 Lb. sack of powdered buttermilk from the new plant at the Sedgewick Creamery, was run through on July 13th, and is said to be the only plant in this section of Alberta.

The total of boys and girls from Lougheed and district to join the armed forces is 154. Out of these 56 are overseas and 7 are officers.

Rev. J. D. Woollatt and 6 Strome Trail Ranger boys are spending a week at Bar Harbor Camp on the Buffalo Lake.

10 YEARS AGO

From The Press Of June 25, 1953

The Strome Young People held their annual meeting on Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected: Pres., Peter Spady; Vice, Hilaf Ilsley; Sec., Bill Korth; Treas., Al Eckstrand.

Thursday and Friday's donated labor was the end of the old Killam United Church, as it is now torn down. The new one will be erected soon.

Paul Sisa is the Wheat Pool delegate to the Farm Young People University week July 5 to 17.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

GHOSTS

OTTAWA— Are the ghosts of 1965 back in the House of Commons to haunt a Liberal Government and its implementation of decisions?

In top place on that programme has been the Government's decision to create a Department of Industry under the new Minister of Defence Production, the Hon. C. M. Drury.

Mr. Drury can be classed with the brain trust of the Pearson Government. He was once one of the young set Deputy Ministers in the Government service and in the Department of National Defence. Long before that he had been the youngest brigadier in the Canadian Army in World War Two.

This is the target toward which the former Prime Minister, John Diefenbaker has pointed his long finger in recent days charging that he is being used to abolish a power of an economic czar or, in other words, the C. D. Howe of 1963.

Just eight years ago the same charges were levelled at Mr. Howe when he sat behind his newspaper, making sure everyone knew he was not listening and couldn't care less. It was levelled by Mr. Diefenbaker's predecessor as chief-tan of the Conservative Party, Hon. George Drew who was leading a determined filibuster to block extension of the Defence Production Act of 1951.

The Act was born in the Korean days of panic, when many enemy agents were to register and control industrial production. Even the Tories admitted that those powers had been necessary to get the job of defence production under way. They even admitted that they might be necessary for a year or so longer. What they would not stand for was their incorporation in a permanent statute. Through an exhausting July heat wave they talked to prevent passage of the bill and it was before the comforts of air conditioning were installed in the House of Commons chamber. They even talked through a day at 96 degrees in the shade when someone turned on the steam heat in the Parliament buildings. There are Tories still who remember that day and will swear that it was done deliberately by an exasperated Government.

Then Mr. Howe himself solved the whole thing. In the middle of it all he went off fishing. By the time he came back Prime Minister St. Laurent had paid more than half way to meet Conservatives' demands. Mr. Howe's wings had been clipped.

The Defence Production Act today gives only the customary administrative powers to the present Minister who incidentally, is ill-fitted for the role of dictator. But Mr. Diefenbaker gave their retention to meet in the new Department of Industry. If the bill now before the House becomes law, he foresees it will mean the abolition of Parliament.

That again is an echo of 1956 & something about which Canadians of the time became more and more disturbed until they finally turfed out the St. Laurent regime.

After six years of Diefenbaker rule they reversed their stand. Mr. Pearson promised decision and action, 60 days of it, and the Canadian voter, tired of years of indecision, gave him a mandate. But, With all its virtues, Parliament is a ponderous and slow process of getting things done.

Mr. Howe was far too impatient to wait and a Country that had only just emerged from wartime control and regulation was ready enough for a while to go along with him. As a result Mr. Howe got a great many things done, most of them things that needed doing, before the processes of democracy finally caught up with him and the Government of which he was a member.

But whether Mr. Drury fits the role of a C. D. Howe or whether he is being given anything comparable in the way of powers, it is increasingly plain that he must play that role if the new Department of Industry is to be more than a fifth wheel to the coach.

He is being given power in the legislation to "market" industry with special measures but there are other duties and responsibilities that can't be written into a bill.

There are times when Mr. Drury will not be assisting industries so much as holding them and sometimes pushing them.

A case in point is the recent meeting with the Canadian automotive industry mentioned by Finance Walter Gordon in the course of his budget speech. Mr. Drury in his future role of Minister of Industry was present. At that meeting the heads of the Canadian industry were told in no uncertain terms that they were responsible for a balance of payments deficit with the United States each year of between $400 million and $500 million. How they were going to narrow that deficit was their own business but narrow it they must.

With these words they were sent away to tackle the problem and report with proposals. When those proposals are made Mr. Drury and Mr. Gordon will decide what assistance, if any, will be given to this particular segment of Canadian manufacturing.

Dwight Smith-Gander of Strome, and Patricia Hench of Hoidier were the Regional Winners of the Public Speaking Competition between Camrose, Sedgewick, Stettler and Coronation districts. They will be going to Edmonton to compete with other regional 4-H Public Speaking winners on July 17th. We wish them luck.

FALL PASTURE!

How is the fall pasture on your farm each year? Could you use a little extra? Now is the time to think about supplementing it with some fall rye pasture. Fall Rye seeded in early August will give you some fall pasture but some early spring pasture next year. It is worth considering the place of Fall Rye on you farm now.

CANADA THISTLE DEFIES FARMER!

Scientists seeking clues to its astonishing prolificity have studied the Canada Thistle from the seedling stage in a growth chamber at the federal experimental farm at Scott, Saskatchewan.

After six weeks the plant had developed 10 leaves and 20-inch roots and on the latter buds appeared from which daughter plants sprout. A week later these sprouts had a nine-inch root system of their own. At 14 weeks the original seedlings had matured their own seeds, grown a main root about four feet long and lateral roots with a combined length of 17 feet. The thistle can be prevented from seeding on pasture, summer-fallow and bred cropland. But the plant's extensive root system prevents it from complete eradication even by drastic cultural methods, and from chemical treatments short of complete soil sterilization.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Were you, gentle reader, a youngster 20 years ago? Or 30? Or even more? If you were, you must occasionally look with bewilderment, awe, and sometimes horror, as I do, at the difference between summer holidays for kids, then and now.

Just how it has happened, I don't know. But in those two or three decades, kids have lost the ability to amuse themselves. Even the little ones come 'n whining, "Mom, what'll I do- There's nothing to do, Mom. Can I have a dime, Mom?"

As for the big kids, their boredom is colossal, crushing. It makes you feel like ordering up the Bloomer deserve, or at least putting in a desperate call for Paul Anka.

Sometimes I think that perhaps those of us who grew up during the depression got had a far better childhood, all things considered, than the current decade.

How simple it was for our mothers, comparatively! In summer, we were out at the crack of dawn, or soon after, and they saw us only twice again during the day, for a brief and hurried gulping of food.

In those days, only the rich played golf and tennis, only the rich had summer cottages and boats. And rich kids were scarce. Water skis had not been invented. The transistor radio was, blessedly, far in the future. There was no money for summer camps for the children, or motor trips to the east or west. There were no drive-in theatres. Ice cream cones were a nickel and seldom. Only fathers drove cars.

What in the world, then did we do with ourselves? You remember. At least, you old boys remember. I'm a little hazy about what the girls did.

When they were 13 or under, they did everything we did. Well, practically. They were squaws when we played cowboys and Indians. They were beautiful Spanish princesses when we played pirates. They were steel pigeons and gun molls and corpses when we played cops and robbers. They were extra outfielders and waterboys when we played ball. In short, they knew their place and enjoyed every minute of it.

In the soft, throbbing dusk of a late summer evening, we played Run Sheep Run. It was quite an experience, I can tell you, to dash away through the warm night, hurl yourself into hiding behind a log, & find, already screeching up there, some hard puffing girl for whom you entertained a secret and overpowering passion.

Nothing happened, but between the excitement of the chase, and the proximity of this energetic kid who was just as apt to kiss you as not, it was fairly terrifying.

Then, and during all our stripping years, we swam. Hour upon hour upon hour during the hot of the day, until our lips were blue and our hands began to wivel up. Then it was time to drag home for supper, and eat about eight pounds of new potatoes and fried bologna and fresh homemade bread and applesauce and all the other good things women have stopped making.

When we were kids, my mother used to prepare a picnic almost each day in summer. When Dad got home from work, we would all pile in the car and head for a nearby lake, river or stream — any kind of water. There were lots of enchanting places, none of them frowning, "NO TRESPASSING," within five or six miles.

When we arrived, we'd pile out & run in all directions, to wade, swim, explore, cut our feet and fall out of trees. Dad would build a fire and put the old ten-pail on to boil. Then he would sit on a log and gaze with placid disdain at nature, while my mother prepared the food, went for a walk, waded in the water with her skirts pulled up, and explained to Dad what a hard day she'd had.

My father didn't have to play ball with us, or show us how to cast, or talk to us about our problems, or have interesting chats with us about the flora and the fauna and the rocks, and the history of the place we were at. He just sat there and relaxed. Hell, he was our FATHER. He didn't want to be our buddy, and we didn't want him to be.

As we boys grew older, we played baseball. Practice morning and afternoon and evening, and a game twice a week. There was the delight of driving to another town, and feeling galloot as Hermie at the bridge, as you braved the catcalls of the local fans.

There was the epitome of disaster: fanning on a thing strike, with three on base, home team one run down, last of the ninth, with your girl watching. And, rarely, there was the heavy delight of hitting a sharp single, and stealing second, with your girl watching. There was the added poignancy of knowing that she didn't know she was your girl.

We didn't have the modern teenagers' dream lying on a beach with a doll, transistor radio, a hot-dog joint within a hundred yards, money in your pocket, and a convertible parked nearby. Sad, by golly, we weren't bored.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

Situated about five miles East of our place, used to be a little sod shanty built on a slight rise. This was replaced later by a lovely big frame house, which still stands. In the real early days bands of Indians had the habit of passing quite close to this shanty on their way to a place called "Emerson," where they usually made winter camp.

The young people, with their two youngsters (a boy 3 and a wee girl 2 years) lived in their sod shanty, when the following incident occurred: They were quite used to seeing sometimes as many as 15 or 20 Indians at a time, coming towards the shanty on their way Eastward. At first, naturally, Mrs. D. was quite nervous when she saw a tribe coming toward their place, but as time went on, and none of them even stopped, she finally settled down to the daily routine of helping to make a home in the wilderness for her family.

However, her husband, being a school teacher, was away from home from early Monday mornings to late Friday nights, using a bicycle for transportation. He had warned her, time and again, to put some of his garments out on the clothes line, whenever she saw Indians coming. The idea was to show the Indians that there was a man about the place whose limp would not be to believe. Mrs. D. had been busy this particular day making soft soap in a large black kettle out behind the house. She had not noticed this band of Indians coming until they were very close to the shanty she didn't have time to bring anything on the line. She had previously used the soap pail into a box, and taking the empty kettle and the two youngsters into the house, she shut the door, then turning, saw the swarthy face of an Indian looking through the only window, his face cupped by his two hands, peering into the room. Mrs. D. grabbed the two tots, pushed them into a corner and turned the big black soap kettle over them, warning them not to make a move. Then she opened the door. There stood five big nearly naked Indians. You can imagine, or can you, how she felt? She signed to them, asking them what they wanted. They likewise made her understand that they wanted directions to Emerson. Mrs. D. sensed that they wanted her to go away from the door so they could rush in and take everything eatable they could find. But being sure to humor them, she said, "Ask my man in here." Mr. D. was 6 miles away at his school, but she risked the bluff; and through all sorts of signs and broken English, she made them understand her man was the only one who knew the way to Emerson. They knew the right trail too, but figured what if Mrs. D. could be induced to leave the shanty to point it out to one of them, the others would in all probability raid the house, leaving her and two youngsters with nothing to eat (and Mr. D. would not be home for 3 days).

Needless to say, she kept some of her husband's clothing on the line every day thereafter.

M.S.I. OFFERS MORE

M.S.I. pre-paid medical care provides the fullest coverage available in Alberta. The reason why many half the population—800,000 Albertans—are M.S.I. members.

Now, with the help of government subsidy where needed, most Albertans, regardless of income, can afford the benefits of M.S.I. coverage—and few can afford to be without such coverage.

Pensioners do not receive a premium exemption. There are no exclusions for chronic or pre-existing ailments. There is no age limit. There is no red tape. No forms to complete. Free choice of doctor. All dependents receive equal coverage. M.S.I. is the only one of the major medical plans in Canada and parts of the United States without lapse of coverage. Developed for Albertans by Alberta doctors, M.S.I. is a democratic, non-profit organization.

If you have no taxable income, or your taxable income is less than $500 you are eligible for financial assistance under the Alberta Medical Plan.

ALL INDIVIDUAL PLAN C APPLICATIONS RECEIVED UP TO THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1963 INCLUSIVE, BEFORE 5 P.M. COVERAGE OF CITY 3, 1963. SUBSEQUENT APPLICATIONS WILL BE SUBJECT TO AN ADMINISTRATIVE DAY DELAYED EFFECTIVE DATE.

M.S.I. PAYS FOR:

- First and all subsequent home, office and hospital calls
- Consultant, consultational, specialist and assisting doctors' services
- Surgical procedures, including pre- and post-operative care
- Diagnosis of and treatment for M.S.I. diseases and injuries
- Maternity benefits (after nine months)
- Psychiatric treatment (1 year waiting period for non-group members)
- X-ray and laboratory services
- Polio, cancer, arthritis, when not covered by public institutions

NEW BENEFITS

- Elimination of waiting periods for elective procedures
- Annual physical examination
- No limit on laboratory and X-ray services
- Waiver of premiums due to disability (effective in group and blue group plans)

EXCLUSIONS:

- Dental Care and Dental X-Ray
- Physician's Missed or Travel-time Expense
- Physician's Examinations for third party use
- Expenses covered by Public Institutions, Workmen's Compensation Board
- Hospital fee expenses other than health
- Treatment resulting from participation in war or riot
- Physiotherapy and Actinotherapy
- Ambulance, Hospitalization and Nursing Services

"I'll be over–after I do my banking."

Nowadays it's natural for the lady of the house to do much of the family banking, because it's so convenient to look after money matters at one place —the local chartered bank, an all-round banking service-centre.

This busy homemaker is on her way to deposit part of her husband's salary in their savings account, cash a cheque on their joint chequing account, and pay the monthly instalment on a personal loan. All this taken care of under one roof—quickly, easily, simply.

Any bank service you use is an introduction to many others. And the chartered banks are always on the lookout for new ways to be helpful to more people. Good reason why the number of deposit accounts has doubled to 14 million in just 10 years, and 3,500 new accounts are being opened every banking day.

THE CHARTERED BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY through full-range banking responsive to growing, changing needs

Mr and Mrs Willy Olsen and son Brad were visitors at the E. Quinlan home. Mrs Quinlan returned with them to Nelson B. C.

Corrinne Vesta spent some time with her sister and brother-in-law Mr and Mrs Lawrence Benton of Viking, going with them to Calgary.

Mr and Mrs Raleigh Clark and family of Cash Creek B. C. were visitors at Hardisty and Lougheed.

Mr Fred Mikish with his sister Mrs Vorva, motored to Bonnyville, taking Irene Vorva back to her work at the hospital there.

Mrs Bob Morgan and Holly Gay of Calgary spent early July at the Alex Redecop home.

Mr and Mrs Bob Weeks and children are on a motor trip to B. C. and points in the U.S. They hope to call on the Metcalfs enroute.

Amisk News

The United Church Women held their July meeting at home of Mrs Harry Kovaby with 12 members and one visitor. Mrs. Anderson led the devotions. It was decided to cancel the August and Sept. meetings. The members were reminded to continue to collect used stamps & clothing. Final arrangements for a wedding except on were made. Conclusions were Mrs Gertrude Terry and Mrs Mrs. Dobberteen. Next meeting is on Oct. 9th at Beryl Chapman's.

A very pleasant evening was held at home of Mrs A. Terry when over 20 friends and relatives gathered to extend best wishes and shower Miss Myrna McCabe, July bride-elect. Myrna received many lovely gifts & generously thanked each one.

Mrs Lawley had a good sale of her household effects recently. Mr & Mrs Magnus Lefve took Mrs. Lawley to Wainwright where she will reside at the Battle River Lodge.

Mrs Barbara McCormick, nurse in training at the U. of A., is holidaying at home for two weeks.

Mrs Nellie Jones and her mother Mrs Lowe, both from Camrose, and former Amisk residents, came on Friday to visit until Monday with Mrs Elton Ferguson, and to renew acquaintances in the district.

The Amisk FUA Level held their July meeting at home of Mr & Mrs Ingvald Mellemstrand and with a fair attendance despite the rain.

Mr and Mrs Wm. Skright and son of Penticton B.C. visited for several days with Mr and Mrs Peddicord.

FLEXI TOOTH*

HARVESTS MORE CROP - PICKS UP FEWER STONES

Field-tested last year on the prairies, this remarkable new, flexible harvesting tooth for combine and baler pick-ups has proven to be superior to conventional teeth. Flexi Tooth can be lowered closer to the ground. As a result Flexi Tooth harvests more crop per acre.

It picks up fewer stones—meaning less rejection at market—less damage to costly equipment. Mounted in rubber strips Flexi Tooth is quieter—minimizes dust. What's more, wild buckwheat is thrown off and doesn't "bind" as it does with conventional teeth.

See your Imperial Esso Agent today and ask him about the special introductory offer!

HOW TO VIEW THE ECLIPSE, SAT. JULY 20

If the sun is shining around noontime of July 20th, Albertans will have an opportunity to witness a rare phenomenon of nature. The ocrain will be a eclipse of the sun—the first since 1860.

How the eclipse is viewed should be of major concern to all and in particular to parents of young children. Previous experience indicates that a number of people will receive burns to the retina, an inner lining at the back of the eye. These burns frequently result in permanent blindness. Unfortunately, the majority of casualties will occur among children in the 9-15 age group, and particularly to boys in this age. During the 1959 eclipse, many received eye injuries after looking directly at the sun for as short a period as 10 seconds.

The Ophthalmological Society of Alberta in co-operation with the Alberta Dept. of Public Health issues a firm warning against looking directly at the sun when viewing the eclipse. They further suggest that no commercially made products such as colored glasses, smoked glass, exposed photographic or x-ray film, broken bottles and so on can completely filter out the damage-causing infrared rays.

A suggested method of viewing the eclipse might be explained as follows: A 1/8 inch hole is made in a foot square card. With the card held at right angles to the sun's ray, the image of the sun can be projected on a second card placed about 10 feet behind the first card. The observer, then always has his back to the sun and avoids any direct exposure of his eyes. This method has the added advantage of allowing more than one person to view the eclipse at the same time.

will sit in on conferences or council sessions, hearing them in the five official languages of the U. N.

One day will be spent in visiting various headquarters of the member nations' ambassadors & staffs. The students will be allowed 10 interviews with these members. They will also visit famous places during a sight-seeing tour.

What Is The United Nations Doing!

Many questions are being asked today, What is the United Nations doing in such places as the Congo, Cuba, West Berlin, Viet-Nam and any other trouble spot in the world?

One group students from all parts of the U. S. and Canada will find the answer to these questions. They are to be arriving in New York during the summer months. The group is the participants in this year's All Canada Annual United Nations Study Seminar to be held from July 14th to 21st.

Taking part from this district is Dawn Kreiter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Kreiter of Manville, presently a sophomore at the Manville High School. Dawn has been selected as a delegate by competition from among 24 students from District 6, North-Eastern Alberta zone. Speaking contests were held in the various lodges, and community centres elimination were held by such lodge, with semi-finals in five zone-zones. The finals were held at Irma, Dawn was sponsored by Innisfree Lodge I. O.O.F., and represents District No. 6 in this Pilgrimage. She will travel to New York by bus, leaving Calgary along with 8 other delegates from Alberta. While in New York Dawn will be with about 150 other high school students. This exercise will continue for 7 weeks until a total of 1000 students have made the Pilgrimage. Since 1950 a total of 7,787 datunets have participated.

At the U. N. they will tour the buildings and be briefed on political, economic and social aspects, with an opportunity to ask questions. They

YOUNG LADY OF THE LAKE

DAY AT THE BEACH. It was little Lisa Dunn's first day at the lake, and she didn't quite know what to make of all that water. "What is this strange wet stuff?" she asks, dipping a finger cautiously into the ripples. "You can make splashes with it, just like in the bath tub," she discovers. "And you can even drink it," she reports, giving it the taste test. "Why, it's wonderful stuff! And it keeps you cool, too!" she concludes, throwing her arms into the air.

● Two Alberta Women's Organizations, the Women's Institutes and the Farm Women's Union, will honor Mrs. G. van Beekhoff of the Netherlands, President of the Associated County Women of the World. Mrs. van Beekhoff will arrive in Calgary on the morning of July 25th, go to Lethbridge for an afternoon meeting and High River in the evening. On Friday, July 26th she will visit Drumheller, on the 27th Red Deer, and will attend an afternoon tea in Edmonton on Sunday the 28th, be guest at a luncheon for the National Farm Union women delegates and go to Westlock in the afternoon on the 29th. Mrs. van Beekhoff will leave Edmonton for the N. W. T. a July 30th.

● The Board of National Farmers Union will meet in Edmonton July 29 and 30. A feature of this meeting will be the banquet on the evening of the first day. The Government of Alberta will be host, and the Hon. Mitchell Sharp, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, will speak. Delegates will be in attendance from Ontario, Sask., B. C. and Alberta.

Farm Organization Structure will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Phil Thair of the University of Saskatchewan on the morning of July 29, and on the 30th Dr. G. I. Trant of the Ontario Agricultural College will discuss Canada's Dairy Policy.

● Alberta Hail studies, a project sponsored jointly by the Dominion Meteorological Services and the University of Alberta, and working out of the RCAF Station at Penhold, are reporting daily over a number of Central Alberta radio stations. Two minute progresses, describing the work of the organization and providing information on the subject of hail formation and activity, are reported as being well received by farmer-listeners. Farmers are urged to report storms to this research group in order that the greatest possible amount of data can be gathered for study.

● The Junior PUA Camp at Gold Eye Lake will be in full operation for the remainder of the holiday season. Three more week-long district camps will be held. This week Juniors from district 11, 12, 13 and 14 in Southern Alberta will be in attendance. Junior Camps will conclude with a "graduate camp" August 4 to 10, attended by outstanding students from all district camps.

A Citizenship Seminar, attended by Indian and non-Indian students will again be held. The date August [illegible].

Cadets Converge On Vernon Cadet Camp

450 Royal Canadian Army Cadets from Alberta arrived in this Okanagan city today. The Albertans were the first part of a contingent of 1200 cadets from the four western provinces. Cadets from B.C., Saskatchewan and Manitoba will arrive Friday and Saturday. On hand to greet the cadets were Brigadier E. D. Danby, DSO, OBE, CD, B.C. Area Commander and Lt. Col. J. H. Reynolds, Camp Commander.

Cadets are no stangers to Vernon as the city has been hosting army camps since 1908. The camp is of six weeks duration and cadets will train in courses of: Cadet Leader Instructors, Cadet Leaders, Signals, Driver Maintenance and Band. Each cadet will receive $100 bonus on completion of the course.

The Vernon Cadet Camp has a comprehensive athletic program. During their six weeks stay in Vernon the cadets participate in compulsory athletics as well as a full program of voluntary sports activities. Sports include such games as soccer, volleyball, and softball as well as track and field and gymnastics. Supervised swimming is done under excellent instruction of qualified Red Cross instructors and is under expert supervision at all times.

During their stay here the boys will consume over 260 tons of food and each boy gains an average of 5 lbs. in weight.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of wife and mother, Adeline Hughes who passed away July 10th, 1960.
It is but three years ago today
Since God called you away.
And we who loved you most of all
Miss you more each day.
Oh, happy home it was once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Ever remembered by her Loving Family. 13 1 p

In loving memory of dear son and brother, Walter Keith Huyghe, who passed away July 14th, 1946.
A loving one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our hearts
Which never can be filled.

I. O. D. E. Notes

The June meeting held in the Co-op Hall, Killam, on June 19th had 8 large attendance. From Calgary, the Prov. President Mrs. Wilson attended, along with officers. Mrs. Linton of Edmonton gave an interesting talk on the work of the Order.

All the various groups from Lloydminster, Vermilion, Vegreville, Camrose and Alliance gave talks on the work they are doing.

A dinner was served at 1 o'clock after which the Standard Bearers brought in their flag. The meeting began at 4 o'clock with Mrs. Flovdins presenting. After the meeting lunch was served.

A. P. Crop Report

Local — Heavy rains of 4 to 8 inches fell on the southern part of the local area, 1 to 2 inches in the Calgary district, and showers in the central section. Moisture conditions remain good throughout the area except that rain would be welcome at the northern edge. Crop prospects are generally very good.

Federal Loan Made To Strome

Lorenson - Gordon Wedding

STROME — On June 29th at 2.00 p.m. marriage vows and rings were exchanged between Miss Merylynn Mildred Gordon and Mr. David Lawrence Lorenson, at a beautiful wedding held in St. Paul's United Church at Strome. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alvin Gordon of Strome and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lorenson from Lindbergh. Rev. K. Morris performed the ceremony before the altar which was tastefully decorated with baskets of spring flowers. The pew markers consisted of large white satin bows and streamers with fern, yellow roses and orange blossoms.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a full-length gown of silk organza over silk peau d' soie. The bodice had a false empire jacket of venetian lace with scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The control line shirt was cut in toe-length in front and has appique o Venetian lace with silk organza petals. The bustle back flowed to a full chapel train. The bride's bouffant four-tiered veil of silk illusion was held in place by a pearl embroidered silk organza cabbage rose fastened to a forehead medalion of pearls and rhinestones. Her only jewelry was a single stirnd of cultured pearls with a diamond clasp, gift of the groom. She wore wrist-length gloves and carried a spray bouquet of white calleyra orchids with trailing stephynotis and ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Stella Lorenson, sister-in-law of the groom and the bride's two sisters, Misses Lenore and Janice Gordon, were the bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in yellow silk organza dresses styled with gathered V-necklines and modified bell skirts fastened with a bow and hem-length sashes. Their hats were tiny pillboxes of yellow silk organza adorned by daisies and yellow tulle veils. They wore white wrist-length gloves and yellow shoes and carried colonial baskets of white and yellow shasta daisies. Their jewelry was a single strand crystal necklace and matching earrings, gift of the bride.

The tiny flower girl, Debra Orr, cousin of the bride, wore a short white frock of silk organza. The very full shirt was caught up in front with daisies. She wore a white straw sailor hat with yellow streamers. A short white glove. Her basket of daisies was similar to those carried by the senior attendants. Her jewelry, a gift of the bride, consisted of a tiny pearl drop necklet and gold bracelet with pearl drop.

Ring bearer was little Douglas Wallman, cousin of the bride. He wore a navy blazer over light trousers and carried a heart-shaped cushion of peau d' soie edged with lace. His boutonniere was of baby mums and fern.

Best man was Milton Lorenson, brother of the groom and ushers were Herbird Lorenson, brother of the groom, and Tom Mather, cousin of the bride. Organist was Mrs. G. Ratcliff, aunt of the bride, who played Melody of Love for the bridal attendant's precessional and the traditional wedding march by Lohengrin for the bride's entrance.

A reception for approximately 150 guests was held at the Strome Elks Hall. The bride's table was centered with a four-layer cake decorated in yellow and white and set on an hour-loom lace cloth. M. C. was Mr. Carl Ahlstrum, uncle of the bride. Mr. Bert Plowman, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded. The best man proposed a toast to the bridesmaids.

The mother of the bride received guests wearing a pink gown, the top of which was of venetian lace with scoop neck and bracelet-length sleeves. The peau d' soie shirt was moderately full, fastening with a flat fabrick bow in back. Her hat was a beehive style of pink organza petals and her corsage was of pink edged carnations and baby mums. The groom's mother wore a blue lace sheath-styled dress. Her hat was a white organza pillbox with veiling and she wore a corsage of white carnations and baby mums.

An open house and dance followed the reception. The bride's going-away outfit was a yellow printed silk sheath dress and matching trotter length coat. Her hat was a crushed silk cloche and her other accessories were white. Her corsage was of white orchids. Following their honeymoon the happy cuple will reside in Edmonton.

Too Hot - Truck Goes Swimming

The large trailer-truck shown in the above picture made a flying trip to Sedgewick with a load of feed for the Co-op Store and ended up taking a flying dive into Iron Creek north of town. The truck was on its way to the Nordstrom farm with feed, and when passing another vehicle, got too far over onto the soft shoulder of the grade. The driver was unable to pull the heavy vehicle back, with the result that it crashed into the steel girders of the bridge, tearing them out, and the truck ended up in five feet of water. The driver was unhurt and managed to crawl out the window to safety. Extensive damage resulted to the truck, which was later removed with the aid of M. D. Flagstaff equipment and taken to Edmonton. Prospects Good For Bumper Crop In 63

The crops throughout the local area from Dayland to Amisk appear to be the best for several years. The rains have been consistent and widespread with no part of the area appearing to lack moisture.

The past week of exceptionally warm weather has brought the grain along very fast, and with the aid of ample sub-soil moisture the heads are filling well. A few fields show signs of turning the deep golden yellow of ripe wheat. With the warm weather the mowers and binders are out in full force, putting up feed for next winter.

In Ottawa officials are predicting a record wheat harvest this Fall with initial figures indicating a 3 percent increase in wheat acreage over 1962. Put this alongside the almost perfect weather that has blessed most parts of Western Canada, and it looks like a bumper crop.

MAGEE SILVER ANNIVERSERY

REV. & MRS. MAGEE FETED AT TRINITY CHURCH

LOUGHEED — On July 16 some 180 friends and members of the 3 congregations of the Sedgewick Lutheran Parish, gathered at Trinity to honor their pastor and wife on the occasion fiheir Silver Wedding Anniversary. A picnic supper was enjoyed by all, after which a program of sacred music and readings by members was M. C'd. by T. Clouston Jr., president f Trinity.

Words of appreciation for the Pastor's ministry were given by Mr. Lloyd Olsen and Mr. Oscar Lihnsen, presidents of Bethania and Sharon. The Magees were then presented wit ha beautiful five-piece chrome kitchen set from the Sharon members, and a purse from the members of Trinity in token of friendship & regard. Mr. and Mrs. Magee both replied that the people of the parish had become very dear to them, and although they might not remain too many years in Sedgewick, they hoped they could always have kindly thoughts of those whom they had come to shepherd. Also that Sedgewic khad come to be "home" indeed. The lovely evening closed with the Lord's Prayer and the singing of "God Bless the House Whatw Bafall."

REV. AND MRS. C. MAGEE HONORED AT PARSONAGE

The spacious lawn at the Lutheran Parsonage was the scene of a lovely garden party on Sunday, July 14th, when Rev. and Mrs. C. Magee celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

The guest book was signed by 120 guests during the afternoon and the evening, registrar being Mrs. Harry Gascoyne. An interesting table display was arranged by the Magees containing of family photographs, sports, hobbies and their various interests through the years. Also on display was the "Friendship Bedspread" representing the handiwork of the ladies of the parish. A beautiful three tiered wedding cake decorated by Mrs. Myrehaug, plus a bridal bouquet, the "gift of the groom" added interest to the scene. Dainty refreshments were served by the Sedgewick Lutheran Ladies and soft background music was heard throughout the day.

A generous purse plus several lovely and useful gifts, including a silhouette serving tray and a pair of crystal vases were presented to the Magees in token of friendship and appreciation by members of Bethania congregation and friends, for which Rev. and Mrs. Magee graciously extended their thanks.

COLLISION COURSE

OTTAWA - Prime Minister Pearson, pushing into action on legislation providing a loan fund for municipalities, stumbled embarrassingly over the bodies of several Provincial Premiers. If the Prime Minister, in a moment of boldness, thought that these were dead bodies, he was soon set right. The Premiers, led by Mr. Lesage from Quebec, jumped up and pounced upon him. The result was that the legislation had to be delayed. Mr. Pearson had to call a Fed-Prov. meeting for July 30th to discuss the legislation and other matters which the Provinces believe concern them.

It was the second time the Government had stumbled in its short life span. It has recovered from the "budget bruiser" as opposition leader Diefenbaker called it, but at great cost to public confidence & esteem. He seemed to lack the decisive and commanding leadership field of operations with the Provinces, could be much more significant.

Most of the Provinces favour the Federal Government's proposal to establish a $500,000,000 loan fund for municipal public works. But, at this stage in Canadian Confederation no Federal Government is going to move around with municipalities, which are the creatures of the Provinces, without consulting the Premiers. That's a clear lesson of the times we live in and there was every reason to believe that Mr. Pearson had learned the lesson. The Liberal Government has shown itself extraordinarily sensitive to the susceptibilities of Quebec in the arena of language and culture.

Mr. Pearson's failure to consult the Provinces on legislation which concerned them, was therefore, all the more surprising. His subsequent difficulties, particularly with Quebec were therefore inevitable.

The Prime Minister's readiness to meet Provincial wishes, and to call a conference, is evidence of good faith. The demands of the Provinces are certainly not repugnant to Mr. Pearson - or his Government. Far from it. The Government's lapse in consultation in its early days was certainly not what one had been led to expect from Liberal Party concepts of co-operative Federalism.

Mr. Pearson has been exceptionally tolerant and sympathetic even to the demands of Mr. Lesage who, for all his strengths, sometimes appears to be easily swayed by whatever winds happen to be blowing strongest in the Province at the particular time. But he did falter badly in his failure, noted by other Provincial Premiers besides Mr. Lesage, to consult the Provinces on the municipal loan fund and other matters.

The attitude failed to take into account the prevailing mood in Canada. A fundamental change in Canadian Confederation appears to be taking place. It is doubtful, that at least in the foreseeable future, any Federal Government will be able to act in provincially sensitive areas without at least the full consultation with the ten Provinces which make up the Federation. This mood has been building for several years, but no previous Government has had to face it so directly. The very fact that Mr. Pearson's Government is a new one required a new approach to relations with the Provinces.

For many years now the Provinces have been denied the full authority and financial resources they need to do what is required of them.

At the moment, quite apart from the turbulence in Quebec, there is a general surge towards provincial autonomy in most Provinces. This may even be considered historically appropriate in a Federation, there is always tension between the two levels of Government, and this has been true of Canada At the moment the Provinces are on the upswing. Their needs, in education, highways, health and industrial development, are paramount today.

It may be noted in passing that, while the Quebec Premier is the chief spokesman for those needs, he frequently expresses the views of many other Provincial Premiers.

The Provincial upsurge cannot be denied by any Federal Government today, let alone a minority Government. The strength of Provincial leadership exists to-day, and is of course largely responsible for the new and important Provincial influence on the Government.

Lesage in Quebec, Robarts in Ontario, Bennett in B. C., and Manning in Alberta, Robichaud in New Brunswick, are also men in say company. They represent three-quarters of the total population, and do it in a way that obviously finds favor with most of their people. The other Premiers, Robichaud, Lloyd, Stanfield, Shaw, Smallwood are also men of stature.

There is a fact when Mr. Pearson apparently lost sight of, at least momentarily, in the early days of office. The conference he has called to discuss specific Federal legislation is unusual and it will be followed by other conferences.

Federal Governments in the past have not deigned to call in the Provinces for such discussion. It marks a new approach to Federal-Provincial relations, and approach demanded by the Provinces themselves.

This may signal an end to the system whereby the Federal Government and the Provinces blithely go their separate ways until they inevitably collide.

It may signal the birth of permanent arrgelems for dealing with Federal-Provincial problems. Mr. Pearson is known to be thinking along these lines. He may be thinking even more seriously about it after his initial brush with the power of the Provinces.

TREE CARE

A well pruned tree is a thing of beauty. Trees such as Caragana, Manitoba Maple, and Laburnum need to be cultivated & kept free of weeds, but they also need pruning. We expect to see a willow growing with many stems branching out at ground level, but not a poplar or maple. After the first or second year of growth of a poplar use the knife and trim the base of a tree, leaving one single stem which will form the trunk of the future tree. Take note of the branches which are growing too close and see if you don't agree with me that the pruned tree look a whole lot better. Don't take time to prune the trees on your place.

HAWKBEARD INCREASING:

Narrow leafed Hawksbeard, a native weed, appears to be on the increase throughout the northern and central areas of Alberta according to information released by W. Lobay, Supervisor of Soils.

This early yellow-flowered weed, sometimes mistaken for sow thistle, is quite noticeable in summerfallow fields and forage stands as well as on roadsides and uncultivated land. Mr. Lobay urges farmers to cultivate all fallow land immediately, if this has not already been done, to prevent seed setting. Flowering heads should be burned in the soil because viable seed can be produced from plants which are cut down before they are fully matured. A good thorough cultivation now will also get rid of many other weeds.

Narrow leafed Hawksbeard on the roadsides and other non-cultivated areas should be moved whenever possible. This weed is quite resistant to standard 2,4-D sprays especially in advanced stages of growth. Quite heavy rates have to be used to effect some control.

In the case of infested forage crops, Mr. Lobay recommends cutting the hay growth of the Hawksbeard. This is usually well above the forage stand and can be cut by lifting the cutter bar of the mower or that it by-passes the legumes and grass.

Crop rotations, using grain and hay crops, will help to control the weed since it is a poor competitor. When a good catch of forage or cereal crop is not obtained, this weed may establish itself in areas where it is prevalent. Careful preparation of the seed bed, sowing only good quality seed of recommended varieties and the use of fertilizers are the best ways of ensuring a good vigorous crop stand.

Mr. Lobay says there has been relatively little research done on chemical control, but indications are that 2,4-D ester applied at a rate of 1 lb. per acre gives some control when the plants are in the early rosette stage. Applications of 2,4-DB at the rate of 2/3 ounces have shown very good promise as a fall treatment for forage stands.

Hawksbeard robs crops of food & moisture. An abundance of this weed in forage stands results in poor quality hay and pasture. For those near the Alberta Dept. of Ag. is stressing the need for accelerated activity on the part of everyone concerned to help control Hawksbeard.

Going back to the old home town or to the old home farm for a visit is a favorite summer pastime in this country. Each year, after a fantastic and complex build-up, thousands of families are dragged many long, hot miles to see whom Dad grew up.

It is usually, for Dad, a poignant mixture of bitter disappointment and an unmistakable awareness that he is growing old. For Mom, it is a big pain in the arm. For the kids, it is an exercise in sheer boredom, and a realization that the old man has been kidding himself, and them, for years.

You look up from your work in school with, had wild adventures with, coole appies with, dated girls with, played records and swimming holes.

In the second place, we all lived there until three years ago. We haven't been away long enough to get misty-eyed about it. The old house looks exactly as it did. The old trout streams still have trout in them. The old golf course still baffles.

As a result, our annual summer visit to the old home town is not an ordeal but a delight. It's a leisurely progress down main street, shaking hands, asking after each other's children, being urged to drop in at the house or the cottage.

It's popping into the pub for one cold one and having a dozen citizens offering to buy. It's chatting about town politics, so absorbing and snappy as they ever were. It's catching up on whose wife has run off and whose husband is running around with what lady.

Our kids love the visits to the town where they spent their childhood years, and know every dangerous ditch and perilous precipice. They meet the youngsters they went to school with, size each other up like friendly dogs and happily start comparing notes.

And they've never disappointed us when we visit the old home town. But they're going to get a great big shock one of these days when their father drags them back to Hill end home town & they discover what a big, fat liar he is about his old girl friends and his old feats of daring and his old family mansion.

The local Tank boys returned Saturday night from Sarcee Camp, under the supervision of Instructor Sgt. Major McGee. Besides having had a good time, some real service training and grub, the boys tell us that Trooper Bob Vickerman turned out to be the camp's second best shot with the .303 rifle, and that Sgt. Fred Sparrow is cutting rust and slow meat with a knife in each hand.

2500 people passed through the new entrance gate to witness the events at the Killam Stampede last Wednesday.

Fire of unknown source early Tuesday morning completely destroyed the garage known as Sedgewick Motors and Electric. Mellaby Bros. have stated that they plan to re-build as soon as possible.

Several farmers north of Strome lost their crops 100% and a number of poultry and windows due to a hail storm.

About 65 friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hark Wilson Sunday to honor them on their 30th anniversary.

Albertans Prefer M.S.I. Albertans who subscribe to M.S.I. coverage enjoy freedom from worry of medical care expenses because M.S.I. provides the most satisfactory coverage available. M.S.I. applicants may be of any age and do not require a medical examination; there are no exclusions for chronic or pre-existing ailments.

Through the Alberta Medical Plan, government subsidy brings the cost of M.S.I. well within the financial means of senior citizens and those with limited income.

With M.S.I. there is no red tape. No forms to fill out when receiving medical care. All dependents receive equal coverage and M.S.I. is transferable to other medical plans elsewhere in Canada and parts of the United States, without lapse in coverage.

ALL INDIVIDUAL PLAN C APPLICATIONS RECEIVED UP TO SEPT. 30, 1963 WILL BE AS OF EFFECTIVE DATE FOR COVERAGE OF OCT. 1, 1963. SUBSEQUENT APPLICATIONS WILL BE SUBJECT TO AN APPROXIMATE 90 DAY DELAYED EFFECTIVE DATE.

M.S.I. PAYS FOR:

- First and all subsequent home, office and hospital calls
- Consultation, diagnosis and assistance at doctors' surgeries
- Surgical procedures, including pre- and post-operative care
- Diagnosis of and treatment for ALL illnesses and injuries
- Maternity benefits (after nine months)
- Psychiatric treatment (1 year waiting period for non group plans)
- X-ray and laboratory services
- Polio, cancer, arthritis, when not covered by public authorities

NEW BENEFITS

- Elimination of waiting periods for elective procedures
- Annual physical examinations
- No limit on laboratory and X-ray services
- Waiver of premiums when in disability (effective in group and non group plans)

EXCLUSIONS

- Dental Care and Dental X-Ray
- Physician's Mileage or Travel-time Expense
- Physician's Examinations for third party use
- Expenses covered by Public Authorities and Workmen's Compensation Board
- Sterilization for reasons other than health
- Treatment resulting from participation in war or riot
- Physiotherapy and Artinotherapy
- Ambulance, Hospitalization and Nursing Services
- Drugs, Medicines, Appliances, Examinations for Eye Glasses and Eye Diseases.

A. P. Crop Report

The weather has been unsettled this past week with rain falling in most points. The heavier rains fell in the northern part of this area where it was most needed and along the western edge. Coarse grains are beginning to head and heading in wheat crops is well advanced. Generally crop prospects are very good.

FREEZING!

This is the season when the freezer is filled to overflowing. Remember to:

Plan ahead so your freezer space and all the food you want to freeze come at once. At this time of year the bottom of the freezer should be in sight to allow for the garden produce to be placed there. Freezing represents the greatest economy when the produce is home grown.

Place packages against the walls of the chest type freezer or shelves of the upright to hasten freezing.

Use the lowest temperature available for freezing. It should not be higher than 90 F.

Keep a daily record of foods going in and out of the freezer so that the foods will be used when the quality is best. It saves opening the freezer to find out what is there.

Avoid overloading the freezer with warm food as it results in a slow rate of freezing, reduced quality of the product and a danger of spoilage occurring before the product is frozen. Most home freezers can handle 2 to 3 pounds per cubic foot capacity per 24 hours.

When freezing vegetables blanching is a must. Blanching stops enzyme action which otherwise would continue during frozen storage causing off-flower, toughening & change-

HAZARDS OF FARM
CAN BE AVOIDED

During 1962, 172 Canadians died from farm accidents other than motor vehicle. Using the established accident average that one in every 50 accidents is fatal, the National Safety League of Canada believes that at least 9,000 of Canada's farm population were involved in farm accidents, half of them requiring hospitalization. Of the total, 90 percent of the accidents resulted from carelessness or neglect. They should never have happened.

NSL joins and supports all organizations contributing to the promotion of National Safety Week, July 21 to 27, 1963.

F. G. McLaren, the League's general manager, said, "Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of every member of the family learning to recognize hazards and how to avoid them."

Farm safety, NSY believes, should be a family affair, each member of the family playing his part in finding and eliminating accident causes. Get to know the safe way to use equipment, learn the skills necessary to safety and keep your mind on your work.

A farmer, said the League, must be many kinds of craftsman: carpenter, electrician, mechanic, administrator, foreman and instructor.

NSL warns that an unsafe act can easily become a habit. Promptly corrected, it just as easily becomes a habit to avoid the dangerous act. During this Farm Safety Week, the NSL urges you to work seriously at shaking unsafe habits, correct such habits already formed, and, most of all, spread safety by example.

"Jack rabbit" starts or abnormal acceleration at any speed are extremely wasteful of gasoline. Fast stops waste the energy built up by the gasoline already burned in the engine.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE OLD HOUSE TALES

Please do not feel sad when you look at me standing here week after week, month after month, year after year, my windows all covered over with boards, my door hanging by one hinge, and grass grown up to the old broken-down door step. Even my sides are scarred by hail, and my chimney is crumbling down.

But listen! As I said before, do not feel sorry for me. I hold within my walls memories worth, more than all the fertile fields which surround me for miles and miles.

I could tell them dear old Grannma & Grandpa, then a young couple with a half dozen healthy youngsters, came to live here. They had very little of this world's goods, but were full ofambition and pluck (it took a lot of that in those days too).

My door never knew what it was to be locked; the latch string always hung out, and many a weary wayfarer, tramping along, found shelter under my roof, with bed and plenty of good, plain food. Even Indians sometimes dropped in, knowing in a voiceless way that they were welcome.

In those early days church services were held within my walls, and not a few souls found the Peace which this troubled world knows nothing of, through the prayers f these devout, honest hard-working pioneers and through the singing of these good ol' hymns which were sung a lustily.

I have seen little boys grow up to young men. Heard their cries and laughter grw wisto lusty wrawhoops and yells as they grew into adolescence. Then on to courtship. This was followed by weddings, parties, joyous laughter and farewells.

Yes, I've seen the mysterious mother take sick and fade away, shutting her dear old eyes, not to open again until the Great Judgment Day.

One by one, the young folks left the shelter that I had given them; some to greener fields, some to homes of their own and some to join their dear mother beyond the veil.

Then along came another generation, happy, carefree youngsters whose only worry seemed to be the fact that the days were far too short in which to play. Hallowe'en, Easter, Summer Camp, Christmas, School Days, Holidays, followed one another all too quickly. Laughter and tears, work and play, Sunday School lessons and tests to learn, are all woven into the beautiful pattern of memories.

I have stood silently by the bedside of some of the children, with bowed ones when it seemed uncertain which would win, life or death, and rejoiced with them when I heard the sigh of relief escape from tired parents' lips.

I have seen the preparation for a wedding take place; have seen the happy, blushing bride leave with her proud hubby on their honeymoone amid cheers, laughter, confetti throwing, and, some tears.

My doorstep, though it has been replaced several times, is worn thin from little feet running in and out. My door creaks, yes, and in some places even my walls, speak of the times when those feet feeling the touch of a new jack-knife, have carved their initials and the date.

Yes, my friend, you might feel sad when you gaze at me, but think of all that has happened since first I stood here on the hilltop so proudly proclaiming the fact that this country from North to South, from East to West, is fast becming settled by the rest of folks of which our Canada can be justly proud.

F.U.A. Newsletter

● The summer meeting of the FUA Board will come on Friday, July 26th for a session of several days. The agenda includes plans for the annual membership drive, setting up committees for the annual convention which will be held in Calgary, & organization work for the coming fall and winter. Expected to attend are 14 directors, the FUA Executive, FWUA Executive and the Jr. president and vice president.

● The FWUA Board will meet July 31st and August 1st to lay the plans for their annual convention.

● On Sunday July 28th the FWUA and the AWI will sponsor a tea in honor of Mrs. Van Beelsdelf, president of the ACWW who will be in Edmonton on her Canadian visit. Mrs. M. L. Nelson will convene.

● Earlier this year the first conference of Arctic co-operatives was held at Probisher Bay, N.W.T. with delegates present from 16 co-operatives scattered over points two thousand miles apart across Canadas big northland. Among the delegates were two from a consumer co-op 700 miles inside the Arctic Circle, believed to be the most northerly co-operative in the world.

● Figures just released by the Provincial Bureau of Statistics do not make very comforting reading for Canadian livestock farmers. They show that cattle exports from Canada are down 18 percent from last year, with hog exports down about the same. Grain farmers fared better. Wheat exports are slightly down but export of feed grain has doubled over the same period for 1962. The wheat prices are down, oats are the same and barley slightly down. For the period January-May 1962 prairie grain growers received $80 million for the grain sold while in 1963 received only $81 million for a great deal more grain.

● Mrs. Van Beelsdelf, president of the Associated Country Women of the World, will be the guest speaker at a meeting in Red Deer July 27th and in Wentlock July 29. Both meeting are sponsored jointly by the FWUA and the Alberta Women's Institutes, constituent Society members of A.C.W.W.

Modern Coin Wash and Trailer Court Now Open

SEDGEWICK — Situated North of the Community Press office, the modern new Coin Wash and Trailer Court was opened last week by the owners Mr. and Mrs. Colvin Bonisteo. Each trailer location has 35 feet of space, with sewage, water and electric hook-ups available. A cement walk through the Court connects to modern washrooms and showers. A coin wash has been added for use of the general public and trailer court guests. Three modern coin washers and dryers are situated for easy extension of services if warranted.

Reservations for the trailer court may be made with Mr. Bonisteo, and the public is invited to inspect the new premises at any time.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS MEETING

A regular meeting of the Board of Killam School Division No. 22 was held with all Trustees present, along with the Superintendent.

Mr. Polehoyke was authorized to attend to the installation of bathroom fixtures in the teacherage at Strome.

The Board went on record as opposed to the transfer of the Woodrow and Norwood School Districts to the Forestburg Consolidated School District and/or Galahad School District, unless the majority of the ratepayers in these districts express a wish to be transferred.

It was approved to purchase the Pauly house in Alliance for the sum of $9,125.00.

Bills and vouchers 1640 to 1723 were given approval for payment on vouchers 1724 to 1746.

It was passed that the following teachers be hired to deal with replacements of: Mrs. Edith Lusty at Morna, grades 1 and 2; Mrs. Betty Rosendahl (pregnant to be made later). Miss Gene Abbott was granted leave of absence for one year from teaching duties at Sedgewick.

It was passed that the price of $10,262.60 submitted by the Denver Lumber at Killam for the erection of a 28x30, 2-bedroom residence in Killam be accepted, and that arrangements be made with G. Hilker to purchase a lot for same at $400.

Ministerial approval will be asked from the Dept. of Education to borrow $20,000.00 from the Bank Montreal at Killam to purchase a lunch orange in Alliance and one in Killam. Loan to be repayable in four years with interest at 5 3/4 percent.

It was passed that James Real Estate be given permission to again look after the Student Accident Insurance at the Killam, Sedgewick, Lougheed and Hatzler Schools.

Moved that to guarantee proper insurance coverage for teachers who supervise during noon hours, and to protect the legality of complete coverage, the arrangements for noon hour supervision under Sec 5 (c) of the general regulations of the Dept. of Education be made with the principal and staff of each school of the Division.

Moved that the accident report on Tommie Kwatsch, Strome, be filed, as no negligence is apparent.

Moved that Miss Marvis Sandmaier of Hardisty be granted a $22 bursary for the 1962-63 university term, $200 for 1963-64, plus a loan of $100 repayable after commencement of employment with the Division.

Approval was given for the busing of the students in grades 4 and 5 at Strome, to Edmonton for a visit to the Ool Fort.

Correspondence was read from the Killam Local of the A.T.A., accepting the last salary offer of $6081, made in April.

St. John's Church Building Fund

The Vestry of St. John's Anglican Church, Sedgewick, wishes to acknowledge with many thanks the following donations to the church building fund:

Mrs. Alex Hebenton; St. Michels and All Angels Church; Holy Trinity, Hughenden; Jos Harding; Chas. Harding; Mrs. Haire; Ed Collins; Diocesan W. A.; Doug Patten; Thos. S. Rohony; Rev. Wm. Brooke; G. W. Ambrose; James R. Hallum.

Thanks are also due to the many volunteers who have helped to get the building along so far, and it is hoped that many more will help to put the roof on and complete the building.

A $122.LING REPORT. Mr. Justice Thomas G. Morris (right) set Government and labor leaders reeling with the impact of his Royal commission report on Canada's waterfront labor violence. The Vancouver judge branded Hal Chamberlain Banks (left), president of the Seafarers' International Union, as "another Al Capone". His report warned that U.S. gangster unions are threatening our economy and democracy. He advised the Government to depose Banks and to take over the waterfront unions immediately.

Swimming Lessons Start August 12th

SEDGEWICK — The Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick has announced that their third annual Swimming Lessons will start on Mon. Aug. 12.

The same rates as last year will be charged. The rates are calculated to just cover the cost of running the school, and no profit is taken by the club. This year the lessons will be limited to the first 150 applicants to hand in their completed forms along with the fee.

Application forms for the 1963 swimming lessons are available at the Post Office in Sedgewick or at the Community Press Office, and when completely filled out can be handed in at either place.

After experiencing considerable delay in getting the lessons arranged, the Kinsmen now have everything in readiness. The instructor this year is a man from Wetaskiwin who has had considerable experience at the Wetaskiwin swimming pool.

Presbyterian Assn.

KILLAM — The meeting of Killam Presbyterian Ladies Assn. was held at the home of Mrs. A.P. Grant with fifteen members present. Devotional period under the joint direction of Mrs. A. R. Poe and Mrs. Ross Grant, opened with a hymn followed by prayer. Mrs. Poe gave a very interesting report from the study book on the people of Tiwan.

The business meeting opened with roll call flowed by the reading of the minutes. The bake sale returns were reported; plans made to serve banquet for School Division; money was sent to supply education and local cemetery fund. Visiting committee reported 27 home and hospital calls and three calls made to Flagstaff Lodge.

Meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction. Lunch was served by Mrs. Geo. McCabe and Mrs. Joe Grant, assisted by the hostess, Mrs. Grant.

LIGHTNING STRIKES FARM HOME OF MR. JACK GLENNIE

In a recent electrical storm, the farm home of Mr. Jack Glennie south-west of Sedgewick was struck by lightning. The "freak hit" was on the brick chimney atop the house, and from there it ran through the house, destroying all the electric wiring, blowing out switches and knocking the plaster off the walls. No one in the house was seriously injured, although bruises were suffered from flying plaster. Electrical connections in a near-by pump house were also knocked out of commission. The above photo shows a part of the destruction in one of the upstairs bedrooms. — Community Press Photo.

The Bible Today

"The number of people of the present generation in South & East Asia (mainland China excluded) without Scriptures is about 846 millions," said Dr. S. P. Raju, India, addressing the All Asia Bible Society Conference in Manila.

Eleven Asian countries were represented at the meetings which were chaired by the Archbishop of York, president of the United Bible Societies. Visitors from Australia, Europe, Latin and North America also attended.

Complete Asian support was given to the world-wide campaign to "step up" Scripture circulation. The conference also recommended general studies of the Bible situation in each country in order to prepare long term policies and strategies. The need for special editions of the Bible for evangelistic work was recognized and emphasized upon Bible Societies which engaged in Scripture production. The main conclusion was that co-operation of the church and the Bible Societies was not a matter of theory but a vital necessity for the growth of the church in Asia & elsewhere.

Rev. Chas Y. Chee, Bible Society Secretary for Thailand, and former Korean Missionary in that country, spoke about recent demonstrations of church co-operation in his own agency. The speaker stressed the function of the Bible Societies in supplying the Scriptures. It was up to the Bible Societies to find ways and means for the churches to co-operate to the maximum in order to secure the widest possible circulation of God's Word in Asia.

Glynis thanked everyone for the lovely gifts and extended an invitation to visit them in their new home in Viking.

HAYS SPEAKS ON TRADE

OTTAWA — Agricultural Minister Harry Hays today urged that the American Government give thought to the problem of Canada's trade deficit with the United States. He said the deficit stands "in the neighborhood of one billion dollars".

The Minister was speaking at Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park to the annual meeting sponsored by Rotary International to re-affirm friendship between Canada & the United States.

Remarking that "signs were everywhere" that Canada and the United States would likely one day be "partners in some form of economic trade alliance," Mr. Hays pointed out that many intermediate events would have to take place before this would happen, and that the problem of Canada's trade deficit was immediate.

While stressing that it was Canada's duty to initiate policies that would help redress the balance, he asked for the "active and informed participation and help of American policy-makers in this endeavor".

Mr. Hays believed that working together for a solution to problems of mutual concern and interest could reinforce the long and happy association of the two countries. He concluded on the note that it was not too much to hope that "two such amicable and understanding neighbors can show the way to the rest of the seeking world".

Who Speaks for the Weekly Newspapers?

Every intelligent American knows that mighty news papers are as necessary to our way of life as are our courts of justice.

But who speaks for the weeklies? Who tosses accolades around for the rural publications? About the only time a weekly newspaper receives applause from its big brothers is when some crusading editor is run out of town for denouncing local intolerance, exposing community shortcomings or playing footsie with the minority political party.

Depending on the editor and publisher, generally one and the same fellow, of a weekly, the small town paper is part of its community. By comparison the editor of a weekly is, if he has the intelligence, wisdom and fortitude, a greater influence than the editor of a metropolitan paper. Because of his proximity he can serve his community better, see both sides of an issue better, feel more involved in the problems of his town than can the editor of a metropolitan daily.

But of equal importance to his readers and to his community is the quality of his reporting. It is a rare country editor who would willingly do an injustice to any person or group, right or wrong, in order to sell more copies of his paper. It is a rare country editor who publishes scandalous acts by his fellowman unless the acts are of such nature they reflect upon the community. Even then he prefers to "play down" rather than to "play up" the matter.

The rural editor is often faced with a lack of newsworthy events and must fall back on common-place occurrences to fill his pages. Too often unusual and timely news in his town becomes the property of dailies long before his paper goes to press. When this occurs he suffers the pain of his own inadequacy.

If the weekly paper in handicapped with untimely stories, with commonplace events hardly worthy of the term news, if it is no media for national and international news, then what value is it? Why do people subscribe to it? Why does it exist at all?

The answer to these questions are simple.

A small town newspaper reflects the character of the community it serves. Through its pages runs the lifeblood of the people, their moods, their mores and manners, their customs. In it the readers see each other through the editor's eyes. Yes, they see themselves, too. It is their history as a society, their individual and collective biography. Over the expanse of years the files of the "hometown paper" retain the birth, education, marriage, fortune and passing of each citizen.

The small town weekly is not the property of the editor alone. It is the property of the community. Consciously or unconsciously it holds to the philosophy of John Donne and might of itself say, "No man is an island entire of itself. Every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were; every man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls, it tolls for thee."

If for no reason than being involved in the lives of the people in its community, the rural weekly newspaper is justified in its existence. —Bloomfield, Mo. Vindicator

★ MACDUFF REPORT

TWO SIDES OF THE COYNE

OTTAWA — To many, if ever there was a modern-day Canadian prophet he is James Coyne, Governor of the Bank of Canada until the unceremonious efforts of the former Conservative Government to dismiss him in 1961. Like many another would-be prophet, he is still without honor among his countrymen, and many say for good reason.

It was late in 1960 that Mr. Coyne began mounting public platforms to warn that Canada was living well beyond its means, the proof of which he claimed was its large and chronic deficit balance of trade in goods & services with other nations, although it is often overlooked that it was Mr Coyne's tight money policy around the same time which as a practical matter drove many Canadian Provinces and Municipalities to the American capital market to borrow needed funds, and so helped delay for three crucial years the necessary downward valuation of Canadian dollar.

Many feel that had his money policy been more appreciated in Ottawa conditions at that time, our recent economic history would have been much different and happier. They say a lower Canadian dollar value would have meant a real improvement in the Canadian balance of payments by producing greater exports and fewer imports. This in turn would have meant higher Canadian production, lower unemployment and fewer Federal deficits.

The complaint of those who do not honor Coyne as a prophet is that they feel that the big balance of pay ments deficits which worried him were less the result of Canada living beyond its means than the result of his wrong money policy which kept Canada from making full use of its economic means, i.e., the travesty of huge imports and insufficient exports produced by a high premium on the Canadian dollar, while Canadian manpower and physical resources were under-employed.

The Conservative Government that then held power at first rejected the Coyne policies out of hand while denying responsibility for Coyne's money policies but within a year was impelled by the force of events to take the first tentative steps to deal with a situation that was increasingly grave.

In the year the Central Banker first sounded the alarm, Canada's deficit balance of international payments climbed to a record $1.5 billion. In the intervening years the deficit slowly dropped back, until in 1962 it had dropped to $348,000,000 and this year it should drop further, perhaps to $700,000,000.

But even at those reduced levels the deficit still is raising serious problems for Canada, as Mr. Coyne warned would be the consequence of a failure to remedy the situation as a matter of urgency.

The truth of Mr. Coyne's words were first brought home vigorously in mid-1962, when a cumulative decline in confidence in the management of Canada's affairs led to a flight of capital from Canada, in the form largely of the heavy inflow that has occurred in previous years to help meet the trade deficit. The inevitable outcome was a heavy drain of the Government's reserves of gold and United States dollars, which led in turn to the imposition of an austerity program.

A healthy restoration of foreign exchange reserves and a continued reduction in the balance of payments deficit made it appear that Canada was out of the woods & well on the way to a solution of this critical problem. It only took a message to Congress by President by President Kennedy on July 18 to demonstrate how vulnerable Canada continues to be to external forces altho' it can also be noted that Kennedy's action demonstrates U. S. vulnerability to external forces as well.

"WHAT LIGHT THROUGH YONDER WINDOW BREAKS? IT IS THE EAST . . ."

Mr. Kennedy asked Congress for authority to impose a tax ranging from 2.75 to 15 percent on purchases of the securities of 22 nations, Canada included, by U. S. interests. The purpose was to receive the U. S. deficit balance of payments. Estimated as likely to come to around three billion this year, a substantial increase from the $2.3 billion deficit last year in contrast to the decline that had been hoped for, it is the intent of the attack against ill-conceived budget measures inappropriately aimed at discouraging the inflow of foreign capital.

The truth of the matter is that Canada requires to obtain a substantial volume of capital abroad, much of it from the U. S., to cover its trade deficit. Finance Minister Gordon put it this way in his budget speech: "We shall continue to need substantial net inflows of foreign capital for quite a few years if we are to avoid further exchange difficulties and if a reasonable increase in our standard of living is to be achieved. This is a fact of life in Canada. It would be the height of folly to ignore it."

The President proposed in excerpt U. S. capital flowing into Canada for direct investment, that which has the greatest effect in extending U. S. ownership and control of Canadian industry. Last year Canada obtained $520,000,000, the bulk of it from the United States.

Drastically affected by the tax would be the sale of new issues of securities south of the border, that according to Canadian figures came to $274 million in 1962. Also taxed would be U. S. purchases of outstanding Canadian securities which amounted to $1.14 billion in 1962. In all a total of $1.8 billion worth of securities were in jeopardy on the head and tax payer's figures.

The implications of a tax of up to 15 percent on security sales in both these categories were farreaching and impossible to measure. A sharp increase in all interest rates would seem to be an immediate result, but even that might not prove sufficient to attract the capital Canada needs to finance its trade deficit. A new foreign exchange crisis was in the realm of possibility.

A high level Canadian team headed by Bank of Canada Governor Mr. Rasminsky was urgently dispatched to Washington over the weekend, where it argued that the U. S. was setting off its sons to spite its face. Canada was not dumping gold from U. S. reserves, it contended but borrowing capital only to pay for the goods which it was buying from the U. S. Furthermore, Canada had contributed a net of $5 billion to U. S. reserves over the last 5 years.

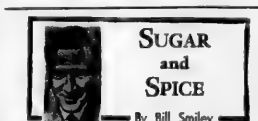
The outcome was an agreement by the Administration to provide an exception from the tax for new issues of Canadian securities, which is of particular importance because it is such a huge source of net capital inflow.

That leaves the tax remaining on trade in outstanding Canadian securities. In 1962 this produced only a net capital inflow of $71,000,000 from the U. S. because Canadian repurchases of their own securities came within that amount of matching sales to the U. S.

It is just possible that the tax that President Kennedy still proposes to impose on this trade could result in a further reduction in U. S. purchases of outstanding securities which was not matched by a reduction in Canadian purchases from the U. S. The net result would be a drain of capital south.

Canadian authorities hold some hope that this remaining levy can also be removed because it does not contribute to the U. S. balance of payments deficit. Even if they are successful, the threatened action by a country with the best will in the world toward Canada followed by its quick back-tracking once again underlines the modern economic interdependence of Canada and the United States.

It also raises for the second time in just over a year the long-term Canadian balance of payments perspects and the related question of Canada's continuing dependence on foreign capital.



What a difference a generation or so has wrought in the once-joyous art of summer cottaging. About 30 years ago, it was a gypsy sort of existence, based on the idea that you got stuck with most of the discomforts of nature, such as bugs, lousy outhouses, and back-breaking chores of water.

Nowadays my sport aches for cottage parents. The day they arrive, Dad charges around like a bull moose hooking up the pressure system, blowing fuses in the hydro system, trying to get his dirty drexel hose in the water, and rousing in all directions lugging vast cans of gas, big heavy outboards, and back-breaking cases of beer.

When everything is operating, he has to dash off to the village to get some indispensable, such as a box of tissues, a bottle of olives & some mixer for the gin. When he gets back he learns that he is to take the kids for a swim, get up the barbecue for the party they're giving that night, and go back to the village for some cigarettes for Mum.

Can you imagine the kids doing, on that glorious first day at the cottage? They're sitting around whining because there's no TV and "Nothing to do". And what is Mummy doing? she has switched on her electric toaster, big silvers to take out, no vegetables to prepare, no drinking water to fetch. She's unhappy.

Sunday night, or Monday morning if he's a real sot, Dad hits the old highway again and arrives back on the job crossed, cross and sorry for himself. But the horrible part of it is that he has to be back in the cottage every week end, plus his three-weeks with-pay in August.

... At least twice a week, bank in town, he gets a phone call from Mum, and he'd better be home to get it, not out "rooting around and hurling yourself a big time". Her cell reveals that she is bored that the kids are giving her a bad time, that the septic tank.. isn't working, and that some people are going to "drop over" on Saturday night and be sure to bring lotsa Kluber.

Mum, they have many things the old-time cottagers didn't have — lights, water, indoor plumbing. But today's cottager, in his frantic hunt for ease and convenience, has created a Frankenstein monster. He's a slave to all that machinery, and a captive of all that social life, and he hates his wife, who'd be much happier tabling out olivers with a needle than wondering if it is too early to have her first gin and tonic.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

MY SISTER WAS DEAF!

Even If one is handicapped, life need not become too dull or monotonous, as one will see in us. Have you ever had the privilege (and I say privilege) of living with a person who has lost their hearing to the extent of being totally deaf? Such has been my experience, and as I look back now, years later, I feel it was a very rewarding experience, in many ways.

My sister was not born deaf. She lost her hearing when just a baby through measles, that dread disease which leaves many children, & some grown-ups too, handicapped in so many cases. This did not effect her vocal cords, and thus she managed very well to make us understand her & us to understand us. It is so true, when one is deprived of a sense of any kind, the other senses seem to be sharpened more than average. Such was the case with my sister. Although she could not hear a sound, she missed very little if anything that went on around her. She received her education at The School For The Deaf, at Winnipeg, where she became proficient right from the first because of her bright, cheerful disposition and her willingness to oblige whenever and wherever the occasion called.

Unlike most deaf people she was very musical, that is, she loved music, and learned to play the piano exceptionally well. You ask "How could she LOVE music if she could not hear it? She couldn't HEAR the music, but her sense of vibration was so keen that, for example, if she were sitting beside the radio & holding a tin pan in her hand (the tin pan seemed to vibrate the record better than other metal), and with her body swaying in perfect rhythm, or maybe just tapping her feet, one could see that she really was enjoying it. But when the piece was finished and the announcer began to talk, she would put the pan down, picking it up now and again, until the music started again. She loved marshal music best, distining to listen to the more modern music as to jazz.

Before my sister started school, at the age of eight, we had invented our own ways of communication. However the first time she came home on holiday she immediately undertook to impart the knowledge which she had obtained of sign language, as well as the deaf alphabet, so from then on it was much easier to "talk" to her and she to us.

Never let it be said that a person so handicapped is dull at all. Not by any means. At least my sister found lots to amuse, not only herself but others as well.

Coming from a "Blue Believing" family as she did, when my sister got to the place where she could read, and understand it, she seemed to enjoy reading the Prophecies. Therefore she had really studied the portion where it tells of the end of the world. This had made quite an impression on her mind.

I had married in the meantime, & Blanche was living with us at the time. We lived on a farm and always took Blanche to town with us whenever convenient to do so. This particular time, in July, and terribly hot, a real storm-brewing day, we had hurriedly finished shopping, trying to get home before the storm broke, and had just almost made it. But not before the first heavy gust of wind had hit the car broadside, nearly upsetting it. Quickly calm in an emergency, my sister opened the car door when the car was righting itself again, and screamed above the roar of the wind, "My life, woman, whose matter? End of the world" (the expression of "my life, woman" was her favorite. The same as we would say "Oh for goodness sake" or "my goodness").

Another time, we were living in a trailer for the summer. My husband had decided to move the trailer a few miles up the road, and although we usually told my sister our plans, we had failed to do so this time, with the result she was in the trailer lying down when the men hooked a car rather abruptly, into the trailer. Having no idea what was happening Blanche came running out exclaiming, "My life, woman, Whose matter? Earthquake?" It very likely felt like an earthquake to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Wedding Reception

MERNA — At the Merna School Auditorium recently a wedding reception was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Meyer (nee Ginny Befus). The hall was decorated in pink and white streamers and wedding bells. Miss Connie Befus was in charge of the guest book. The bridetable was laid with white linen, centered with a 3-tier wedding cake, flanked by lighted tapers and vases of cut flowers.

Some 150 guests sat down to delicious turkey banquet, interspersed with musical numbers and readings. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. A. W. Eastly and responded to by the bride and groom.

Many lovely gifts were on display, showing the esteem of their many friends and relatives.

Immediately following the reception the bride and groom left for their home in Sacramento, Cal.

Meyer - Befus Wedding Held At Glendale, California

The Chapel of the Good Shepherd Glendale City Seventh Day Adventist Church, Glendale, California, was the scene of a beautiful wedding when Virginia Darlene Befus and Phillip Charles Meyer were united in holy matrimony by Elder John Pelt Jr., Minister of the Glendale Sanitarium Church.

The bridegastering the Chapel on the arm of her father, and given in marriage by her parents, looked lovely in full-length satin gown fashioned with a lace bodice, round neckline, elbow-length sleeves and a satin cummerbund. Enshrined by a sigle cabbage rose. There were lace appliques on the skirt and a satin overskirt ended in a sweep train. Her 3-tier elbow-length illusion veil was held by a cluster of seven cabbage roses. She carried an orchid corsage surrounded by small white roses and stephanotis.

Virginia Darlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Befus of Sedgewick, Alberta, was attended by her sister Constance Marie of Sedgewick as Maid of Honor, bridesmaids Harriet Jeon,as from Everette and Virginia Cruz — Lutkehus, and junior bridesmaid Patrice Elaine Christenson, all of Glendale. The attendants were all attired in identical floor length gowns of embroidered silk organza over pale yellow satin, with scalloped neckline and sleeves. Headpieces were a tiara of roses of white organza over yellow satin. They carried sprays of frosted green bee carnations with yellow streamers.

The little flower girl, Debra Diane Anderson of Sedgewick, niece of the bride, wore a short white picon cotton frock with scalloped edges on bdice and sleeves set off by a yellow satin cumberband and a large back bow. She carried a basket of frosted green carnation petals.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer of La Sierra, Cal., was attended by his brother Paul Ubaldo Meyer as best man, and Lowell James Williams as groomsman. Usher was Dwrid Michael Lutkehaus. Wedding music was provided by Harriet Lanking, Evergeen, singing, "Until," and "Wedding Prayer", and Mr. Wayne Hooper singing "God Gave Me You" & "O Perfect Love."

A reception for 200 guests was held immediately in the reception room of the church. The bride's mother receiving guests wearing a blue dress and jacket of Italian silk linen, with 2-tone blue hat and bone accessories. Her corsage was of tiny white rose buds. The groom's mother wore a navy silk dress with white accessories and corsage of pink rose buds.

The bride's going away outfit was a blue linen 2-piece suit, tiny blue hat, white accessories, and her corsage was a white orchid. Following their honeymoon the happy couple will reside in Sacramento, California.

MARY PEWTRESS

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Pewtress, formerly of Hardisty, who passed away on July 16th, were held July 19th at St. Mark's Anglican Church in Hardisty. Capt. Bloss officiated, and interment took place in the Hardisty Cemetery. The pallbearers were, E. Butcher, T. Butcher, J. McRae, L. Walker, J. Walker and C. Beever.

Many donations to the Hardisty Cemetery fund, St. Mark's Church, beautiful floral tributes and kindly expressions of sympathy were received.

Mrs. Pewtress leaves to mourn her loss, three sons, Tom Cook of Red Deer; Jeffrey of Red Deer, Francis of Tees; and two daughters, Rosel King of Hardisty and Kathleen Lemay of Edmonton; 17 grand children and 2 great grandchildren.

District Old Timer Buried At Strome

Mr. Harry V. Phipps, old-time resident of Strome, passed away on July 19th at the age of 87. He was born at Lansing, Iowa, and came to Alberta in 1902, homesteading in the Heather Rose district. In 1909 he came to Strome where he opened and operated a Hardware Store, and the following year was married to Clara Rae Thirsk at Bawlf.

Surviving are his wife Clyde, one daughter, Mrs. Goerdie McCarvell of Daysland; two brothers, LeRoy and Ervin of Iowa; three sisters all in the U. S. A.; nine grandchildren. In 1960 he was predeceased by a son, Rodney.

Mr. Phipps was a long-time member of Excelsior Lodge A.F. & A.M., of which he was a life member. He was also a member of Mount Olivet Royal Arch Masons.

Mr. Phipps, in his earlier years was an active civic and social worker at Strome, and took a keen interest in sports and church activities.

Funeral services were held from the United Church at Strome.

MACDUFF REPORT
Without Consulting The Boss

OTTAWA — Legislation to increase the money paid to Members of Parliament by the taxpayer, has also becomes a voter every three or four years always results in some heart searching and a few guilt complexes. This is not really due to the fact that Canadians are suggenly about the pay of the men and women they send to Parliament. Even less is it due to any feeling by the members that they are not worth the money. But members of Parliament are among the very privileged few who can vote their own pay increases without consulting their constituents in advance.

In any event, members of all parties are going back into their constituencies this time more than a bit worried over the extent of the increase from $10,000 to $19,000 per year, its timing and, the fact that the top $4000 is exempt from income tax. Assuming no other income, this exemption is the equivalent of another $2500 for married members without dependents.

There is no doubt that members & Senators were overdue for a raise in pay. Mr. Diefenbaker was considering it before the 1962 election. He had promised to do something about it in 1963 but a hurried dissolution of Parliament and unkind fate upset his plans. A Liberal Government had scarcely got their feet under the desk when Liberal back benchers began pressing the new Prime Minister. Suggestions by Mr. Pearson that they might be more important things to do for the country made little impression. The fever spread to the members of other parties and forced Mr. Pearson's hand. But now that the $18,000 is within reach some of the second thoughts are those:

How many constituents who believe that they work just as hard as the member they send to Ottawa can expect to earn half that amount?

Was it wise, after declaring quite reasonably that they could not face constituents unless the Government Municipal Development and Loan Bill was passed to provide jobs for next winter to put their own pay increases ahead of this Bill?

In the wake of a budget that had increased taxes and still fallen $700 million short of balance, was it just the appropriate moment to add $2 million to the nations debt for "our own pockets"?

They could count on one thing. Unanimous support from all parties would avoid an embarrassing party issue at election time.

Mr. Pearson after taking full responsibility for the legislation asked that those "entitled to speak" for opposition parties had been given the Government's intention and had given assurance of support.

But obviously the person "entitled to speak" for the Conservatives was not Mr. Diefenbaker. In the Party caucus he had tried unsuccessfully to pull his members into line on a move to delay the increases. Failing in that at the last moment he had decreed that no Conservative should absent himself. Those who were determined to get the increase immediately must be in the House to vote for the Bill.

A few hours later in the House of Commons he made a lengthy speech at the conclusion of which one of his own followers, W.H.A. Thomas of Middlesex West rose to repudiate his leader and declare that he did not speak for the Party.

When the vote was called Mr. Diefenbaker led seven Conservatives and three Social Creditors in opposing the Bill. If Liberals are crying "double cross" it is nothing to the wrath of the Conservative caucus.

But Mr. Diefenbaker, like the wise steward of the Biblical parable, may be preparing the ground for the testing time. Some time within the next 12 months there will be a Conservative leadership convention. It may be called at the request of Mr. Diefenbaker himself. There is a good precedent for a leader whose Government has suffered defeat asking a vote of confidence from his party. Or it may be called at the insistence of Mr. Diefenbaker's enemies.

In either event the present leader will be standing for re-election. He gave a clear indication of this in discussing provision for a pension for Prime Ministers after they retire from the House of Commons. "I do not expect that this is going to apply to me", he announced. "Because I have other hopes".

If Mr. Diefenbaker is to get his vote of confidence from the Party it will not be on his record as Prime Minister but his record as an astute politician who can sense the feeling of the people. He obviously hopes that a vote against the hurried pay increases might be just enough to convince Party members outside of Parliament that he has not lost his touch.

Swimming Lessons To Start Monday

SEDGEWICK — As announced in last week's paper, the Kinsmen Swimming Lessons will start next Monday at Sedgewick Lake.

Applications have been coming in for several days now and a keen interest will be a good turn-out again this year.

The swimming instructor requests that all those taking the lessons be at the lake at 9:00 A.M. on Monday morning to be delegated to classes for the rest of the course.

Capital Hill Capsule

Happy at the extent of the Federal Government's concessions over Provincial spending of the $400 million surplus, Premier Ford, Premier Lesage gave the Pearson diplomatic touch all the credit for the success of recent Federal-Provincial talks. But Mr. Pearson himself warns that it may be a different story on the Fall when tax sharing is up for discussion as well as the controversial pension plan. They may be a result that he doesn't intend to continue to be an easy mark.

Wedding

PEIGATE — REED

KILLAM — On Saturday, July 6 at 2:00 p.m. in Knox United Church, Killam, a very lovely wedding was performed when Rev. Ken Martin united in a double-ring ceremony, Laval Florence, only daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Luther Reed of Killam and Donald Ernest Peigate, son of Mrs. Lena Ward of Rochester.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and was wearing a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta, featuring a Venise embroidered panel down the front, taffeta bow on the back and high-point sleeves. The tiered veil was held in place by a crown of dainty pearls and crystal jewels and she carried a cascade of red American roses on a stephanotes. Her only attendant was a single attired in ruffled pearl, gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by her aunt Mrs. Rena Aase Chalmers as matron of honor, Mrs. Ellen Reed & Miss Leona Hagey as bridesmaids. All were identical bellerina length gowns of turquoise sheer over taffeta. Their accessories were white & they carried bouquets of yellow and white baby mums. The flower girl, Karen Summers, carried a petite basket of blue baby mums. The groom was attended by his brothers, Leo, of Grassy and Lorne of Killam, and nephew Ron MacPhee from Edmonton. Mr. Merle Reed of Calgary and Mr. Stan Hoyden of Killam acted as ushers. Mrs. Martin Roggenbach played the wedding music, and Miss Diane Gilbert sang, "I'll You Truly" during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Reed chose a white sheath with pink cluster. Her corsage was pink sweetheart roses with pink accessories. The groom's mother, Mrs. Ware, wore a mauve taffeta dress with white accessories and corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

A reception follows, in the church basement, which was beautifully decorated by Mrs. Grant Murray. The bride's table was decorated with tall white tapers, silver bowls of Sweet Williams and bridal wreath, and centered with a bridal wedding cake baked by the bride's mother & decorated by Mrs. J. Bosch

Rev. Martin asked the blessing. Mr. Ed Fee, M.C., read the telegrams. Toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Henry Lutz of Lougheed, and responded to by the groom. Toast to the bridesmaids was proposed by Don Reed and responded by a word of thanks by the bride's father. Miss Donna Brown presided at the guest book. Open house at the brides home, and a dance at the Killam Community Hall followed.

For her going away ensemble the bride chose a two-piece white linen dress with rose trim and white accessories, with an orchid corsage. After a brief honeymoon at Edmonton and points North the happy couple will reside at Calgary.

Open House For Peter Myrehaugs

SEDGEWICK — Open House was held recently in the Lutheran Sunday School hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Myrehaug. Miss Irene Myrehaug was in charge of the guest book. At the front of the hall, the beautiful wedding cake centered the bride's table, with lighted tapers on each side. On display was the brides wedding gown and wedding photos. Many lovely gifts were received by the couple. Lunch was served.

GADGETS HAVE A PURPOSE!

Remember the old Model "T" Ford? It was a useful old boy in its day Even though it wasn't equipped with the many gadgets that decorate the modern car, "Old Henry" saved the weary pioneer many miles of walking, or fussing with a team and buggy. There were times of course when the "flivver" exacted as much time and fussing as a team and buggy. When a rain blew up it was a race to beat the weather, in digging out, sorting and "stringing" the side curtains and buttoning them down, making sure the top was "screwed" down tight and the two-piece wind shield was tightly closed. The whole family would pack into the car and head for home. When you came to a corned you had to unsnap a side curtain ,stick your arm out through the opening and signal your intensation. By golly they were good days though. Today the modern automobile is equipped with no end of devices for the convenience of the driver, and not the least among these is the turning signal device, low this is a gadget which has a very definite purpose, which is to warn other motorists that you intend to do something other than follow the straightaway. But you'd be surprised how many drivers use it for other purposes. It becomes useless unless used properly. There's the guy who turns on his signal as he makes a turn, certain in the belief that the signal will help him around the corner; there's also the driver who snaps on his signal as he very last second ,confident that the silly guy behind him should know he was going to turn off anyway. This failure to signal in plenty of time will continue to cause accidents. Oh yes, then there's the one who leaves his signal on after the turn, and travels for miles straight through every intersection. You follow him with mounting anger until finally you decide to pass, and right then he decides to turn. You get angier, and at that moment you yourself become an unsafe driver. Any motorist who stubbornly declines to accomodate other drivers by letting them know his intentions, places himself and others in great danger. Signalling every movement well in advance is a protection to the motorist, for without a signal other drivers have no way of knowing your intentions. Make the most of your car's signalling equipment — for your own good and the good of others.

WHEN M. P'S MOVE THEY MOVE BIG!

During the past five or six years one of the hardest things our M. P's have been able to do, is get up off their knees and get moving on things that needed doing. They have spent hours, days and weeks wrangling over nonsinsical issues that should have been finalized in brief. All this for political advantage of one kind and another. But one thing you can say for our federal members is that when they decide to move, they move. It took them only a few hours to double their own pay. In simple figures they have gone from 8 plus 2, to 12 plus 6 (thousands that is). With the saving they get in tax free salary, it does in effect just about double their pay. Are they worth it? Yes, if they do their job. But along with the raise should have gone a "rider" that absenteeism from the House during a session (without good and just cause) brings on a fine for each day absent. We pay our members for doing our business, in the House. They have no more right to neglect their duty as a workman than anybody else, and in so doing should suffer the same penalties.

MY SISTER WAS DEAF!

As time passed my sister was more tied, and they lived not very far from us, on a farm of their own.

When their son Donny was about 4 or 5 years of age, my sister taught him to ask the Blessing at meal time. They were all at our house for dinner one day, as we were all very anxious to hear Donny say Grace. We all bowed our heads as Donny's mother said, "Alright Donny, ask the Bless-ing." Donny, with head bowed and we hands folded, without a sign of a smile on his face, said "1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10, Amen". "Amen," said my sister and proceeded to help wee Donny to some food not knowing for a moment that Donny had played a trick on her. Young as Donny was, he sensed that no matter what he said, as long as his mother could not see his mouth to read his lips, he was safe to say almost anything, & get away with it. Boy, young scamp.

Of course our children couldn't keep from giggling, and Donny's mother, quick to catch on, looked from one to the other enquiringly, until we explained it to her, making light of it to save Donny from being punished. She was always a good sport even if the joke was on her, so she laughed with us, but remembered Donny never to do it again.

A deaf person's life need not ever become monotonous or dull. My sister was very adept at any and all needle-work, such as embroidering, tatting, knitting, etc., and when we were also was visiting with us, her indispensable work-basket went with her. Sometimes she would take part in the conversation, talking in the monotone so usual with people so handicapped. She read the lips if we talked slowly so she could follow. So she "visited" too, doing some piece of fancy work at the same time.

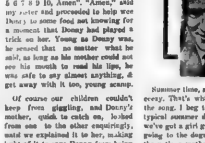
She never complained that life was dull, as she always seemed to find some interesting thing to do to take up her mind and time. When Donny was seven years of age,another boy laddie was added to their family, Norman wasn't more than three years old when the following incident took place, which, even to this day, brings a smile to my face whenever I think of it.

My sister, with the two laddies, would often drive over to see us and stay for the afternoon and sometimes for supper. One day in the fall (it was quite cool) they had driven over, and naturally Norman wanted to go outside and play with the others. As a mother didn't want him to go as he had a bad cold, but Norman insisted. He stood there in front of his mother his head tilted back, face all wrinkled up, mouth wide open looking for all the world as if he were crying his heart out, but not making a sound. Of course his mother did not know what he was screaming his head off about. She shook him, telling him he "hadn't any last noise," adding, "Well, if you stop that screaming you may go out for a little while." The little rascal! He knew how to "work" his mother.

Blanche (my sister) often would remark that "Life is just what you make it," and she proved it true.

She went "home" several years ago, but she left us many memories of her cheerfulness, resourcefulness, and sense of humor, that, taking her deafness into consideration, often made us ashamed of our complainings and grumblings.

So let us be thankful for all our blessings, and, when we feel like moaning and complaining of our lot in life, say, as my sister would say, "My life, woman, whaaa matter? You aren't dead yet."



SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Summer time, and the livin' is easy. That's what the man said in the song. I beg to differ. Today, a typical summer day at the Smileys, we've got a girl going to camp, a boy going to the dogs, a dog going to the vet's, a mother going around the bend and a father going to seed.

And the livin' is anything but easy. We have spent all our money except the last baby bonus, and there's a month to be put in before we get the next paycheck.

Kim is in the next room, getting ready to go to camp. To hear her talk, in the preceding weeks, her footnight at camp is the only oasis in the bleak and dreary desert which comprises the life of a kid going into grade 8. Her method of preparing for camp is a familiar one to many parents. She's lying on her bed making comic books.

Six weeks ago our son was an outward grade 11 student who permitted the piano three hours a day, beginning at 7 a.m., did his homework, received a nominal allowance, went to bed at a reasonable hour, & endured the company of females. Now he is an orange-pitier in one of our mighty chain stores, and as a result, wealthy, a devotee of the mid eight dance, and as lively as a log until noon, time to go to work.

Today is his day off, and he is down at the beach giving the teenage tourist girls a treat, or he's tearing around in some delinquent's car, or he's trying to drown himself on somebody's water-skis out in the bay. Who knows? His parents don't. We'll be lucky if he's home in time to eat his usual eight pounds of supper before he casually mentions that he's off to the dance at the local sin-pit.

As for our little black spaniel, Playboy, he's never confessed to me anybody. Recently he lost an eye when he got smart with a tomcat. He was at the vet's for a couple weeks, while the damage was repaired. Now each time he gets out of the yard, he vanishes smartly, and no amount of whistling or bone-waving will recall him. Ten minutes later, we get a call from the vet. "Have you seen your dog lately? Me? Well, he's back again." He has fallen in love with either the vet or some dimpled lady dog who was in hospital with him, because he goes hieing off to the vet's, seven blocks away, every time he gets loose.

And he gets loose much too often. This week he fell frantically in love with a vast, tired, nine-year-old mutt named Sheba. Playboy did everything but sing Indian Love Call to prove his passion. The beast was not impressed.

Today the pup is sitting on his tummy in the yard, glaring with appalling ferocity about his domain, while the black squirrels, cats, and butterflies, secure in the knowledge that he couldn't lick a baby robin with both wings tied behind his back, flit around on the lawn just out of reach.

Downstairs, my wife is fussing & cussing over the ironing, the sewing on of labels, the searching for last year's sleeping bag. This is on the list of tired.

Below that she is glowing over the visitors arriving tomorrow, the fact that we don't know what time Kim's boat leaves for camp, and the realization that the new clothesline I installed at the cost of complete damnation of my soul (persisting) doesn't work worth a diddle. There are several other items of danger down.

Within the last hour, we've had at the garden gate seven sailors. The first was a vast, lappy, pixatered, commercial fisherman, who wanted to know where the piano was. It was his birthday, and he caught a dozen lobs trout. It turned out that a lady a block away was advertising a baby grand for sale. You figure out why a commercial fisherman, drunk, wanted to buy a baby grand.

Another apparition was a tourist woman. Her car had stopped just beside our garden. She said her daughter was a cycle vaudier, whatever that is, and the kid had been in the hospital all day, and it was so hot and her husband was at the cottage, and she couldn't get the car started and what-who-was, she started to bawl. I fetched a mechanic.

And just 5 minutes ago I received a call from Old Bilsher, an old pir force friend of mine who is a ranched, bear-hound aficionado. Said he was in Elmberg (real name Elmvale) only 18 miles away, and just thought he might as well give me a hoot.

What else could I do? I asked him up for a couple of days. It was only after I hung up, and saw my wife's face, that I remembered our former rector and his wife had been asked to spend the identical pair of days with us.

Central High Students Top Alta. Average

SEDGEWICK — Final results for grade 12 Departmental Examinations are in and tabulations of the results have been completed. In scanning the results the Community Press was impressed with some of the marks and the averages obtained. It appears that Central High is steadily improving its averages in the grade 12 field, and the teaching staff, principal and students warrant a bit of commendation on the 1962-63 results.

There were a total of 186 papers written and of these a total of 122 received 50 percent or better, which is an average of 65.6. The provincial average in this respect is 60.

Some of the marks obtained would be classed as very good, when compared with provincial averages, and an interesting feature of the year was the fact that a good percentage of the Matriculation students made good passes, with a number being higher than the provincial average.

The Community Press is appreciative of the opportunity to look over the results and joins in congratulating the students, the staff and principal of Central High.

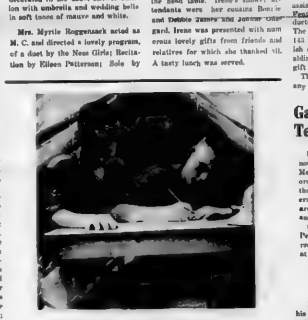
A Letter To Mom. . .



WINNIPEG — Dale Kelly, left, of Edmonton, is writing sure Brian Johnson of Sedgewick, Alberta, gets all the facts right in a letter home to Mom. The boys, on a two-week junior leader course at the Army's Clear Lake cadet camp in Riding Mountain National Park, Manitoba, are experiencing their first trip away from home and their initial stay in a military camp. Army authorities who run the courses provide postcards and insist each boy writes at least one letter home each week. About 750 cadets from the 4 western provinces and the N. W. THAT M. P. PAY RAISE AGAIN!

The fact that Mr. Diefenbaker has been recorded in the House as opposed to the recent pay increases for members of Parliament, brings forth some salient points of interest and some pertinent questions to observers.

There is little doubt, for instance, that Mr. Diefenbaker is in disfavor with members of his own party, some of whom make no secret of the fact that they would like to see him ousted as party leader. There is little doubt, too, that Mr. Diefenbaker realized that his own backbenchers wanted the pay hike, and in some respects deserved it. Particularly is this true with respect to western members. There is little doubt, too, that in this realization Mr. Diefenbaker was acting more from political manoeuvering than from an astute and administrative look at the subject. The truth of the matter is that he hopes to make political hay out of a situation which he realized to exist. All the more obvious this hope becomes, by the fact that he himself considered the same Bill while he was Prime Minister. That he was ruled by indecision while he was heading a government, no doubt ruled his thinking in not presenting the Bill to the House. His recent negative vote, while perhaps enhancing his standing with the electorate, who always are impressed with the fact that public servants are overpaid, has put him in jeopardy with his own members, who are likely to remember his actions come convention time. Thus it would almost appear to be a safe prediction that Mr. Diefenbaker will not be around as party leader too much longer. A man in his position cannot eat his cake and have it too. One always wonders whether or not a man is sincere when he opposes a move. Will Mr. Diefenbaker accept the increase or will he do as one member has promised to do, turn part of it over to his constituency for loca limprovements, because, inesmance he just doesn't think he's worth it.

What has been said here before, may bear repeating, and it that good, honest, sincere members of parliament are worth the increase. Canada has grown up considerably in the past few years, and today occupies a position of importance in the world affairs. She deserves the best administration available, and one way to get them is to offer suitable remuneration. This is not the only way of course, as high pay will also attract the greedy incompetent; but it will offer a pay attraction to people of ability.

To take the pressure off public opinion on the matter, this corner still thinks it would be a good idea to introduce some measure which will assure members' attendance during sessions. A dock in pay for absenteeism could be the answer. There's nothing that induces a workman to apply himself more than a pay dockage.

It has been suggested that putting "watchdogs" in our elected members of parliament would be an undignified procedure and one unworthy of Canada, but, frankly, at $18,000 per we can't afford the luxury of dignity.

This week's Tid-bit — Switching tires from one position to another on the car prolongs tire life. Tire switching saves tires by equalizing wear and "exercising" the spare. By switching your tires every 5000 miles and using the spare you can drive 25,000 miles and put only 20,000 miles of wear on each of the tires.

Grain cutting will be general in the district next week.

The C. P. R. is announcing a rate of 1c per mile for the round trip to Vancouver and Victoria, from Aug. 18th to Sept. 2nd. Good 15 days.

21 YEARS AGO

From the Press of August 13, 1942

Pete Sather, north of Lougheed, started cutting barley on Monday morning. This is the first cutting of spring grain in this district.

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cranston and the two children of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hawkins, had their tonsils removed in the Killam Hospital last week.

Portable granaries are being built by C. Zimmel and G. Snow to accommodate the grain crop.

10 YEARS AGO

From the Press of August 13, 1953

In recognition of 25 years of service with the Searle Grain Company, Mr. W. W. "Billy" Rose, agent for the company at Sedgewick, is being given a trip to Winnipeg.

The Community Press was using its editorial column to call for more highway patrol units on the Highway from Strome to Hardisty.

Quite a number from Hardisty took in the Holiahll dance on Friday and all report a good time.

Mrs. H. Wirtz of Calgary is visiting with her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. Kells.

CUTWORM FORECAST!

The 1964 cutworm forecast, released by the Canadian Dept. of Agriculture Research Stations, indicates a reduction in pale western cutworm infestations in the prairie region by next spring.

Last spring infestations and damage were less severe than in 1963, but the true picture was obscured by severe drought conditions in the southern part of the province.

Control measures must be taken against the pale western cutworm even though the 1964 forecast predicts some reduction in numbers. Weed control by cultural and chemical methods should be completed by the end of July and the land left undisturbed from the beginning of August to the middle of September. This will allow a crust to form on the surface of the soil which in turn will prevent western cutworm moths from laying eggs in these fields. The crust should not be disturbed during this period by implements or livestock even if weed growth does develop.

The red-backed cutworm may increase slightly in localized regions but, in general infestations should remain light and spotty. District agriculturists can supply details on the 1964 cutworm forecast and information on control measures.

WEED COMPETITION COSTLY!

Losses in crop yields due to weed competition cost prairie farmers an estimated $5.50 per seeded acre every year according to experiments conducted by the University of Manitoba on 120 farm fields.

The results of these experiments showed a yield reduction of 18.8 per cent in wheat with 100 weeds per square yard. In the same experiments, over a three-year period, a reduction of 11.4 percent occurred in barley with 324 weeds per square yard, 318 percent in oats with 228 and 21.4 percent in flax with 157 weeds per square yard.

The research has also shown that during the early stages of growth, with a given weed population, it takes less time for the weeds of competition to cause the maximum loss in yield.

When weeds and crop emerge at about the same time, competition with wheat, oats and barley starts when they are in the 6-8 leaf stage and its effect depends on the season and severity of weed infestation.

Because of this, spraying, to be effective, should destroy the weeds by the time the crop is in the four-leaf stage. Destroying them at any later stage, although useful to reduce weed-seed populations, may not increase grain yield in the year of spraying.

It has also been shown that early spraying is especially important with the hard-to-kill annuals. As these weeds become older they develop formidable resistance and require heavier dosages of chemical.

PRUNING LILAC BUSHES!

No regular pruning is required for lilac bushes except to remove suckers and dead flower heads. The suckers should be cut back whenever they become fairly numerous and the dead flower heads should be removed after the blooming period.

Care must be taken to leave the buds on the end of the wood when removing dead blossoms. If these tiny swellings at the base of the old blossoms are removed the bushes will not flower the following year. Blossoms on most early flowering shrubs are formed on this year's wood whereas the late flowering varieties form their blossoms on next year's new growth. The purpose of pruning is to produce a graceful well-balanced shrub and to open up the centre to let the air & sunlight in. This is particularly important for healthy wood and flower buds on old shrubs.

These objectives can never be attained by snipping the tips of the branches to make a neat ball. The branches should be rarely clipped except in hedge trimmings where the thick bushy growth is required. Sometimes a branch or two must be cut back to give a balanced shape to the shrub. Mr. McCalla says this should always be done by cutting it back to a lateral branch or bud that points outward. Old shrubs which have become "leggy" can be cut back severely but this is better done in the spring. Removing branches later in the season seems to set the shrub back and it takes longer to recover than when the operation is performed before leaves come out.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Some people are addicted to drugs, others to drink, some to the weed, others to women. Teachers are addicted to summer courses. Why?

Ask a teacher and he'll tell you. "To improve my professional competence." Ask the chairmen of the school board and he'll tell you, "So we can demand more money." Ask the teacher's wife, if you want the real truth: "So he can get down to the city there and have a big time running around and living it up while I'm stuck here at home with the kids." They're all equally right.

That's why I've been taking a Refresher Course in English. And do not think it hasn't been refreshing. It started off in rip-snorting style and the pace hasn't let up for a minute. Girls, drink, bawdy conversation and wild reunions with old cronies.

I hadn't really intended to get involved in anything beyond a few love affairs and half a dozen nights on the town. That's why I picked out what I thought was a fairly quiet spot to stay. My illusions were dispelled even before I got dressed in the morning. There was a surreptitious tap on my door. I opened it & was confronted by two young ladies both stark naked and grinning broadly.

Talk about your Professo affair. "Hi, Uncle Bill!" chortled my nieces, Jenny and Susie, aged four & three.

Well, that wasn't so bad. I'm used to bare-bottomed little girls, and there were the only ones I had anything to do with while I was away, so help me Moon.

But the drink was another matter. I couldn't seem to stay off it without the old Trouble 'n' Strife there to keep an eye on me. Morning, noon and night I was into the stuff. I'm no slick at coffee it'll be a day in your home, where a man can have an honest beer after a hard day's work washing the dishes and answering his new picnic table.

Then there was the shocking confession I was exposed to. At first the dialogue runs on pretty conventional lines. You know, stuff like, "When are you going to eat the grass? The place looks like The Petrified Forest." Or, "Hey, Dad, will you take us for a swim and play badminton with us and go bowling with us and give us our allowance and buy some watermelon and ice cream and a boat so we can go waterskiing and can I drive the car?"

Pretty tame stuff. But on the course, there were no restraints. Just a bunch of men, out for a good time, and no holds barred. You should have heard me throwing the bawdy talk around. Like, "Yeah, my woman's the same. Starts early." And, "Yep, these modern kids are spoiling rotten." And, "Gorsa I gotta gotcha new car, Sadj's shot." And a lot of stimulating stuff like that.

But this was nothing compared to the wild times at night. That's when we really cut loose. I'll never forget the first night I threw caution to the winds. Met a couple of boys downtown in a bar and had a pretty raucous time, talking about how they had a hell of a time getting their kids to practise the piano too.

Well, sir, they just couldn't stay with me. They faded. There I was, at 8.30 p.m., raring to go. And by sheer chance, I got into a terrific reunion with some old mates. It was the night of the premiere of The Great Escape, and I was pinning the medals home. I wandered into the lobby, told the doorman I was an old prisoner-of-war (what the film was about) and he told me to go in.

It was a thrilling show. At least that's what the critics said about it, but I didn't pay much attention. After the show, the old P.O.W's, casualty, grand in rented white dinner jackets and fez with a harmonica in the sash soules. And there was old Elmer, Bergs no life. In fact, twice as large.

I hadn't seen old "El" as I called him, since the day the Russians liberated our camp, back in May 1945. He hadn't seen me since then either. As you can imagine, it was a hilarious reunion. Nothing would do but that I'd have a drink with him. We went off with our arms around each other's shoulders. At least as far as they'd reach. Mine wouldn't go much past the nape of his neck. He had grown. Sideways.

We were just getting nicely into our reunion, and swearing that we'd reforgo the strong bonds of those days behind the wire, and bring our families to visit each other, when El asked if I'd gone straight back to Calgary when I was discharged from the air force. As I've never been in Calgary in my life, I was rather taken aback.

A few minutes later, it had been revealed that Elmer's name was Elwood Middlethorne, and that he thought mine was Bill Wiley, who'd slept in the bunk above his in Stalag Luft 3. It was in Stalag Luft 1. We parted rather coolly, trying to outflank each other for the check.

There's nothing quite as refreshing as a refresher course. At least I can tell my wife that I led my class. Down to the cafeteria every day for coffee break.

Curling Club Prepares For Winter

SEDGEWICK The Sedgewick Curling Club is making plans for the official opening of the new frost-sheet artificial ice curling rink, and for the opening mixed bonspiel.

The Curling Club informs us that the new rink will greatly improve local curling conditions, and that besides the new building, several new features have been added. The curling rink has a cement floor, which will improve the ice, new curtain walls are provided for the fourth sheet, and this year for the first time facilities are available for washing the ice which keeps it much cleaner. The new rink will also be heated so both clothes will no longer be necessary when curling.

There will be openings for approximately twelve new rinks who wish to curl in the men's draw (once a week. The men's dues will remain at $25.00 per year.

It would be greatly appreciated if all organizations wishing to use the ice for banquets, would advise the committee at the first of the season or at the earliest moment.

Cemetery Association

KILLAM — The Killam Cemetery Association held their regular meeting in the town hall on Friday, August 16th with7 members present.

A more satisfactory method of marking unnamed-for graves is being sought. The caretaker agreed to cut grass late in the month and empty tanks in readiness for freeze-up.

No meeting will be held in Sept., but the regular and final meeting of the year will be held Oct. 20th.

Keller - Pope Wedding

LOUGHEED On Saturday, July 20th at 3.00 p.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Killam, a lovely wedding was performed when Fr. McCarthy united in a double-ring ceremony, Irene Jean, only daughter of Mr. & Mrs. H. Pope of Lougheed and Gabriel Kenneth Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keller of Lougheed.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, wearing a floor-length gown of white silk organza with Bolich embroidery and lily-point sleeves. The bride's bouffant four-tiered veil of silk illusion was held in place by a pastel embroidered silk organza cabbage rose. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, ivy and daisies. Her only jewellery was a single strand of cultured pearls, gift of the groom. Her gift to the groom was pleated cuff-links and tie tack.

The bride was attended by her two cousins, Mine Bonnie James and Miss Debbie James of Killam. They were identical street length gowns of lime green chiffon with bolero jackets and white accessories. They carried bouquets of yellow shasta daisies. The groom was attended by his brother Henry Keller, and James Pope, brother of the bride. Mr. Jim Butcher of Lougheed and Don Marcks of Edmonton acted as ushers. Marlene Keller, cousin of the groom sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

An open reception was held from 6.00 to 8.30 p.m. at the home of the bride. The bride's table was decorated with tall pink tapers and centered with a 3-tier wedding cake baked by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Lowther.

Grandad Fleering acted the honorary. Mr. Julius Kemich acted as M. C. Toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Sid James of Killam and responded to by the groom. Mr. Henry Keller responded to the toast to the bridesmaids and read the telegrams. Miss Joann Odegard presided at the guest book. Mrs. Jim Butcher received the gifts for the bride.

For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a blue light wool suit with A-line skirt and white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids. After a honeymoon spent at points North and Jasper, the happy couple will reside in Edmonton.

Out of town guests were from: Compeer, Bede, Meadin, and Major Sask., Prevost, Hardisty, Sedgewick, Killam, Strome, Round Hill, Kelsey, Camrose, Evansdale, Edmonton, Red Deer, Calgary, White Rock, Fort Nelson, Penticton, Darrell, Saskatoon, Kerrobert, Castor, Wainwright and Beamont.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

MEMORIES OF THE LAST WAR

Some one has said, "There is a war in every generation". The period only too true, as the battle-scarred world was still "licking its wounds" from world war 1, when world war 2 followed on its heels.

When war was declared on August 1939, we in Canada especially, did not think it would last very long, could not last long enough to affect our manpower to the extent of taking our young boys. But when we would read in the papers and hear on the radio just how grim the situation was becoming, a terrible fear gripped our hearts, lest it last long enough to take our boys too. Selfish? Possibly, but human nevertheless.

Rowland was 21 years of age, and Andy 20 in 1939. The Canadian Government hadn't got to the place yet where they were conscripting their manpower, but one lads didn't want to go because the Government made them go, so they volunteered.

Andy was the first to go, and he enlisted as an "Electrical Engineer." When we realized our son really was in the army I took advantage of being his mother, and began to cry. But what was done, was done, and there was nothing we could do about it, except to hope and pray it would all be over before he had to go overseas.

Then Rowland, not to be out done by his brother, joined up, followed shortly by Dan (they were taking them at 18 by then). When the three lads would come home on leave, Lynton, who wasn't old enough to join up yet, would don their caps, and different articles of their clothing and parade around thinking how glad he would be when he too could join up. He had no desire to be in the army, but preferred the R.C.A.F. Of course, not being 18 yet, he need a his parents' consent in writing and I flatly refused, so did Dad at first, but Lynton finally wore his Dad down, and our fourth lad was away to camp.

By this time life, to me, was an endless nightmare. I would think of the joys, fun and good times, laughter, everything; even the worry that had made up our lives together there all their growing years. All for what? To go through, God only knew what, to satisfy some politician's greed for power? Every letter, every parcel, was packed with love, and a prayer for their safe, safe return.

Finally all five of our men had donned the uniform of their choice, and had gone to camp, leaving the old home empty. They had spent so many pleasant hours.

In our district, although every lad of age had joined up, came back one by one, some badly wounded in the true accept one, a lad by the name of Austin. So when word reached us that Rowland was "Killed in Action", and "gone west" we all were sick with sorrow. He was such a likable lad, and so young too.

Surely we, who are left, should (and do I hope) treasure the peace bought at such a tremendous price, the lives and limbs of the cream of our country.

Better Response At 1963 Blood Donor Clinic

KILLAM—It is with much appreciation to the people of the district and surrounding area that we report a successful blood donor clinic held in Killam in July, and although we fell short of the quota of 150, it exceeded last year's clinic which was 101. This year was 126.

We wish to take this opportunity on behalf of the blood donor service, to thank each and every individual who donated. A special thanks to the Hospital Aid ladies who served the lovely refreshments, and to Glen Grant and all the young people who staffed the entire clinic from work of unloading and loading, rest beds and registration. We really feel that these young people, too numerous to mention, were responsible for the greater response of donors.

Exhibits Increase At Lougheed Fair

LOUGHEED The exhibits in livestock were very good this year at the Lougheed Fair, in fact the best for number of years, while the quality of work being very good. It was nice to see a number of new exhibitors in livestock from surrounding areas.

The exhibits in the Baking and Needlework sections were up this year, and maintained a balance with 1962 in the other sections.

The most exhibits were entered by Mrs. Wh. ston of Jarrow, a very consistent exhibitor at the Fair. Mrs. Wh.ston and Mrs. G. Mathews of Hardisty tied for the most points in the vegetable section. Most points in Needlework went to Mrs Probst of Lougheed. Most exhibits in Baking and Needlework were by Mrs. H. G. Smith of Irma.

There were quite a number of new exhibitors in the Industrial Flowers, and Vegetable show this year.

Over-all attendance was down a bit from 1962, but an interested crowd viewed the many exhibits.

The Merna Sadd'e Horse activities proved very interest ng, so did the four-team baseball tournament, and the dance later that night.

WEDDING BELLS

BELL — GALLELLY

Pink and yellow gladioli banked the front of All Saint's United Church in Hardisty when Doreen Gallelly became the bride of Roderick John Bell, Rev. W. G. Zwicker performed the double-ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Ronald Gallelly of Edmonton and Mrs. Olive Gallelly of Sedgewick, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bell of Irma.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a two-piece cream nubline linen suit with white accessories. She carried a white Bible centered with white roses and rose bud streamers.

Miss Mary Ferrier was maid of honor. She chose a street length dress of turquoise organza with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of white rose buds centered with yellow mums.

Attending the groom was Mr. Dale Larson of Irma. Mr. Merv King of Irma and Mr. Kenneth Gallelly, bride's brother, were ushers. Organist was Mrs. Edworthy, Hardisty.

A reception was held on the lawn at the bride's home. The bride's table was centered with a 3-tiered wedding cake made and decorated by her aunt Mrs. Harry Munro. Toastmaster was Mr. Douglas Munro, a cousin of the bride. He proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded. After pictures were taken the happy people left for a short honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Bell will make their home in Sedgewick.

ALLIANCE MAN POOL DELEGATE

Mr. H. H. Turner of Alliance has been re-elected Alberta Wheat Pool delegate for District 204, the Easter-Alliance area. He defeated Francis Pax of Castor and Arthur Wilde of Sedgwick. Mr Turner has served as Wheat Pool delegate for nearly 18 years.

Local Girl To Attend N.A.Y.C.

SEDGEWICK — Miss Shirley Culbert of St. John's, Sedgewick will be attending the National Anglican Youth Conference at Huron College, London, Ontario, Aug. 24 to 31.

Attending will be youth delegates from all parts of the world who have been attending the Anglican Congress in Toronto.

The Conference program will include study and discussion under the theme "The Christian and the Modern World", Bible Study, theme addresses and seminar groups will probe this theme. Leading the Conference through theme addresses will be the Rev. John Bothwell, Rector of St. James Parish, Dundas, Ontario. The Bible Study leader Miss Helen Milton, is a former newspaper reporter from Kingston.

Particular topics under discussion in the seminar groups will include, "Science and Belief", "The Ecumenical Movement", "Dating, Marriage and Sex", "Social Problems of Modern Man".

Opening the Conference will be a special service in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ontario, with the guest preacher Rev. H. G. G. Herklots, delegate at large from the Church of England, now in charge of the training programme for teachers in the church schools in England.

It is expected that at the Conference the delegates will have an opportunity to discover and discuss their place as young Christians in this ever changing world.

A Time For Fence Mending

OTTAWA — Clearly there is one thing the new Liberal Government lacks and that is political "savvy". Its handling of the problems that have confronted it has been inept. No one appears to be aware of the political implications of many moves on The Government by its bungling has not increased its status among the Canadian people. By now it should have settled into office and its growing pains should have been ailing. That is not the case. Its prestige is lower than when it took office.

The budget was bad enough. But the Government followed that with the municipal loan degislation. First it was going to drop the legislation then it was going to proceed with it. Finally it summoned the Provincial Premiers to a conference, heard the representations, made changes in the Bill and submitted the altered legislation to the House. This restored and revised of its municipal bill following the rewriting of the budget indicated the Government was in too much of a hurry to get its legislation before the House.

Then came the pay raises for M. P's. The Liberal Government's negotiations with the opposition for the increase in indemnities for members has done it no good at all so far as popularity is concerned. By its unfortunate mismanagement of this ticklish matter the Government has come out of it with a bad smell in the nostrils of the average taxpayer, while Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has emerged smelling like a rose. The Liberals backed up by the other two opposition groups across the Conservative leader of a decided cross. But Mr. Diefenbaker flatly denies this and says that Prime Minister Pearson at no time approached him with any undertaking.

Mr. Pearson had stipulated that he would not introduce the pay raise legislation into the House unless there was a firm undertaking from the leaders o fthe three opposition groups that they would not oppose it. That undertaking was given through their spokesmen by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas & Social Credit Leader Thompson. But Mr. Diefenbaker was not approached directly and managed by some means to avoid giving any undertaking. The spokesmen for the Liberals, Mr. Pickersrill in heading the arrangements for the pay raise with Hon. Gordon Churchill, carried out he had received an undertaking from the Tory leader. Stanley Knowles, spokesman for the NDP group, also thought Mr. Churchill had indicated such an understanding was made by Mr. Diefenbaker.

But when the chips were down Mr. Diefenbaker opposed the measure in the House. He said he thought that $18,000 was too high. When the Liberals forced a recorded vote on the question Mr. Diefenbaker voted against the increase. Mr. Diefenbaker's own backbenchers were somewhat irate over his actions at the time, but they have come to see that their leader is now in a position that he has the pay raise but is also on record as having opposed it. He has the best of both worlds.

Mr. Pickersgill accuses "double cross". But the fact remains he was outmaneuvered and placed his leader in a awkward position. True Mr. Pearson, had he acted as Mr. Mackenzie King undoubtedly would have, would have shelved the bill as soon as Mr. Diefenbaker indicated he was opposed to it. That would have destroyed the Tory leader utterly and completely. His own Tory followers would have turned on him and demanded his head. The Conservative backbenchers wanted the raise.

But for some reason yet to be explained, Mr. Pearson did not act to shelve the bill. There we these close to the Prime Minister who point out that he was genuinely concerned over the financial plight of M. P's Once he had introduced the Bill into the House and proceeded with it he could not drop it even though Mr. Diefenbaker did oppose it.

A hard, tough politician would have made that snap decision in the House and left Mr. Diefenbaker to try and square himself with his own M. P.'s as well as with the members of the other parties. But Mr. Pearson is not and apparently may never be a "hard", tough politician of the Mackenzie King calibre.

Now Mr. Diefenbaker is able to say that he thought $18,000 was too much money and that he was opposed to it. The hefty increase has awoken the ire of many Canadians who have incomes of $4000 or less as well as some Canadians who are paid better than the $8000 average. The vast majority of the M. P.'s in all parties voted in favor of the raise. But it is the Liberal Government that bears the brunt of the criticism. It introduced the Bill and took the responsibility for the measure.

Now the Government has to set about mending its political fences. It has two months summer recess in which to settle down and recoup from the disasters that befell it. The public memory is short and if there is no election for two years perhaps the electorate will have forgotten.

Cynical as it may seem there is no doubt that the increase in the indemnity has strengthened the Liberal Government's chances of retaining in office for two or three years. M. P.'s are going to be rather reluctant to act quickly to dump the minority Government out of office and precipitate a snap election and risk their $18000 indemnities just when they are starting to get back on their financial feet.

There is no desire in the Country for an early election. Seasoned members of Parliament sniffing the air on Parliament Hill before they went home for the summer ventured the prediction that the Liberal minority Government was likely to be in office for at least three years. But who can tell—times change—the political climate alters. It could be that a year or 18 months from now the opposition may think the time ripe.

Whatever criticism might be levelled at the Liberal administration, it cannot be charged with indecision. In fact some of its followers complain that it makes decisions too quickly. In the first 56 days Parliament approved 13 Government bills. Also approved were 24 private bills. Special committees were assembled to launch legislation into defence policy, drug prices and election laws.

A lot of work remains ahead for this Parliament when it resumes sitting on Sept. 30th. The Government's controversial and complicated contributory pension plan will be before the House soon. The administration is nearing an agreement with the U. S. for nuclear warheads and that will stir up a storm.

There is also the Government's decision to bring in legislation to impose a Government trusteeship on 5 maritime trade unions. M. P.'s will have much to say about this when it is introduced. In fact if the explosive situation on the Great Lakes blows up before Sept. 30th the members may be called back from their holidays.

30 YEARS AGO

From Press Files of August 24, 1933

A large crowd of both young and old people attended the "combination" dance in the K. P. Hall Friday evening, August 19th, put on by the Sedgwick Juvenile Band.

All the churches in Lougheed are now supplied with electric power for handing of grain.

George Nichol had the misfortune to upset his car at the curve south of Sandy Grant's on Tuesday, smashing the car badly and cutting his arm so seriously that several stitches were necessary.

Mr. James Scott has decided to retire from business and has sold his stock of the Dayland Red & White Store to Mr. N. Welker.

21 YEARS AGO

From Press Files of August 26, 1942

There are prospects for an unprecedented bumper crop in Western Canada in 1942. Again this year the storage space in public grain elevators is limited and initial delivery quota allotments are small. Farmers are advised therefore, to provide for storage space on farms now.

The Killam Branch of the Red Cross has received an urgent request for two complete units of surgical dressings, to be sent to Headquarters by Sept. 1st.

THE VULTURE WON'T GO AWAY

Dammann - Chromik Wedding

KILLAM — Knox United Church at Killam was the scene of a beautiful wedding on July 27th, 1963 at 2:00 p.m. when Audrey Chromik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chromik of Derwent became the bride of Lawrence K. Dammann, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Dammann of Killam. Rev. Morris performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, looked radiantly lovely in a formal gown of white lace and net over taffeta. The fitted bodice was trimmed at the square neck with beads and sequins and the full-length sleeves came to lily-points at the wrists. The bride's finger-tip veil of net and lace was held in place by a crown of sequins, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. She wore a 3-strand crystal necklace with earrings to match, gift of the groom.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Shirley Dammann, sister of the groom, with Gladys Chromik, sister of the bride and Shirley Ratt, cousin of the groom, as bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a similar dress to the identical bridesmaid's dresses. All were of a pastel shade of colored silk net over taffeta, with white headpieces and shoes. They carried bouquets of white mums.

Attending the groom were Johnny Chromik, brother of the bride, Garry Crosbery, friend of the groom, and Cameron Carlson, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Herb Wilson was the organist.

The bride's mother chose a brown dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mother of the groom wore a 3-piece green ensemble with white accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

A reception was held in the Community Hall for 200 people, which was served by the United Church ladies of Killam. The bridal table was centered with a 3-tier wedding cake. C. C. was Mr. Bill Dammann, brother of the groom, and the toast to the bride was proposed by Reg. Mendel, brother-in-law of the bride, to which the groom responded appropriately.

Among the friends and relatives home for the occasion were, Mr. & Mrs. Bill Dammann of Cloverdale, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman of Mission City B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Phillips of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. T. Frechette of Swanzy, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. T. Clemence of Richlida, Sask; Mr. and Mrs. L. Albrecht (Lorna Hilde) Mr. and Mrs. Gus Quatek, as well as numerous out-of-town guests.

For their honeymoon the bride & groom motored to Banff, Jasper, Seattle and Evurnse, Wash. They will make their home in Killam.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Why do Canadians drink so much? Each year the black line on the bootleg chart rises higher, and the cops are told the horrifying fact that every man, woman and child in this country puts away 16 gallons of hooch and 84 gallons of beer, or some such. Now I know that while you may drink that much, Aunt Mabel, I do not and my kids do not, and I doubt whether their grandmother and grandad somebody is really knocking back the stuff.

Who is the culprit? The villian is not the Canadian temperament, but the Canadian weather.

For eight months of the year we are subjured at every turn to have a nip to keep out the cold. During the other four months, we slosh it down by the bucket to beat the heat. Like unskilled, dull, child labor Canadians who are toiling in their back yards, or at a cottage, or on a bench, or in an air-cooled bar, chuckling in cold beverage. And getting steadily bottle-fed.

I find it difficult to criticize them. I've just been through one of the worst weeks in my life, in the middle of the worst heat wave of the summer, and I feel nothing but sympathy for those who turn to drink in the hot weather. I have been building a picnic table.

The Old Battleaxe has been nagging about one for a couple years. All through February and March she kept seeing them advertised at low, low prices. I wasn't interested (Free, and delivered in the mood for picnic tables while I was shovelling snow in every daylight hour to spare. Secondly, the tables were all of the type that you have to put together yourself, and I had had enough of that recently.

In my time I have put together everything from baby's cots through prefab cupboards and assembled bookcases to backyard swim pools. Inevitably, the baby's cots have turned out looking like bookcases & the swim pools like baby's cots.

Screws never fit. Boards are warped. The plans, which tell you with a sneer that any half-wit can put this thing together, are in variably put together by half-wits.

Result: I go into a deep, fuming trance, and the whole family runs around, just out of reach. The kids quietly go into another part of the house and turn the radio on full.

Ignoring the debacles of the past, I decided to humour the Heckler, buy her a picnic table, and wrestle it together. But suddenly, we found, all those hot bargains had vanished. Picnic tables had soared in value.

"The heck with this," my wife said. "We'll do it the economical way."

We went to the mill, where they cut out the planks and toeboards, I think they sell them. I was a little relieved that she didn't want me to chop a tree & saw up own planks. Lumber was only $19.95. Saved six or ten dollars already. They didn't have any of the regular plans for picnic tables, but they had a plan for a kiddie's table, and the fellow said it was the same principle.

Using tried and true methods, I did not set to work. I called a couple of hunky young conferees and told them to drop around for an nic. I just happened to have a couple spare hammers when they arrived. I claimed I had taked them around for a nail. Three hours, a dozen ales and a hundred nails later, we had two nice pieces of lumber nailed together, none of which seemed to have any connection with the pieces left over. My helpers quit and went out swimming.

Undaunted, I played my next card. Called another friend, an expert in woodworking, and asked him to loan me some tools. Cunningly, when he arrived, I begged him to show me a bit of his skill, mentioned how smart his kids were and spoke of his wife's charm. Within an hour, he had the thing standing up. He told me how to finish it and left.

I started to put in a screw nail. The table began to sway like a chief stallion and the whole ruddy thing collapsed on my left instep with a heart-rending rumble. Hopping very swiftly, I got out the axe and was about to administer the coup de grace but my wife and kids grabbed me around the legs and hung on.

I got the expert back, bribed him with cold drinks, and he finished it. There are about 1300 nails & bolts and screws in it, but it stands 18ft, a monument to sheer ingenuity.

Got my daughter to paint it at 50c an hour. Lumber, harware, beer for the burglers, gin and tonic for the expert, stain and varnish and wages for the painter, and a doctor's bill for a bashed foot brought the total to about $63.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES GET NEW DEAL

EDMONTON — The Postmaster General, the Hon. A. Denis, has announced a change in policy designed to give increased promotional opportunities to postal employees. In future, vacancies at Semi-staff Group 3S offices, of which there are 349 in Canada, will be filled by competition open to postal employees in the Postal District. In the past these positions have been open only to the residents of the community where the vacancy occurred. This change will have specific significance for Postmasters and Assistants in the lower groups at Semi-staff Offices by increasing their chances of promotion within the Postal Service.

In announcing this change, the Postmaster General stated that the Canadian Postmasters' Assn. had been requesting this for many years and he was happy to be in a position of granting this wider field of promotion to the employees of the Department.

BROOKS HORTICULTURAL FIELD DAY!

Work under way to develop Alberta's new and rapidly expanding fresh vegetable industry will be one of the main features of the Brooks Horticultural Station Field Day on August 29th. Visitors attending this annual event will be able to see the vegetable varietal trials and to see the various techniques used to grow and produce on a commercial scale.

Carrots, onions, tomatoes & sweet corn are the main crops in the current program. With harvesting in full swing, machinery and facilities for washing, cooling, grading, packaging and sorting the vegetables will be on view. A newly acquired hydro-cooler to demonstrate how to maintain quality and improve sales appeal will be among the equipment in operation at the time.

Various stages of tree and shrub propogation for the farm windbreak program will be explained to visitors by Station personnel. The ornamental block, perennial border and flow-

NEW SEED TESTING FACILITIES PROCESS!

A new process has been developed for testing germination of high-flavouring fresh beef cuts in a matter of hours, the National Provisioner reports. The "Custom-Aged" process tenders and flavors the beef within 48 hours to achieve characteristics normally obtained with 21 days of wet aging.

The chilled beef is heated to an internal temperature of about 72 degrees F. A solution carrying spores of thamidium is sprayed on the meat. Thamidium is a mold normally found on meat surfaces and is considered to impart the characteristic aged flavor. The thamidium-induced flavor penetrates through and is retained by the meat.

The method can be controlled to tailor the aged flavor to the degree desired. Original development was made at the Roy C. Ingersoll Research Centre, Borg-Warner Corp., Des Plaines, Illinois.

NEW COMMEMORATIVE STAMP DATES CHANGED BY P.O.

A special commemorative postage stamp honouring Sir Martin Frobisher will be released for sale on August 31st instead of July 28th as previously announced. This was made public today by the Honourable Azellus Denis, Postmaster General.

The issue dates of two other stamps will be affected by the change. A stamp to mark the Postal Secretariat, originally scheduled for release on August 31st will now be released on September 25th. The new regular 15 cents air mail stamp which was to be released on Sept. 30th will be issued on October 30th.

Mr. Denis explained that he had set back the release date of the stamp to August 31st in order that the Frobisher stamp could be placed on sale at the time of "Passage 77", a proposed motor vessel trip which was to enter many areas opened originally by Frobisher's explorations. The voyage has now been postponed until 1964.

The Postmaster General explained that cancellation of the voyage became too late to let the stamp schedule stand as previously announced.

The Bible Today

Two centuries ago a man with a Book in his hand planted a church in a new land. In that Book he had read that man should be free to worship according to his conscience. This man, the Rev. Nathan Mason, leader of a band of 12, moved from Swansea, Mass., to what is now Middle Sackville N. B., where in 1763 was established by this group the first Baptist Church in Canada.

Out of that heroic venture of faith has come a Baptist witness which for 200 years has helped to shape the light of God's Word with the world. During April the Middle Sackville and Main St. Sackville Churches united to celebrate their bi-centennial. It was truly a great occasion of remembrance and rededication. The stirring events of the years were recounted. The story of growth of the Baptist cause was told. The challenge of the church's ministry in this new age was presented. The oldest member at 104 cut the birthday cake and a young Explorer lighted the candle of future.

Through this historic celebration a clarion not was heard: "Hear ye the Word of the Lord. Hear what the Spirit is saying to the Churches!" It was made clear that God through His Word is speaking just as surely to us of this 20th century as He did to our forefathers in the 18th century.

FORMER KILLAMITE STARTS 'PONDEROSA'

KILLAM - Teddy Erickson, a lad born and raised in Killam, and his wife Pearl, have left the hustle and bustle of city life and started to build a camp ground and cabins, as well as a fine modern home on Shuswap Lake at Blind Bay. They are situated just off the Trans-Canada Highway, through Rogers Pass and 384th Arm R. C.

It is a gorgeous holiday land of boating and fishing. Ted and Pearl really have the welcome mat out at the "Ponderosa" and are only too happy to meet any old friends, as well as new ones.

School Dropout Big Problem

Next week thousands of students will be going back to the classrooms, but unfortunately there will also be a large number who will not be going back. Instead they will be numbered among the drop-outs, who, rather than pursue further their scholastic training, will be entering the labor market.

Statistics say that of the estimated 350,000 students entering the secondary schools this fall, some 175,000 will drop out before junior matriculation, or grade 11. Getting closer to home, the same statistics reveal that out of every 100 students entering secondary schools in Alberta, 25 will drop out before grade 11. This 25 percent will have to be prematurely absorbed into the labour market, or become a cure on the provincial welfare.

A great many of these dropouts will admit later, as their counterparts have in the past, that it was a mistake to quit school for the thrill of a pay check. They will find that the employment market no longer wants the uneducated, and that failing to obtain employment, they will be compelled in turn to welfare, or become unemployed delinquents, of whom there is already a surplus.

The National Employment Service says it is extremely difficult to place anyone with less than a grade 10 education, and that even when they are taken on, they are the first to be laid off. A recent survey in Toronto alone showed 19,245 unfilled jobs for skilled workers, while 22, 000 unplaced applicants could not qualify. Multiply that by all of Canada and we begin to see that the unemployed situation will never be relived with unskilled and uneducated labor forces. Every new device in the field of automation is a means of eliminating man from the field of labor. But these devices require the attention of skilled personnel. The untrained lose their positions. Thus we see that the untrained condemn themselves to a lifetime handicap. Many of them marry early, and with families to support, will require assistance for some time to come. They become anti-social and anti-agonistic, and they strike back at society for their own failures, and become leaders in lawbreaking.

It is not only the uneducated who are dropouts. Many of the potential bright minds at our age are included. They just become fed up with school and take the easy way out. Diversion can take their toll. It is shown that cars and books do not mix. Of students who drive cars less than twenty-five percent make passing marks.

But there is another angle to the serious situation, and it is parents who push their children into scholastic courses they are not suited for or equipped for. Better to let them drift into the practical end of schooling such as machine shop, electricity or woodwork, etc., and keep them in school.

Next week, let it be the determination of every student in future to the classrooms, further education, and prepare to take a rightful place in the world of profession and employment.

F.U.A. Newsletter

● There has been a time when the farmers in Canada were a powerful political force. Today that power is gone. The number of farmers has decreased rapidly, while at the same time the urban population showed remarkable increase. Another reason for the declining political influence of the farm community is that farmers have been unable to unite. A cabinet minister in Ottawa once said: "Farmers could do not pay too much attention to groups as mixed up as farmers' organizations." This was nothing more than a statement of fact. It is, however, a warning also. Not only government ministers have made this fact and pointed out the damaging results. Everyone who has studied the problems facing Canadian agriculture has arrived at that same conclusion. Too many farmers, one never seem to think that they can go it all alone, that not paying a paltry, mere heralip fee to the farmers' organization and not letting their voice be heard through this organization in the councils of the nation, is a real saving in time and effort. No saving costs them more than this one.

When the peace treaty of Utrecht was prepared in 1711, one of the diplomats remarked to the Dutch representatives: "We talk here for you, in your own country, but don't even consult you anymore." By this treaty Holland, which had been a world power, was reduced to a second class nation. From then on the Dutch voice wasn't heard for scores of years. The country had to abide by the decisions made by others.

The Canadian farm community is dangerously close to being in that same position, others doing the talking, others making the decisions without even asking whether those decisions are acceptable or not to the people concerned. In other words the Canadian farmers are in great danger of becoming second class citizens. No saving in money and time will ever compensate for that loss.

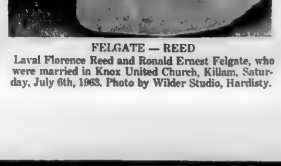
Nobody needs a University degree to see that staying on the side lines doesn't help anybody. Taking part in the game can lead to victory. One would suppose that farmers know by now that the good things in life are there for the taking, but the taking requires a little effort.

Retail Merchants Dislike Retail Sales Tax

The Alberta Division of the Retail Merchants Assn. of Canada, Inc. in a brief filed with the Royal Commission on Taxation, said Retailers dislike a Provincial Retail Sales Tax and should be avoided by the Government, at all costs, until absolutely necessary. "If and when levied, a Retail Sales Tax should be imposed at the lowest possible rate, eliminate exemptions andextend application to the rapidly growing service industry," said R.M.A. The brief voiced disapproval of proposals for an Indirect Retail Sales Tax and described it as a tax imposed on businessmen for the privilege of selling at retail and a system which would transfer the legal incidence of the tax from the purchaser to the vendor. The Retailers favored retention of the present base for the Federal Sales Tax but contended changes in legislation were indicated to modify exemptions and remove inequities.

ONE IN THIRTEEN FEDERAL EMPLOYEES HURT AT WORK

More than 19000 federal government employees suffered injuries on the job during the fiscal year 1962-63. While most of the injuries were minor ones, 4,272 were serious enough to keep employees away from work for various lengths of time. In the 12 month period, 17 government employees were killed on the job, and another 8 suffered permanent disabilities for which they are receiving continuing compensation on the basis of the number of people covered, one federal employee in thirteen had an accident of some kind during the year, and one in 39 had an accident causing some loss of time. About one in 2260 had a claim for permanent disability, and about one in 14000 died as a result of an accident on the job. The report covers 227096 employees of government departments, crown corporations and other federal agencies all across the country. These employees are protected by the Government Employees Compensation Act which provides for accident compensation to federal employees through the facilities of provincial Workmen's Compensation Boards. Federal employees work at just about every kind of job carried on in Canada, including some found in the public service, and their jobs often take them to the most remote parts of Canada. Many of these jobs are more hazardous than the average. For instance, government employees work in surveys by air, land and water. They work underwater on projects connected with harbours and defence. Some mine or process radioactive materials, others manufacture explosives. Many work on research and development of explosives, chemicals or weapons.



Rain, Rain, Go Away, Come Again Another Day (in 64)

The plaintive cry of the old nursery story, "Rain, rain, go away, come again another day," might be heard again these days by the grain farmers of the area. Yes, go away, and come again after harvest.

Operations in the grain fields were "cracking" at full force until the week end, when a rain of several hours duration put a stop to everything. Hundreds of acres are in the swath and many others in stooks, and dry weather is needed to put the grain into the bins. If the crops are to the frost for another two or three weeks, the area will harvest one of the finest crops in many years.

Work is well advanced in the area of rape seed, mustard, rye and barley, with these crops going all the way from 30 to 50 bushels per acre. Oats, while a little later, are expected to yield all the way up to 90. Some swathing of wheat has taken place, and in a few instances some straight combining has been done. Yields and grades are expected to be from fair to very good.

A major problem for grain farmers this year appears to be that of storage. Local elevators are mostly plugged, terminals are full, and the farmers are having bins built at an unprecedented rate. Local lumber yards are erecting granaries just as rapidly as crews can turn them out.

Labor Day Weekend

The number of people killed over long holiday periods such as Labor Day Weekend usually makes the headlines and news bulletins. However, they don't tell the whole story of the need for extra caution when driving.

Consider the hundreds more who are involved in traffic accidents that aren't killed. Many of them will be disabled for life and become a burden on themselves, their family and everyone who knows and loves them. The fact that you've insured doesn't make a wheelchair more pleasant.

Consider the consequences before you step into a car after having "a few for the road". Consider them before you decide to get some place by a certain time regardless of road conditions or traffic or speed limits.

If you accept your responsibility for alert, cure dente driving, you'll avoid that ace dent that could seriously impair your earning future.

Think about it — while there is time. Time was out on 71 Canadians during last year's Labor Day celebration. One Alberta was killed.

HONORABLE HARRY HAYS Minister Of Agriculture

The Honorable Harry Hays, who became Federal Minister of Agriculture on April 22, 1963, is an internationally known breeder, exporter and auctioneer of purebred livestock.

Mr. Hays has served as mayor of Calgary since 1953.

Born Christmas Day, 1909, at Carstairs, Alberta, he later moved with his parents to a farm at the outskirts of Calgary. His interest in the cattle export business began in 1932 when he became associated in partnership with the Holstein-Friesian Association of Alberta. A year later he became the first Canadian to ship purebred dairy cattle to Britain, and in following years, to several other countries. In 1946, as president of Hays Farms Limited in Ontario, he became the first cattle exporter to ship by air. The cattle were flown from Toronto to Cuba. Hays Farms also was the first to breed Ankonas to export cattle to Spain and Italy.

Prior to assuming office as mayor of Mr. Hays in an average year ran ed some 35,000 miles, selling 62 million worth of livestock. By the time he relinquished his interests in the Ontario farm to a brother, the farm, with shipments to 23 countries, was the biggest exporter of purebred livestock in North America.

In 1943 he purchased Hays and Company, the family farm business of which he was president. A few years later, however, he sold most of the property, retaining the farmhouse which has been his home ever since 1924. Mr. Hays owns a ranch with several hundred head of livestock near Hay River, Alta., which contains part of the original Bye-U ranch. Mr. Hays has been active in agricultural, business and community affairs.

Among these he has served on the executive of the Holstein-Friesian Assn. of Canada, the largest purebred livestock association in the Commonwealth, and on the executive of the Alberta Cattle & Sheep Breeders' Assn. He was president of the Canadian Swine Breeders' Assn. during World War 2 when producers supplied 800 million pounds of pork for export to Britain. A past president of the Southern Egg & Poultry Producers' Assn. and the Alberta Holstein Friesian Assn. Mr. Hays is also honorary president and past director of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Board.

He is married to the former Muriel Bigland of Calgary. They have 1 son, Don, who is studying law at the University of Toronto.

Good Storage Prevents Grain Losses

The prospect of bumper grain crops this year means that farmers will be faced with storage problems on a large scale, and the danger of large losses. Success in solving problems connected with the safe storage of grain on the farm depends on two conditions (1) proper preparation of granaries and other grain storage buildings; and (2) care and attention before storage begins.

Causes of Losses: Insects, mites and moulds are the main causes of grain spoilage. The insects and mites that attack stored grain live and breed in grain residues inside and outside granaries. Preferred breeding places inside a granary include floor and wall cracks, spaces behind wall studs and dirt and dust on the ledges and floors. This knowledge of where insects occur makes it easier to control them.

Good Storage Practices: Some of the farm practices that help to safeguard grain stocks during the storing period are: (1) Harvest grain as dry as possible since insects seem to thrive on tough grain. Grain that is cut dry and binned in a clean dry, well-ventilated building will not spoil. (2) Repair and weatherproof granaries to keep out rain and snow. (3)Clean walls and floors of empty bins and then spray them with a residual spray. Insecticides should be applied at least ten days before the grain is binned. (4) A granary with a wooden floor above the ground is best for farm storage. Cover concrete floors with moisture-proof paper. Fill granaries to the plate only to provide good ventilation.

A Special Problem! Grain grown kernels in wheat is likely to be a new loss and costly degrading factor this year. Green and shrunken kernels just do not "weigh-up" on scales & the result is lower grades. It doesn't pay to harvest grain before it is fully mature.

THE POPULATION EXPLOSION!

Professor Fred Bentley, Dean of Agriculture at the U. of A., earned for himself a pointed but rude headline in the daily papers recently by some of his remarks concerning the current so-called population explosion. The headline bluntly stated that "Man Is Breeding Himself To Disease," and credits the remark to Prof. Bentley, The Prof. went on to say that man is doing a remarkable job of breeding himself into a terrifying future of poverty, and that arrogance and ignorance of white people, especially Canadians, is one of the most serious aspects of the population problem. While Prof. Bentley did mention it in a rather insignificant way, he might well have expanded on the theory of nature and her capacity for keeping things in balance. True, we have made greater progress with our death control problem than we have with birth control, as Mr. Bentley says, but no doubt he realizes that here we are dealing with two aspects of human endeavor which are at variance one with the other. The one we abhor because of a lack of understanding, and the other we like because procreation is a God-given gift to mankind.

I don't know how or why the Professor got away from his chosen pastureland to the realm of human relations, but since he did, it carried me back to the years of not too long ago when organized coyote hunts were the order of the day. Do away with the coyote we said and bring peace and quiet to the farmstead. We learned, slightly, that by so doing we brought on plagues of another kind, and from this we found that nine times out of ten it doesn't pay to monkey around with nature unless you know what you're doing. She has a peculiar capacity for running her own business, and will do it much better without the bungling antics of man.

We need more grain, we said for years, so we brush off the land, cultivate unsuitable soil, fill the bins, live high, and nature, not being able to do her job properly is compelled to let the elements reduce the land to a state of poverty. We learned, slightly, and put millions of trees back where they belonged, put the land back into grass, and profited thereby.

Now they tell us we are overpopulating the world with people. We're stupid, we're ignorant; and Canadians are the worst offenders because our reproduction rate is a bit above the world average. Canada, with 20 million people and a land area capable of accomodating 150 million, and Mr. Bentley states that we are breeding ourselves into eventual poverty. Rather than the fact that we have not learned to control our family size, it should be emphasized that we have not yet learned how to contend with nature. We have not learned how to live with her in compatibility. We have not learned to let her do for us what she is willing to do. Furthermore we have not yet learned how to live among ourselves and with the rest of the world, to make the best use of ourselves and what we are able to produce. I do not believe that the only alternative to birth control, is death control by war, famine and disease. Another alternative is for mankind to open its eyes, look around and see the glory, the wonders and the potential of the universe, and use it wisely. True, war, famine and disease will play its part as it always has, for that is, in part, nature at work to restore the balance that humanity has upset.

★ MACDUFF REPORT
New Deal For Wheat

OTTAWA — An election promise the Liberal Government would like to forget is the $2 floor price for wheat. A special committee of the Cabinet has been given a long and hard look at that promise along with other agriculture policies with the view to making some revisions.

Early in the session of Parliament that will resume after September 30, it is understood, the Administration will have a positive statement on agricultural policy to make which in the hoped will take the pressure off the Cabinet for the $2 floor price. It will probably announce at the same time that the $2 floor price his been dropped.

This may be linked to a statement that the Government is considering legislation to provide for a two-price system for wheat, on the basis of the unit quota. Under such a system farmers would be paid a price for wheat used in domestic human consumption which reflects the fact that they buy their production requirements in a tariff protected market and sell in world markets. Such a policy would be effected by a consumer subsidy and consequently would cause no rise in the price of bread.

These are questions under consideration by the special committee. It is headed by Prime Minister Pearson. Other members include Trade and Commerce Minister Nicholl Sharp, Agriculture Minister Harry Hays and Hon. Rene Tremblay, who will be named Eastern Agriculture Minister shortly after the next session starts.

There have been rumours in the grain trade for some time that a decline was coming in export prices of wheat. This month shortly after the announcement of the second long-term wheat deal with China, the Canadian Wheat Board disclosed that there had been a decline. The price for No. 1 for example slipped from 1.93 1/4 down to 192 1.4 while No. 4 grade went from 183 3/4 to 178 3/4.

Faced with forecasts that the export prices of wheat would drop the Government was somewhat reluctant to embark on any floor price program fixing the floor at $2. As matters stand now the drain on the Federal treasury would increase. It could cost millions. This is a big factor considered against instituting any such policy.

The Government also saw its agricultural stabilization plan emphatically rejected by the Western farmers in the 1962 general election. The only Liberal elected from the Prairies who was eligible for the agricultural portfolio was Jack Cahoon who Mr. Hays. The Party's other agricultural candidates went down to resound big defeats including Hazen Argue, former Prairie spokesman in the last Parliament on the Liberal side.

Trade expansion of the whole picture arising out of developments in the United States and the prospects of a massive Western Canadian crop this fall, all complicate the situation. Faced with these complexities the Government is inclined to abandon the floor price program.

Meantime the Prairie Liberals want a decision out of the Government as soon as possible. They don't like the continual deferment. The Government should either drop the plan altogether or proceed with it, but not leave it hanging, they say. They may soon get their wish.

The Government was relieved when the Canadien Wheat Board negotiators came up with a second long-term agreement with the Communist China. It is valued at $300,000,000 or more than the Western farmer. Under the deal China will take a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels over the next three years and up to a maximum of 186,700,000 bushels.

The new deal with China is almost a duplicate of the first signed when the Conservative Government was in office. It too was negotiated by the Wheat Board although Agriculture Minister Hamilton left the impression that he had much to do with the negotiating and signing of the agreement. However, it has now been disclosed that he left for Hong Kong, ostensibly to complete the deal, four days after it had been signed in Peking by the Wheat Board officials.

Trade and Commerce Minister Sharp has made it plain to the main bars of Parliament that it is the farmers' Wheat Board that does the negotiating for these deals. It was the Wheat Board that did the clinching and final negotiating in Mr. Hamilton's day and it is still the Wheat Board that does the hard work of haromering out terms of an agreement.

The new deal differs from the old one in two respects. There is no barley to be sold to the Chinese. They don't want barley this time. In the last agreement they took 28,000,000 bushels of barley. And also this time the Chinese proved to be very hard bargainers. They bluntly told the Wheat Board that they were using Canada had a new Government that was anxious to make wheat sales, and that this country was facing a bumper wheat crop in the fall that would add greatly to its surplus wheat stocks. Under those circumstances they said, Canada should be ready and willing to make certain concessions to sell wheat.

One of the concessions was an extension of the repayment period. From 12 months to 18 months. In addition there is an implied acceptance by the Federal Government of greater Red Chinese exports to Canada including textiles. This is quite a concession because it involves the super sensitive field of trade where any increase of imports brings loud protests from the Canadian textile manufacturers. However the Chinese state trading corporations have agreed to limit their exports of sensitive items.

The special Cabinet Committee looking into the agricultural policies is particularly concerned about the tendency among Western farmers to keep planting wheat in increasing amounts. The Prairie wheat growers were encouraged last year by the former Agriculture Minister, Hamilton, to grow greater amounts of the grain. This simply added to Canada's already large surpluses.

The committee has no thought of imposing any direct Government control over meeting. But it hopes by means of long-range forecasts and through the advice of experts, to persuade farmers to move into the other crops. This might be done at the annual Federal-Provincial agricultural conference usually held early in the year when the experts submit their market forecasts.

There is also no awareness within the Government that the Western farmer has a legitimate complaint that his interests have been subordinated over the years to the interests of the Western farmer. The Government hopes through the appointment of a second Minister of Agriculture to meet those complaints and to take action to meet some of the long-standing complaints of the East.

SUGAR and SPICE
By Bill Smiley

If you hear any rude noises while you're reading this column, pay no attention. It will merely be my stomach trying to remind me that I am not the Emperor Nero.

For the past couple of weeks I've been trying to convince the old grocery-clerk, through one crazy after another, that a nude bundle saying thing I chose to throw into it; halfraw steak on top of skunky beer, raspberries and ice cream on top of gin and lemon.

All I'm trying to say is that we poor people, simply because we have some summer holidays, shouldn't start acting as though life were just a gay, mad whirl, a big load of caviar. It's more like a blind stagger, a bowl of cornflakes.

As our most recent carload of old-friend visitors faded into the exhaust fumes, and I were a dusty farewell, I can't help thinking nostalgically of those good old days when I was a weekly editor and had one week's vacation a year. Everything was so simple. You went to the editors annual convention, tottered home looking and feeling like a skeleton, and then casually began to work for another fifty-one weeks.

Now that I have those longer holidays that the rest of the boys are golden, I realize that mine is a creature of toil, and is happier and better when he has his nose to the old grindstone, his shoulder to the good old wheel, and his feet planted contentedly in that good, old, familiar rut.

Lengthy summer holidays, and I say it with deliberation, are a menace to health, happiness, morals and marriage.

The health. When my holidays began, I was in good shape. Just the usual smoker's hack, cracked knee, and touch of arthritis in the shoulder, and aching back. But clear of mind, steady of nerve. Today, I'm a wreck. My memory is peeling, my stomach is snarling like a scalded cat, and every time a car stops outside our place I run and hide in the attic.

My wife is in even worse condition. When holidays began, she was pale but pretty. Today, she is brown on the outside, but a whimpering shadow within. And no wonder. Just the other day, for example, she was about to step from a dock into the dock of a millionaire's cruiser. The gentleman, who can run eight consecutive miles one hand behind him, can't run his boat. As she stepped, he put it in reverse by accident.

At present I'm using the old girl, with only ten feet of air between her and fourteen feet of water. It was like one of those curious comedies in which the hero runs off the edge of a cliff and keeps running in air for a second until he looks down. I may add that she didn't have her swimming attire on.

The morals don't never be the same girl. On the way to her watery welcome, she hit the dock a couple of good ones, leaving about a foot of skin off her arm, and picking up a bruise on her nice tanned leg the size of a grapefruit and, next day, the color of a baboon's bottom. She's off mid'ionaire boat drivers for life.

Take wealth. When we began the holidays, I had two month's salary to put me through the summer. At the end of one month, I had no month's salary and a session with the bank manager.

It seems that when you're working, you can't spend money. When you're not, you can't. Most people save up for their holidays and blow the lot on a glorious two weeks doing something, or staying somewhere, they can't afford. Try doing this for two months.

Take vocation. Probably, after six weeks off the job, I have become a total slob. It rhyme but it doesn't reason. My total accomplishment, on projects around the house, has been the erection of a twenty-foot clothes line. On the back I was going to write this summer has turned into a comic book. My wife laughs every time I mention it. Children Imitate. When the kids see their old man lolling in a lawn chair looking at the trees, they lie down on the uncut lawn and do the same.

As for marriage, you can take it, too. Lengthy holidays put more strain on a solid marriage than drink, gambling or other women. I won't go into details. But, lady, how would you like to run a motel-without-rates with one hand, and try to direct a busy, unshaven bowie with the other? Dad, how would you like two months of togetherness with the old battleaxe? I leave it to your imagination.

If this is what a long holiday is like, I sure hope I do before I retire.

GREEN ACRES

By A. E. EDWARDS Dist. Agriculturist Sedgewick, Alberta

FLY CONTROL IN BARNS:

Have you tried Diazinon 25% for controlling the flies in your barns? This chemical has been used very successfully at the Beaverlodge Experimental Farm, according to A. Heddon, Livestock Supervisor with the Alberta Dept. of Agriculture.

No spraying is necessary and one application is enough for the whole season. Simply soak lengths of cotton cords, about three feet long, in Diazinon, dry them out and hang them up in the barn. At Dewar lodge they use strings taken from a new mop head. These are put up in June and left there until the season end.

Mr Heddon says the easiest way of dipping the cords is to tie them with wire into bundles of about 50. After excess chemical has been squeezed out with two sticks or rubber gloves, the strings should be hung up to dry for 48 hours.

Since Diazinon is very poisonous, directions on the container must be very carefully followed. This is important as Diazinon cattle poisonings occurred in Ontario in 1962 when this chemical was used incorrectly. The operator should always wear rubber gloves and a rubber apron. He should never work in an enclosed area.

When the cords are dry, staple each end to the ceiling of the barn. With three-foot lengths, thin leaves down. The cords should be hung so that the loops are in rows, 6 to 8 feet apart, across the length or the width of the barn. The efficiency of this method of fly control is greatly increased when the cords are looped in front of the windows as well.

Mr. Heddon says about 55 yards of Diazinon is enough to treat a 24x 100 foot barn. Diazinon can be obtained from most hardware stores and agricultural chemical suppliers. C-Jay Diazinon 25% and Perathion. A ball of this cord costs about 4.50 and will treat an area of about 1000 square feet.

ROYAL NOMINATIONS!

September 10th is the deadline for Alberta livestock nominations for the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Breeders planning to nominate horses, beef cattle, dairy cattle & sheep must have their nominations in by this date to W. C. Gordon, Supervisor, Livestock Branch, Alberta Dept. of Agriculture, Edmonton.

The Hon. Harry E. Strom, Minister of Agriculture, has announced that his Department will again assist breeders sending exhibits to the Royal. This year the Royal Winter Fair will be held from November 15 to 23 inclusive.

Hog nominations were called for earlier in the summer and this section of the exhibits has already had a preliminary inspection.

Exhibitors are chosen by selectors appointed by the Provincial Breed Associations under the direction of the Alberta Livestock Board. The Livestock Branch co-ordinates the work of selectors and assembles the shipment.

DON'T NEGLECT SUMMERFALLOW:

Perennial weeds on summerfallow land must be kept under control now until freeze-up if work done earlier in the season is not to be wasted.

Perennial weeds such as Canada and Sow thistles build up food reserves very rapidly during August & September to carry them through a heap of about 8 inches hanging the winter. For this reason farmers are strongly urged to cultivate the thistle infested areas on fallowed land thoroughly just before harvest. A good summerfallow job, which entails continuing operations right on through the growing season, will control perennial weeds effectively.

In cases where land is subject to erosion or where time does not permit cultivation, spraying the weeds with 2,4-D ester at a rate of ¾ Oz. of acid per acre is recommended.

Spraying will hold perennials in check and prevent the plants from building up food reserves until cultivation can be resumed later. The important point to remember is that thistles should be stopped from establishing themselves now. Cultivation and/or spraying at this time of year will ensure successful perennial weed control on summerfallow.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

NEWS FROM OVERSEAS

By 1945 the four oldest boys had been shipped overseas, and the youngest lad was just waiting for his 18th birthday so he, too, could "get into it". Thus Dad knew he could not possibly run the farm without help; men were impossible to get, so all able-bodied men were in the services by then.

On April 15th, 1945, we had a sale, sold furniture, machinery, livestock, everything on the place, nailed up the windows and doors of the house that had known so much fun, laughter, and a few tears; the home that had sheltered us for so many years, rented the land to a neighbor, and left for the Coast where we had heard there was all sorts of work at fabulous wages.

However, the wet, foggy weather not only preyed on our already frayed nerves (thinking constantly of our lads in uniform) but it was hard for Dad's health, so we headed back for Manitoba. Our younger daughter had gone to live with my a dar and hubby, up in the Cariboo, and the youngest son would be in uniform in the fall. Just think how our family had been scattered in so short a while. Dad and I arrived in Winnipeg in early fall, where Dad obtained work with the R. R.

It was while we were there that we received word that our son who was with the R.C.A.F., overseas, was missing. Naturally we were numb with shock. We got on the bus and went out to our eldest daughter's farm (she lived just 2 miles from our old farm). They too, had received the news.

But in spite of all unbelievable evidence, and, with loved ones and a host of friends trying to comfort me I felt that God would undertake, and that we would see our precious lad die again.

As I look back now, I think the folks thought that the bad news had, well, sort of upset me to the extent that my mind was not accepting the grim facts, yet. They must have been a bit worried at my attitude, as they know full well how much our children mean to us.

Nevertheless I hung on in prayer, "Storming the Gates of Heaven," for the answer that God does hear the prayers of His believing children, taking as my promise, "All things are possible to him that believeth".

In about three months we received word that our lad was in a German prisoner of war camp (Stalag-luft No. 3). How humbly thankful we all were. Truly, God is a rewarder of all who diligently seek Him, and trust Him.

Our lad was safe and alive. Now, the burden of our prayers was for God's care over him, and to return him safely to us again. Once again God answered our prayers, and in early fall, Dad and I, with Andy, who had returned from O. S. a few days before, met the prisoner of war train at the C.P.R. station in Winnipeg, and, with hundreds of other loved ones, met sons, husbands, or fathers as the case might be. We all went out to our daughter's farm, where there was a wonderful time of rejoicing. "Our Son, who was Missing, was Home".

A Few Hardisty Flakes

(By Postie)

Two months have gone by since I hit the type, so here my holidays & also Postie Joe's. Many thanks to Janice Miller for another fine job of relief while I was away, and to friend wife while Joe was away. Well, it's back to the mill for both Joe and I for another few months.

We had a fine trip out to B. C. via the Yellow Pass, and I do welcome the fact that Vernon is only a day's drive away. The roads were very good but the weather did not exactly co-operate. We had rain and more rain. It's the first time we ran into that kind of weather in B. C., so one shouldn't complain. It did put a crimp in my golfing though, as I had to curtail that portion of it. We did, however, get out to Kelowna and had two very enjoyable days with the Metsons. Harry and I were out golfing both days, and as usual we had a ball, that is when we did not have it in a brook that wound its way through the course. Harry and Helen asked to be remembered to everyone, so this is the quickest way I know of getting their regards passed around.

Well, since my last column, I must say that Hardisty has really been changed around, with a few new faces being added to our population. Welcome to the following: Rev. and Mrs. Zwicker; Mr and Mrs L. J. Anderson; Mr and Mrs R. Gillespie and Mr and Mrs C. H. Haley. We hope you enjoy our town, and we're pleased to have you with us.

The changes downtown must strike dent are the renovation of the old Kiefer Hall into the smart looking Viola Theatre. Congratulations Ben on a much needed improvement. Mr. Dick Gillespie has certainly improved the interior of the store he purchased, and congratulations are in order to him. The other change is the Geo. Banke building which has been modernized inside and is leased by the Provincial Government.

It wouldn't be a Postie Column if I didn't have something to say about some matter, and this time it is the grade 12 results at Central High in Edmonton. I would join with the Community Press in extending congratulations to the students and Mr. H. Steve and staff for the standings obtained as compared to the Provincial averages. I think that a few trips west last year, when we heard cries about the deplorable standings obtained at Central, and I am sure some of you readers who were present will recall my stand on the matter of keeping a rural point with a select urban group. The provincial picture is a fair comparison, so now we can truly say that things are not nearly as bad as some would have had us believe.

Well readers, I must sign thirty and get on with something else, or your mail will not be ready by the time the truck arrives. Here's hoping that you farmers get the fine weather necessary to bring in this fine crop you have.

WAINWRIGHT WOMAN CALGARY AQUARIUM MILLIONTH VISITOR

Mrs. Dave Gardener of Wainwright, Alberta, was the one millionth visitor to the Calgary Aquarium. Here she chats with J. B. Cress, past president of Calgary Brewing & Malting Co. Ltd. and founder of the aquarium following presentation of $100 in Silver Dollars.

The Calgary Aquarium welcomed its one-millionth visitor Friday, August 16th, with a display of nautical tradition that included an underwater sea chest with 100 pieces of silver as its treasure — and a pretty mermaid to dive for it.

A daily count of the number of visitors has been kept since August 25th, 1960 when the Aquarium, a free-admittance public service project of the Calgary Brewing & Malting Co. Ltd. was opened on a half-million dollar building adjacent to the Brewery plant at Calgary. It is the only interior aquarium in Canada.

At 2:46 p.m. August 16, Mrs. Dave Gardener, 57, of Wainwright, Alberta, walked through the main entrance of the Aquarium and became its millionth visitor and the recipient of a $100 cash prize, a commemorative scroll, a bouquet of flowers and a fish dinner - a fresh-caught Arctic char flown to Calgary for the occasion from the North West Territories.

School Division Acquires Land

A regular meeting of the Board of Killam School Division No. 22, was held with all Trustees and the Supt. in attendance.

Monies were assigned as requested and bills on hand to the $150 to be paid confirmed and approval given for payment of bills 1867 to 1922.

Secretary was instructed to proceed with arrangement with the Village of Killam for the transfer of approximately 2 acres of land south of the present Killam School site, to the Killam School Division. Said transfer to be used by the Village of Killam in return for levelling and landscaping work in the amount of $1645.00 performed on this site by G. Sorken of Killam, and paid by the Killam School Division. This property is described at Part of Lot 2, Plan 4777L.

It was approved that the hiring and placement of staff as listed be approved: B. S. Thiara, High School at Alliance; Arthur Sawchyn, High School, Daysland; Mrs. Mabel Tyrosky, Grades 2 & 3 at Daysland; Mrs. Arlene Lashen, Grades 4 and 5 at Daysland; Miss Ann Amrek, grade 6 at Strome; Miss Adelle Porter in grade 2, Daysland; Miss Lorna Hordal to grade Jr. High School and Vice Principal at Strome; Mrs. H. Terry, Business Education Circuit, Daysland and Heisler.

Mrs. Dreger was engaged as part time travelling teacher for the Lougheed two 1/2 days a week. Mrs. Lenore Boggerman was engaged on a part time music teacher for the Hardisty, Sedgewick, Killam and Strome music circuit, instructing 4 days a week.

A meeting was called for all principals and vice-principals of the Division for August 30th.

The applications were approved for 2201 Burseries, from Douglas Munro and Phyllis Morker.

The recommendation of the architect on replacing 44 large classroom windows at Sedgewick, with new sash, at a cost of $170 approved.

The secretary was authorized to pay progress certificates issued by the Architect on construction, under By-law No. 11.

The accident reports on James S Edward Jackson of Sedgewick, and Johnny Dammeson of Killam, were filed as no negligence is apparent.

It was passed that the Gazette advertising in the amount of $17.30, paid by the Village of Lougheed for the annexation of the additional land recently purchased from Mr. Nils Haugen by the Killam School Division, be refunded to Lougheed.

Applications for the position of caretaker of the High School, Sedgewick was ordered advertised in the local papers.

I. Johansons Hold 50th Anniversary

SEDGEWICK —On Saturday August 24th, Mr. and Mrs. I. Johansen were honored at their home in Sedgewick by their entire family, to celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Johansen were married in Norway in 1913 and emigrated to Canada in 1922.

During these 50 years they were blessed with 5 daughters and two sons, Mrs. Obert Benson (Haldis) of Kinsella, Alberta; Mrs. Albert Nordstrom (Hedvas) of Sedgewick; Arvid of Edmonton; Reidar of Vancouver B.C.; Mrs. Tennes Berge (Mildred) of Kimberly B.C.; Mrs. Allan Newsome (Irene) of Vancouver B.C.; and Mrs. James Gulitner (Edna) of Dawson Creek B.C. All were able to attend the occasion, as well as 17 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. It was the first time the family was together as a group in 17 years.

On Sunday, August 25th a very delicious dinner was served by the Bathsheba Ladies Aid in the church hall after the service, which was attended by many friends of the family from near and far. Mr. and Mrs. Johansen were the recipients of many lovely flowers, gifts and cards honoring them on the occasion, and wishing them well in the future.

After the dinner a program of sacred music and readings by members was given by M. C. Mr. Leif Gabeck. Mr. and Mrs. Johansen thanked everyone present for the lovely flowers, gifts and kind words, which made it a memorable day.

Glynnis Swancoat Wed At Sedgewick

On Saturday, August 3rd at 2.00 p.m., the Sedgewick United Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding when Miss D. Swancoat united in holy matrimony, Marilyn Glynnis Swancoat, eldest daughter of Mr. & Mrs. James G. Swancoat of Sedgewick, and Elaine George Neale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Neale of Camrose, in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride looked radiant as she entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of wedding music played by Mrs. L. B. Wilson of Sedgewick. The bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, featuring a sweetheart neckline studded by sequins and lily-pearl sleeves. The shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of crystal jewels and pearls, and she carried a lovely bouquet of red American Beauty roses. Her only jewelery was a pair of earrings, gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid was attended by her sister Maxine as maid of honor, Marilyn Reest and Elaine Neelak of Daysland as bridesmaids. All wore short dresses of nylon chiffon over taffeta. The bridesmaids' dresses were blue and the maid of honor wore melon. Their accessories were white and they carried bouquets of white carnations and pink roses. Their only jewelery was earrings.

The groom was attended by his brother Paul of Camrose, Albine Kenlee of Viking and Peter Nabisenick of Daysland. Ellis Hamerott, brother of the bride, acted as usher. Mrs. Mirian Heide, sister-in-law of the groom sang, "O Promise Me", during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Swancoat chose a lovely three-piece blue and white linen suit. She wore a corsage of white carnations, and white accessories. The groom's mother, Mrs. Hoke, wore a blue floral silk dress with white corsage and accessories.

A reception followed in the church basement, which was decorated very beautifully with summer flowers. A three-tier wedding cake baked by the bride's aunt Mrs. F. Frasier of Hardisty, and decorated by Mrs. M. Hryshaog of Sedgewick. White tapers and bowls of sweetpeas decorated the head table. Rev. Yewis asked the Blessing. Paul Heide, M.C., introduced Albine Raaks, who proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom fittingly responded. Mrs. Marion Holte sang "I Love You Truly".

For her going away ensemble the bride wore a three-piece beige linen suit with a pink corsage and pink accessories. After a honeymoon at Banff and Jasper the happy couple will make their home in Viking.

Out-of-town guests were from, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Camrose, Ponoka, Hardisty, Hughenden and Daysland.

Council Of Women Hold First Meeting

KILLAM — Don't you think that title is impressive. We hope to be just that.

Recently a number of ladies met at the home of Mrs. J. Slavik to discuss an idea explained by Mrs. J. J. Schneider. The ladies represented a number of organizations in town.

As everyone knows our beautiful new hospital will soon be opened and there will be much to be done in the Auxiliary Wing, where you and I could be of some help in a little volunteer work for the patients under the supervision of the nursing staff. To name a few, we could read, write notes, play games, or just visit, or take patients for short car rides. There will be many more small favors which would seem so much to them.

After this topic was discussed we were allowed a "Beef and Bouquet" session on other subjects pertaining to our town in general. As we found out it is easier to beef than bouquet, and here are some of the subjects brought up: The squealing of car tires and the noise on main street nightly; the disturbances carried on in public entertainment places. Can't we teach our children to stand and sing the National Anthem at the close of a gathering? Other suggestions raised were: Most of what happened to the playground is that were to be built, and could we not undertake volunteer help for young people's organizations, such as 4-H Clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides? Another topic which has been talked about many times is the inferior books on the news stands.

Where are the bouquets?

We like our town and district and welcome all the newcomers. We hope they will like it too.

We would appreciate it if you would think these ideas over carefully and give us your opinions and ideas, and if you would like to help us in any more information, call Mrs. J. J. Schneitter or Mrs. Fred Sherwood, or anyone who attended the meeting.

An invitation was extended to everyone to attend a meeting to be held in the very near future. The topic: Social Welfare. The speaker: Mr. Ferguson of Edmonton.

At the close of the meeting we decided to take back our ideas to the various societies to discuss and to meet on Monday evening, the 30th of September at 8.00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Irene Gordon.

Shower Held For Mrs. Lorne Urkich

HARDISTY — A shower was held in St. Mark's parish hall Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Lorne Urkich, nee Doris Pagan, whose marriage took place in Red Deer last week. Several amusing games were played, and music supplied by Mrs. Alice Lowe and Joanne Odegard was much enjoyed. The bride was assisted at the gift table by her mother Mrs. Elsie Pagan, her grandmother, Mrs. Bert Parsons, and Mrs. Lillian Drager. After opening the many lovely gifts, Doris thanked her friends sincerely. Lunch was served by the ladies.

Surprise Party Held At J. Lewis Home

KILLAM — On Sunday afternoon a surprise party was held at the home of Mr. John Lewis, when all his children and grandchildren gathered together for the First to celebrate Mr. Lewis' 79th birthday on September 3rd. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. Lewis and three children; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lewis and son; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lewis and two children; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis and two children; Mr and Mrs Don Lewis and two children; Mr. & Mrs. Fred O'Reardon and 4 children of Camrose; also daughters Mamie and Shirley, and son Bill and Donlad. A big outdoor barbeque dinner completed a happy family re-union.

Bridal Shower Held For Laval Reed

KILLAM — A bridal shower was held in the Knox United Church hall on Friday night to honor Miss Laval Reed. The hall was nicely decorated for the event. Mrs. Douglas Forster was the M. C., and directed a lovely program of readings and musical numbers. Miss Beverly Larson rendered a lovely piano solo and Miss Hyllie Larson sang a song in her usual delightful manner.

Mrs. Margaret Dutton introduced the bride-to-be and gave a short history of her life. A lovely corsage was presented to Laval by Mrs. Edna Palmer, president of the K. U. C. Club. Mrs. Dorothy Felgate & Miss Donna Dutton were in charge of the posts at the head table and assist the bride in opening her gifts. Miss Diane Gist was in charge of the guest book. Laval thanked everyone for the lovely gifts, and the evening was completed with lunch.

Wedding Bells

HARDISTY — St. Paul's United Church in Hardisty, decorated with garden flowers, was the pretty setting for the marriage of Mary Marie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Staner of Hardisty, to George Fraser Williams, son of Mr. & Mrs. James Angus Williams (deceased) of South Bar, Nova Scotia.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of appliqued nylon organza with chapel veil held in place by pearls & roses. She carried red roses, & wore a pearl drop necklet, gift of the groom.

Mrs. June Greaves, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a green embroidered nylon tafetta street-length gown and carried a colonial bouquet of Mardionna flowers.

Little Kim Stoner, niece of the bride, was a charming flower girl. She wore a yellow embroidered cotton frock and carried a crushed basket of flowers. Little Terry Greaves nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer. Mr. William Stoner was the best man. Ushering the guests was Cpl. Herbert Knopf of Vancouver, B. C., and Mr. Bud Wilson of Brisbois.

The bride's mother wore a frock of flowered nylon with white accessories and wore a corsage of roses.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the bride's parental home. The table looked very attractive, decorated with flowers, and centred with the wedding cake surrounded by tulle.

Mr. Alfred Rands proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom. The reception was followed by a dance at the Science Hill School.

The bride changed for travelling to a grey silk suit with Mink collar and pink accessories. The happy couple will make their home in Killam.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Sue Zintel of Hamulton, Ont; Cpl. & Mrs. Herbert Knopf of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wilson and children of Brelon, Mr. and Mrs. George Sales and children of Leduc, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stahl from Edmonton.

ONE SHORT SECOND FROM ETERNITY!

(Guest Editorial from the Castlegar News)

The following moving plea for safety appeared in a mid western U.S. newspaper, unsigned. After several weeks the identity of the author was discovered. He was a 35-year-old railroad engineer — father of two children. After receiving the praises of his company he said simply, "If the letter saves one life, I'm glad".

* * * * *

I don't know who you are, it's true, but I do know you were scared to death Sunday evening near nine o'clock when you drove your car across directly in front of my speeding passenger train. It was so close that I, in the cab, could see you and the young girl (your sweetheart, I presume) throw her hands up in front of her face and cringe up against you in stark horror. If I were that young girl I'd pull away from you, fast. You don't have good sense, son. You probably say you love her. I wonder. Those we love we try to protect. But not you.

Wouldn't that have been a nice Christmas present to hand your mother — a broken and battered body. And how do you think we, in the cab of that engine, would feel? We are human beings too. We have young ones waiting home for us to return to. We too could have been killed. — You and your girl were one second from eternity son. — I hope you read this and know it means you and that your girl will too. Next time you go driving around, stop and look. We don't want to hit you, but we are helpless as we cannot swerve away from our given rails.

If I were you son, and you too sis. I'd thank God for that split second He granted to you. I said a prayer when I realized you were going across. Perhaps that's what saved us all. — Now think it over, both of you. And I'll bet you are both still shaking in your shoes. — And please, for God's sake, don't try it again.

THE CHALLENGE TO CHRISTIANITY!

At the present time there is a slowly moving trend towards a more friendly relationship and a better understanding between sectarian Christian churches throughout the world. The greatest challenge to Christianity comes from the communist countries. The advancement of science has also created problems. The most urgent crisis of our times is the spiritual problem. Unless it is solved our civilization is in danger. The communist creed presents a new conception of civilization. With fanatic zeal it maintains that living consists primarily in material achievements and can reach its goal without ethical considerations. The communists sneer at Christianity. They make mock of the Sermon on the Mount and other teachings of Christ. The only way the communist challenge can be overcome is by the discovery of a sufficient faith — something that will once again set souls afire.

Narrow sectarianism is insufficient to meet the greatest challenge Christianity has encountered since its early years. The petty spites and jealousies which have plagued Christianity for centuries must be smothered over. This will take many, many years, but must succeed if Christianity is not to perish from the earth. If that should happen there would be no need of searching for a hell. — It would be right here on earth. — Brooks Bulletin.

30 YEARS AGO

(From Press Files Sept. 7, 1933)

A total of 28,380 radio licenses were sold in Alberta during the fiscal year ending 31st of March 1933.

Rain stopped threshing operations the first of the week. In some sections there was snow as well as the rain, in which cases the distant fields didn't look so green.

The most momentous thing that happened on Labor Day was that school started in the minds of the school children the day was very aptly named.

21 YEARS AGO

(From Press Files of Sept. 3, 1942)

Cleared through theFort Offices in Edmonton and Calgary are 816,000 ration books for sugar, tea and coffee for Albertans, to be in the hands of the population Sept. 7th.

A telegram expressing sympathy in the death of the Duke of Kent was sent to their Majesties the King and Queen, by the Killam District Board of Trade.

Help the war effort. Park your car in the shade. Gas evaporates in the sunshine.

10 YEARS AGO

(From Press Files of Sept. 3, 1953)

The Killam School Division will be operating a total of 71 classrooms when the term starts on Sept. 14th.

A shower was held for Miss Jean Goodrick at the Strong School on August 30th.

Joy McBride of Sedgewick is the new clerk in the Dry Goods Dept. of the Killam Co-op. Edith Shaw has also taken Doreen Boschard's place in the Grocery. Doreen is going to her home for a few weeks before taking the leap.

Miss Cole returned to her duties as school principal at Lougheed, not knowing that holidays had been extended.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cambridge Cheer Club was held at the home of Mrs. V. Storbakken on August 27th.

NEW PROGRAM FOR OLDS!

Under the new sessional programm at the Olds Agricultural and Vocational College, students will be required three times a year. This system started last year, divides the school year into 3-month sessions commencing in October and finishing in June.

The principal at Olds says that agricultural students will be able to get a diploma in one year if they have a good grade 11 standing. With less education it will take four sessions to complete the course. All students can major in any branch of agriculture for which they feel most suited. Graduates will be eligible for employment on the farm or in related fields.

A new course in horticulture will be given this year. It is designed to train those interested in this work for employment as florists, nurserymen or in one of the Parks Depts.

The course in clothing and design, started last year, proved very successful. It provides extensive training for young women interested in jobs which require a knowledge of clothing, fabrics, sewing, tailoring.

The commercial course, also started last fall, is being expanded this year. It gives students a full commercial training for employment in the business world.

Students in all courses, except the horticulture course, can take grade 11 and grade 12 subjects which are required for a high school diploma or for enrollment in the Faculty of Agriculture.

For the first time the college will be operating a job placement service for graduates in all courses. Further information on courses, fees etc. can be obtained from district agriculturists, home economists, or from the Registrar, Agricultural & Vocational College, Olds.

FERTILIZER APPLICATIONS!

Spring is the accepted time for applying fertilizer and it is usually done at seeding time. Best results are obtained from the application of high phosphate fertilizers at this time — early in the spring.

On established forage crops or on stubble fields that will be seeded in the spring the best results from the application of nitrogen fertilizers is obtained from fall applications. Spring applications of nitrogen fertilizers on forage don't become available for plant use soon enough to get early spring results.

Anyone interested in fertilizing forage crops or hoary stubble with high nitrogen fertilizer should make arrangements to apply it this fall. If applied early enough to be disced and carried into the soil, the fertilizer will be ready to give early results in the spring.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

By the time this appears in print, I hope to be lolling languidly beside the universe's swimming pool at the Manoir Richelieu, one of Canada's most lush hideaways for wornout millionaires and tired-out weekly newspaper editors.

Both will be gathered there this week, the former trying to regain their lost health, the latter trying to ruin theirs, at their annual convention.

At the moment of writing, it's merely a hope. Between here and there lies a nightmare of car, rail and boat travel, with a wife and 2 kids.

I have no doubt whatever that the journey will be an unforgettable horror composed of car troubles, missed trains, sea-sickness, forgotten brassieres, mislaid baggage checks, furious wife, and lost children. This is the way we always travel.

As usual at our place the kids and I have taken the preparations for attending this convention with admirable calm, while my wife has been sewing and ironing and swearing softly since the first of July. I swear she'd send three years' advance notice should we ever decide to go to Europe for a month.

What really baffles her is the unpredictability of the good old Canadian weather. Late August can be a rocking hot, cold and cloudy, or brisk and breezy. Figure three changes of clothes a day for three possible climates, for four people, and you have the measure of her misery.

This week while she stews at home getting ready, I'm at a slightly different type of convention. It's a gathering of schoolteachers. Oh, there are similarities. You wear a three lies to nightmare of car, rail and boat travel, with a wife and 2 kids.

As usual at our place the kids and I have taken the preparations for attending this convention with admirable calm, while my wife has been sewing and ironing and swearing softly since the first of July. I swear she'd send three years' advance notice should we ever decide to go to Europe for a month.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

As an elderly person travels down Memory's Lane, his mind will often flit from one incident to another, (regardless of the time and incident took place). Maybe one would be something that happened in more recent years, similar, possibly, to the ones which have appeared in this column the last two weeks. Then suddenly, memory takes one back into the "dim and distant past," to incidents which occurred when the family were little "tackers".

This has happened to me. I recall when Lynton was just 4, and Peter 2 years old, were we fond of animals then, if allowed, would make pets of every animal on the farm.

One spring they had claimed two wee kittens amongst a batch. They made a heroess of sorts with string and hitched the kittens to a shoe box, playing by the hour at their favorite game of "pretend". This particular day they had put their "team" in the old caboose which they pretended was their barn, and as they always did, gave them a saucer of milk after tying them in their stalls. During the night the door must have been open and the kittens, seeing this, attempted to jump out. But the strings were too short, causing them to wind around their necks, and as they jumped out they couldn't touch the ground. In the morning when the lads ran out to feed their team, there were the 2 wee kittens strangling stiffs of the ground, dead. Poor little laddies. Their hearts were broken. I should say game out to them then and tried to comfort my two little lads in their first real sorrow. Instead (I was too busy as usual) I told them to take their wee kittens out behind the shop and lift up a fresh-

When I looked later, there were the poor little heart-broken laddies kneeling on the ground, tears running down their faces, and no one to comfort them. It was my place to be with them, comforting their wee broken hearts, no matter what my excuse was at the time. To them, just 3 and 4 years old, this was real tragedy. But, like countless other mothers, we think of these things too late.

Isn't it a blessing how quickly a child's heart can mend, and how quickly they can adjust themselves to new interests? Shortly after the incident of the kittens, Lynton came bounding into the kitchen one morning and with the help (?) of Peter, was lugging in the dirtiest, mangiest object of a dog I had ever seen. The lads were both talking at the same time, the dog was yapping and barking, trying to get away, and Alice the baby was screaming from fright (she was terrified of dogs always). What a hub-bub. It seems the dog had followed their home from town the night before, consequently when the lads spied it next morning they immediately claimed it as their new pet. As I was still feeling sorry for them over the loss of their kittens, I gave in, although we already had a dog. "We're going to call him 'tiger,' Mom," exclaimed Lynton, "because he has such big feet". "And we're going to teach him to pull us on our Sleigh in the winter too" added wee Peter. So Tiger stayed, and grew fat. He certainly proved to be a good dog for the lads. He played with them by the hour, never getting cross, rolling together on the lawn and letting the lads maul him to their heart's content. We all found ourselves liking Tiger.

One bad habit Tiger had, and one which we all tried to break him of, was running and barking in front of the horses when they were leaving the yard. But he insisted in it until it proved fatal to him. Haying was in full swing. It was perfect weather and our men believed in the old adage "make hay while the sun shines," so they worked in relays from early morning until sundown. Tiger really kept busy herding the teams out of the yard (he never followed them in the field). So we weren't too surprised when it finally happened. He ran in front of the horses, Dinner was at five-thirty. We washed our hands and went down to teamers and hosts, followed by a delectable, but not quite exotic, dessert of canned cherries.

At the Manoir, great public interest since the finance companies will vie with one another to provide predinner receptions and post-dinner entertainments for the editors.

At this convention, the only reception was a coffee-and-cookies affair at 9:30 p.m. and the guests paid for them.

At the Manoir, each evening will produce its small parties, followed by dancing and entertainment in the bloodcurdling casino. At this one, evening entertainment consists of a walk around the grounds, followed by a couple of hundred other lonely tasters who miss their families, and girls with a coffee from the automat in the lobby.

Teachers and weekly editors are good and useful people, and have much in common, though they often hate each others' innards. Both try to inform, educate and raise the standards of society. But when it comes to conventions, though I'll probably be bachlior after the teachers affair, I'll have a lot more fun with the editors.

A special message to all parents of boys and girls now in high school

You can guarantee your youngster's College Education in partnership with MY BANK

BANK OF MONTREAL

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION PROGRAMME

A comprehensive, life-insured plan for financing a college education for boys and girls now in high school

If you are like most parents with children in high school, you are probably wondering how you are going to meet the costs of financing your youngster's college education. To help parents solve this problem, the Bank of Montreal has insured plan of its kind in Canada.

Under this comprehensive programme, parents, guardians and sponsors of high-school students can spread the cost of a university education over periods of up to nine years, thus keeping monthly payments to amounts they can afford without hardship. And the cost to the parent is only a fraction of the interest paid on a straight loan programme.

HOW THE PROGRAMME WORKS

Under the basic plan, the parent agrees to make monthly payments to the Bank starting, say, two years before the student enters university, and terminating one year after graduation. In return, the parent receives an annual sum from the Bank at the start of each of the four university years.

VARIANTS OF THE PLAN

Several optional plans are available under the programme, and these vary as to the number of years in which the parent wishes to make monthly payments, as well as to the amount required annually for university expenses. Plans are based on objectives ranging from $1,000 to $4,000 payable to the parent in four annual instalments.

Here is an example of how one of the basic plans can be varied to suit your needs:

To be paid to the parent in four annual instalments of $1,000 each

OPTIONS	YOU PAY MONTHLY	PERIOD OF PAYMENT	YOUR SUSPENSE ACCOUNT
Plan A	$49.55	7 years	2 years when entering
Plan B	42.78	8 years	3 years when entering
Plan C	37.56	9 years	4 years when entering

LIFE-INSURANCE FEATURE

If the parent concerned should die after the start of the programme, the funds for education specified in the agreement will be advanced by the Bank each year without any further payments being made by the family or the estate.

HOW TO JOIN THE PROGRAMME

See the people at your neighbourhood B of M branch. You will receive a warm welcome from a staff member who will be pleased to give you further details and to help you select a plan suited to your needs. Ask for your copy of the Bank of Montreal University Education Programme folder.

P.S. If you need help in financing a student already in University — or planning to register this year — talk to your B of M Manager. Chances are he can arrange a tuition loan with extended payments adapted to your circumstances.

How Long Did It Take To Court Your Wife?

Did you just happen to see her, walk up to her, ask her to marry you and call in the minister . . . right on the spot —

PERHAPS NOT . . . it probably took a lot of calls, and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting-your-best-foot forward tactics. You had to "sell" yourself. She had to know all about you!

IT'S THE SAME WITH ADVERTISING . . . you can't "woo" customers with one Ad . . . you've got to "Call on Them" over a period of time . . . you've got to win their confidence and be convincing.

Mrs Berta Millham of Vancouver was a guest of Mr and Mrs E. L. Peddicord, while here to attend the funeral of her cousin Mrs Ullman.

The community was saddened by the death of Mrs. Rose Ullman Tuesday morning in Hardisty Hospital. Sincere sympathy from her friends is extended to the bereaved.

Mr and Mrs Richard Nyberg motored to Edmonton on Wed. where Mr Nyberg kept a dental appointment. Their grandson Lloyd McDonald, who had been visiting on the farm, returned to his home in Camrose.

Two hail storms struck the district Monday afternoon, and several farmers suffered extensive damage to their crops.

Eight members of the Lodge Alexander W. I. group have finished a five-day sewing clinic in Hughenden, where Mrs. Johnson, a member on the staff at the School of Agriculture at Vermilion, and District Home Economist Miss Lois Olson of Wainwright, were instructors.

First School Days

Back to school and life is a bit hectic to think about picture-taking. We've probably been at it all summer, recording vacations, parties, trips to the beach and fun in the garden. Don't discard it, but it isn't.

Back to school is the official end of the children's summer and belongs in the family album. Keep a close eye on things and you'll find incidents worth a tick of the shutter pre-school concentrate on the back step between your children and their friends as they contemplate the problems ahead. Buying a wardrobe and giving lots of picture possibilities.

Considering that most of our children go through the summer with no little "spit and polish" as possible, the neatly dressed children on that first day of school are a revelation that demand a picture.

Don't obviously pose such pictures, let them appear casual, lovely, powerful, if more than one child is involved. Standing and sitting in apparent conversation, and if the weather is unfit for outdoor picture-taking, then use flash in the rec room.

Of course, if it is more than back to school — if it is off to school for the first time, then this is an occasion that must end up on film. It is worth a small series of pictures or color slides, a short movie in itself.

Be sure to shoot the preparation, then out the door and down the path hand in hand with big brother or sister, a neighbor child or mother, and don't end it there! Be ready when the child comes home, there should be expressions to spare for the camera.

There are no technicalities, just the simple rules. Watch the background in the viewfinder, there may be something unwanted, something that clashes — a slight change of angle and it will be gone. Keep an eye on heads and feet, they have a habit of slipping out of the picture.

Have camera, film — and flashbulbs always on hand so that picture taking is no more of a problem than reaching for the can opener. And Dad, how about a shot of Mother alone in an empty kitchen with that unbelieving "Who Apricot pence?" expression on her face when all have gone back to school?

It's Your Newspaper Too!

Henry fictorial items were reported from New York due to the crippling effects on business and retail sales by that city's newspaper strike which began December 8, and lasted four months. And aside from the far reaching financial aspects, New Yorkers found themselves with other problems.

If there are no newspapers being printed how do you find a job without want ads? Compare the values being offered in January clearance? Advertise for a lost ring or find out about an auction?

Radio and television stations were busier than ever before, still New Yorkers had the feeling that the world was passing them by.

What about the friend whose funeral was missed?

Yes, newspapers are often taken for granted.

Local businessmen have completed what has been described as the best Christmas season put recorded. We believe we had a share in making this possible because of the use made of the pages of this newspaper by many of the local enterprising businessmen telling of their promotions and their goods and services being offered to the public.

With these thoughts in mind, we would like to point out to our many readers that this newspaper is your newspaper, too.

"There isn't a thing in the paper today," you say as you lay down your community newspaper on the

You wonder why there is nothing in it about your friend's son, who only before yesterday was made vice-president of a large corporation in a metropolis miles away, or about the party the people up the street gave last night. In fact, you tell yourself you can think of a half-dozen local stories the people down at the newspaper office missed up.

How right you are. They surely passed up a number of good stories. But the fault was not altogether theirs. You as a member of the community have a responsibility to your newspaper.

It can serve local needs only in proportion to the co-operation it gets from the members of the community. National, international and most of the provincial news for daily papers comes in over leased wires. Local news is a different matter. Part of the responsibility for it is yours. Never get the idea that the editor of your newspaper is interested only in certain people in your town. On the contrary, he is interested in everyone who subscribes to his paper. Both the wealth test woman who lives in the largest house in the social residential district, and the poorest man, who lives in the smallest house on a side street, subscribe for the paper and pay the same price for it. In the eyes of the editor both subscribers are important.

Getting back to those stories the newspaper passed up — just how did you expect the folks in the office to know about your friend's son? The father was justifiably proud of his son, but did he or any of his friends think to tell the newspaper so that even acquaintances could share the son of ex-president's pleasure in his good fortune? No, they fed the grapevine and probably criticized the newspaper too.

How about the party of your neighbor's. How do you know that our weekly newspaper didn't call the lady? "Phone don't put our party in the paper," perhaps she begged when she was asked about it. "We didn't ask three couples we are indebted to and — well you understand." You, too, realize the importance of interpretation actually speaking as well as otherwise.

Maybe you think to yourself, "I don't like the editor and his policies." What if you don't always agree with him? Have you ever thought how little you really agree with your best friends? Yet you don't ignore or criticize them constantly just because you fail to see eye to eye with them, do you?

In many cases the newspaper editor is far more conscientious in promoting the interests of his local communities than he is given credit for being. If he weren't public spirited he wouldn't be in the newspaper

He's running the paper for the money he can make," you say. Of course he wants to make money. Who doesn't? But he chose the news paper business because he likes it. And any man or woman who can make money in the newspaper business can make money in some other line of work in which he would not have to deal with so many different personalities, many of them sensitive folks. Yet the editor of a newspaper chose this particular means of making a living, for in his way, he wants to help the community in which he lives.

"I don't like the way he goes about helping," you continue. Maybe you do object to his way. But his way helps much of the inside workings of his big and little businesses, of its clubs and lodges, of churches & amusement places and of its people.

Here you ever considered the services the newspaper renders you, the reader? For one thing, it helps you save money. When? When you read the ads you learn where you can find bargains which also helps or or using up tires and gasoline.

Then in the classified ads you find an abundance of help and sometimes even a laugh. Remember the time you needed someone to do chores around the house and found just the right men through the classified ads? Have you forgotten the time someone advertised a room for rent to a business girl with kitchen privileges?

Your newspaper always keeps you informed concerning happenings in your town, even if the news is not so complete as you'd like it. You learn about projects of civic clubs. You read news of the council. In fact you know many things because of your newspaper.

In the society section you are told something of what goes on among the people who entertain in your town. Remember how you had a pleasant chat with friends from out of town because of a little item which stated that they were visiting friends, that the newspaper cheerfully spread the word for them.

"Where's yesterday's newspaper?" you ask. "I want to find out what time my curling meeting is."

You wonder about church services on Sunday morning. From your news paper you learn not only about Sunday services but also about church meetings during the week.

When you give a story to the paper don't forget that there are four things the paper must know who, what, when and where. Check the material you prepare to be sure that you have answered all your questions.

A newspaper works eternally against time. They can't call other persons to get information you have forgotten to include. Always before him is the old deadline that changes not. And time is always awaiting.

Keep in mind also that the newspaper is in reality, a public utility, and must be treated as such. Gas has to be lighted before it furnishes heat. Electricity must be switched on before it gives forth light. Water has to be turned on before it flows from pipes. News has to be given to the newspaper before it can be put into print. And therein lies your responsibility. — Brooks Bulletin

He Always Says What He Thinks

Some people hesitate to say what they really believe. But not Bill Smiley. He's not one to think one thing, say another.

That's why you can count on his column, every week in this newspaper, to take a stand that's either opinionated, controversial or even irreverent—but always original.

Bill Smiley is Canada's most widely syndicated newspaper columnist. He's 44, has a wife, two children, and a mortgage. He once published a weekly newspaper, but is now a high school teacher—which he compares to working in a steel mill.

If you appreciate candid commentary on things Canadian, stirred with a dash of humor, a good measure of healthy scepticism and a per[illegible] understanding of your fellow man, you probably already read Bill Smiley's column. If you don't, you sh[illegible]ook for it every week in

In loving memory of Roy William Mason who passed away September 6th, 1960.

We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind,
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
God gave us strength to take it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you Roy,
No one will ever know.
Others are taken, that we know,
But you were ours and we miss you so

Always remembered and sadly missed by his Loving Mother and brother Lorne. 20 1 p
